

ARRESTS MADE

Boxing Club Officers Taken By Police

NEW YORK, May 17.—Mike (Twin) Sullivan of Boston and Jimmy Clabby of Milwaukee refused to go on last night for the 13 round bout that was to have been the main attraction of the Marathon Athletic club at Brooklyn. They had good reason. Early in the evening the police entered the club house, armed with seven warrants from the supreme court of Kings county for the owners and officers of the club, and for Jack (Twin) Sullivan, Mike's brother, Al Benedict, with whom Jack fought 10 rounds last week; Tommy West, who acted as second for Jack, and Billy Madden, the man who brought out John J. Sullivan, and was in Benedict's corner last week. Only the owners and officers of the club were arrested.

The warrants charged the officers of the club with selling tickets to a prize fight in violation of the law and charged the principals and seconds respectively of prize fighting and of aiding and abetting a prize fight.

There was great excitement when the arrests were made, but although Sullivan and Clabby declined to take chances with the law, the club held six preliminary bouts as scheduled.

GENERAL MATTOCKS DEAD

PORTLAND, Me., May 17.—General Charles P. Mattocks, colonel of the 17th regiment in the Civil war and the only Maine man who held a general's commission in the Spanish war, died last night. He has been prominent in the Grand Army and Loyal Legion, and was a former judge in the probate court. He was 69 years old.

ROLLER INJURED

IN HIS WRESTLING BOUT WITH ZYBSZKO

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 17.—Stanislaw Zybszko, the Polish wrestler and a candidate for Frank Gotch's title as champion, last night defeated Dr. Roller of Seattle, in a finish match. Roller's left shoulder was badly wrenched when the Pole slammed him to the mat for the first fall.

It was announced that Dr. Roller was returning to the ring for his second bout against the advice of his seconds and when he reappeared it was seen that his left arm hung helplessly by his side. Zybszko quickly got behind his man and when he began working upon the injured arm Dr. Roller's seconds threw up the sponge.

The time for the first fall was 1.05.40 and for the second 1.40.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION

A program has been prepared for the annual convention of the Lowell union, Christian Endeavorers, which will be held at the Paige Street Free Baptist church on Saturday afternoon and evening of this week. Not only will the Lowell district be represented, but visitors are expected from many out-of-town places.

The two main addresses will be given, one in the afternoon by Rev. Smith Baker, D. D., and in the evening by Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., the Christian Endeavor founder and referred to by Christian Endeavorers as Father Endeavor Clark. Dr. Baker's subject is to be "How to Build Up Your Own Society," and Dr. Clark will speak on "The Secret of Worldwide Success in Christian Endeavor."

Besides the two addresses, papers will be read on various subjects, and a good part of the program will be devoted to music. Supper will be served, followed by a reception to Dr. Clark.

EX-GOV. ROLLINS HORSE OWNERS

Faces a Charge of Given Advice as to Use of Medicines

NEW YORK, May 17.—While former Governor Frank West Rollins of New Hampshire has declared he had no idea of defrauding the customs officers of New York by not declaring all

Although much has been written concerning the methods of administering medicines to horses, in this day many horse owners and caretakers exhibit a great amount of ignorance or carelessness in giving necessary medicines to horses. They may be given by the mouth, by the lungs and air passages, by applications to the skin and by hypodermics, injections and by enemas.

These medicines to be given by the mouth consist in the main of powders, balls, drenches and electuaries. Powders should always be finely ground and free from irritating poisonous or caustic substances, lacking disagreeable taste or smell. Such can easily be mixed with the feed or water. If given with the grain moistening them will ensure their being eaten rather than blown about or left in the feed box or manger.

Balls should be made about 2 inches long and three-quarters of an inch in diameter, soft and flexible. Medicine is of a disagreeable nature and the horse is much easier given as a ball than a drench. When balls are to be given, and physic is as important in the proper treating of the horse in many ills as it is in humanity, it is quite easily done if one goes about it in a cool and collected manner and proceeds along these lines:

Lead the horse up to the side of some elevation, upon which you can have a ring or hook above the head, through which you can pass the end of the halter but do not make it fast. Have an assistant just behind it pulling the head up easily and quietly until the head or line of the face is just a mile above a horizontal line. Take the ball between the thumb and finger of hand, immerse it in oil or glycerine, open the horse's mouth gently, pull the tongue out and over to the left hand side allowing it to lay across the teeth and firmly but gently held by the hand, pass the ball up the mouth well back at the roots of the tongue, drop it there, remove the hands quickly and allow the tongue to be pulled back into the mouth. The horse will generally swallow a properly made ball without further effort on your part. It is well to have a pail of water handy, and if the ball be given when the animal is thirsty, he will readily drink and help to carry the ball along to the stomach.

his dutiable goods, his hearing, which will be held next Friday, promises to bring out a spirited fight. Air Rollins and his son, who were arrested on the charge of smuggling at the dock, and Mrs. Rollins later appeared before the customs officials and gave bond for $2000 on the same charge.

KEPT PRISONER

Girl Was Found By the Police

NEW YORK, May 17.—Bruised and under-clad, a girl who gives her name as Elizabeth Kelley, 19 years old, was taken by the police yesterday from a house in Bayonne, N. J. She says she has been kept a prisoner there by Joseph Figel, an Italian, for three months.

The girl has been in this country only six months. She says she met Figel in a moving picture show, and he induced her to enter his house by promises of employment. She was found yesterday nearly crazed with fright in a third story room. Women's clothes had to be borrowed before she could be taken out. She said her own had been burned by Figel to prevent her escape. Figel was arrested and held without bail.

WENT ON STRIKE

Lasters in Marlboro Quit Work

MARLBORO, May 17.—Fifty men employed in the lusting department of the Rice & Hutchins Middlesex factory at this place went on strike yesterday afternoon.

The grievance of the strikers against the firm is that two brother employees in the lusting department were discharged yesterday morning for what the strikers claim insufficient cause and the strikers have declared they will not return to work until the two discharged men are reinstated.

The real cause of the discharge of the two men, the strikers claim, is that one of them has been very active in the affairs of the union. Both of those discharged went out of the factory yesterday morning for some reason of their own and when they returned they were notified their services were no longer required.

All of the men on strike are members of the United Shoe Workers of America and they held a meeting last night in their rooms in Warren block. After the meeting the strikers said there is no change in the situation. Many of the strikers are Greeks.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

Empire colony, 176, U. O. P. E., held its regular meeting in Pillar hall last night and much business of importance was transacted. Two candidates were initiated. The memorial committee reported that everything was ready for the services to be held Monday evening, June 6.

An invitation to visit Garfield colony was accepted.

Butler Amos Co. 16, U. R. K. P., The regular assembly of Butler Amos company, 16, U. R. K. P., was held last night, Lieut. Col. Robert Hall of Haverhill presiding. Edwin P. Lamson was installed as second lieutenant of the company. One application for membership was received. At the close of the business session a social hour was enjoyed.

Division 2, A. O. H., A well attended meeting of Division 2, A. O. H., was held last night in Hibernian hall, with Vice-President Lynch in the chair. Considerable business of importance was transacted. Five propositions for membership were received and three candidates were initiated. There was a special meeting on Sunday, May 21, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to complete all arrangements for the A. O. H. outing at Lexington park on Sunday, June 5.

WM. J. BRYAN

SPEAKS IN FAVOR OF COUNTY OPTION

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., May 17.—Speaking at the Overland theatre here last night after being refused by the county commissioners the use of the courthouse, Wm. J. Bryan urged the need of an extra session of the legislature to enact the initiative and referendum, whereby the question of county option might be removed from partisan politics. The large crowd was respectful and attentive.

Mr. Bryan said the attitude of the nation interests was that they were opposed to county option, that they were unwilling that the people should vote on the question. He criticized the attitude of the anti-optionists of this country, who, he said, went so far as to oppose the free discussion of the initiative and referendum. He declared: The liquor interests are responsible for the forcing of the county option question in the arena of politics, and they have only themselves to blame for the results that shall follow the growing inclination against the impudence, the insolence of the liquor interest.

JUDGE MURRAY

Issues a Warning to Pickpockets

BOSTON, May 17.—Pickpockets were scored by Judge Murray in the municipal criminal court yesterday. Six men were arraigned for attempted larceny from the person, and the judge found all the prisoners guilty.

His Honor said: "The city is infested with pickpockets. It is getting so that it is unsafe to ride in an electric car or walk through the public thoroughfares. Every man brought before me for picking pockets or attempting to do so, who is found guilty, shall be made an example of."

John Long and Edward Miller were arrested while "working" an electric car on Huntington avenue last Thursday evening. Detectives Gleavy and Linton of headquarters said Long had served sentences at state prison, the house of correction and Sing Sing, and that Miller was a New York thief, but had done a stretch of 15 months here for larceny from the person.

NAVAL WARFARE

TOOK PLACE ON THE POTOMAC RIVER

WASHINGTON, May 17.—A bit of naval warfare took place yesterday on the Potomac river at Indian Head, Va., when the old United States navy ram Katsuhin, which was stricken from the navy list last year, received her baptism of fire. It was not the fire of an enemy, but it was aimed at her with every intention of sinking her if possible.

Having outlived her usefulness as a fighting vessel, the curious naval vessel was clothed in modern 12-inch, "high grade" armor plate and a dozen ordnance experts directed the attack on her with the new soft nose naval shell, hurled through a big 12-inch gun. Anchored at a distance of about five miles the Katsuhin served to assist the naval experts in ascertaining whether the new shell could be detected when it strikes at any angle or whether it would bite into the armor plate as the naval officers anticipated. Unfortunately for the public the navy department conducted the experiment with all possible secrecy.

ANOTHER ARREST

In Connection With Fitchburg Bank Swindling Case

FITCHBURG, May 17.—The arrest of Hector McLane at Bridgeport, Conn., late today, local police assert, closes the net about the suspects who, on May 4, buncoed the Worcester North Savings institution out of $1700, using a deed and mortgage given by a man passing as George P. Sands and now alleged to be Hector McLane.

All the suspects in the swindle are in custody, two here, and one at Bridgeport.

Corbett J. McLane of Worcester who was arrested Sunday on a charge of larceny in connection with the swindle, was arraigned yesterday in the local police court and on his plea of "not guilty" a hearing was set for May 25, and he was held in sureties of $2500.

Corbett J. McLane, according to the police, represented himself as Armstrong, an attorney, when the deed figuring in the case was forged in the office of Atty. Jean Robichaud and the name of John Dohla was used.

It is claimed by the police McLane with his brother, Hector McLane, came here from Worcester about May 1, and formed the acquaintance of James Russell, who has been arrested under

he claims his brother got about all of the $1700 by the swindle. He has, however, denied he passed himself off here as Armstrong. Corbett J. McLane, so far as the police have been able to learn, has no previous record. He was visited here yesterday by his wife. She was also in conference with the police for some time, and it is claimed that she told them where Hector McLane was.

James A. McNeil, who was employed here as a barber until McLane brothers came into this city and who was arrested at Boston, was not arraigned today. An indictment has been returned against him by the grand jury for forgery, and he will be brought into court later in the week at Worcester to answer to the indictment.

McNeil has been known here for six years as Russell. It was learned today his right name is McNeil.

TRAIN WRECKED

Engineer Was Thrown From Cab

PITTSFIELD, May 17.—Traffic on the Boston & Albany railroad was blocked for several hours at Pittsfield Junction last night by the wreck of the Harlem express, bound from New York to North Adams. Although the locomotive left the tracks and turned over on one side, meanwhile plunging diagonally across the roadbed so as to block every track, only the engineer, Peter O'Donnell of North Adams, was thrown through the cab window and somewhat injured. The 25 passengers in the train were shaken up but none injured to any extent.

Besides the locomotive, a baggage car was derailed. The train was running slowly in the yard at Pittsfield Junction and was about to take the switch from the main line to the branch line leading to North Adams, shortly before 8 o'clock, when the engine suddenly left the tracks and plunging across the roadbed, turned over on one side. Engineer O'Donnell had one foot slightly hurt, while his arm escaped save for a slight bruise received as he was hurled out. The engine was taken to North Adams on a special train.

The route of the train was recently extended from Pittsfield to North Adams. There was a report current that the accident was due to rail spreading where repairs were being made, but the company officials would assign no cause for the derailment.

WILL THESE INSURGENT SENATORS SURRENDER TO PRESIDENT TAFT?

PHOTOS BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

WASHINGTON, May 17.—From now until the close of congress the country is due to witness a spirited fight between the administration forces and six insurgent senators. Senators Brister, La Follette, Dooliver, Beveridge, Clapp and Cummins have not been in harmony with all the policies of the president. The president requested a score of senators to call at the White House and discuss various bills that he is anxious to have passed. Invitations were extended to some of the insurgents, and Cummins was among the number to respond, but he has not promised to follow the leadership of Taft, according to reports here.

she started for the coast, determined to work her passage as best she could. She sought employment in one town and city after another, always getting a little farther west. It took her a year to make her way to Chicago, and many months to save enough money to proceed on her journey. Slowly but surely she neared the goal, making her way through Illinois, Nebraska, Colorado, Arizona and finally, eight years from the time of her departure she reached San Francisco. She readily found the grave, No. 745, west side, a new addition to San Francisco cemetery, where the remains of her brother were buried in 1905, three years after his death in Manila.

In a letter received yesterday she describes the burial place as beautiful, and expresses her deep appreciation of the efforts of Gen. Sullivan to have the remains of her brother brought from the Philippines to rest in his native land. He died of cholera, Miss McLane has found work as a waitress in San Francisco.

NO MORE BOXING

The Lid Goes on in Haverhill

HAVERHILL, May 17.—The house that were to have been boxed here last night under the conduct of the Morris Mack athletic and social association, were called off late yesterday afternoon, when the promoters received word from the police that arrests would follow if any attempt should be made to carry out the program arranged.

Steve Kennedy of Lawrence was slated to meet Johnny Moran of New York in the main bout of 12 rounds, and Moran was already in the city when the ultimatum from police headquarters went forth. Stanley Ketchel was to have acted as his second.

Complaint was made to the city officials recently that the boxing clubs, although incorporated, were not keeping within the law, in that many persons were permitted to witness the bouts who were not bona fide members of the clubs.

Alderman Joe W. Bean investigated the complaint, and after a conference with City Marshal Mack he decided that the best course to pursue would be to put a ban on all boxing exhibitions, with the result that the lid is now on tight, so far as boxing is concerned in Haverhill.

ECZEMA TWENTY YEARS CURED BY AN OIL

No matter if you have suffered for 20 days or 20 years, we as druggists, know that your itch can be cured in one day, and that sooner or later—perhaps very soon—your skin will be as clean and pure as ever.

Wash your skin with a simple compound, the mild soothing oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine compound known as D. D. D. Prescription.

The first day, the first night of restful sleep will prove to you that we make no foolish exaggerated claims. Eczema sufferers must recognize that we certainly would not make such claims, if within a few minutes after trying the remedy you could prove us wrong; we KNOW the itch is allayed at once.

While we have always sold D. D. D. Prescription at $1.00 a bottle, we do feel that everybody ought to be convinced at once. So we have arranged with the D. D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special offer—for the present—a trial size bottle at only 25 cents (for those who have never tried the remedy).

LIQUOR CASE

Supreme Court Finds That Judge Morton Erred in Ruling

The full bench of the supreme court yesterday sustained the defendant's exceptions in the case of the commonwealth vs. Ferdinand Radocchia, holding that Judge Morton of the superior court erred when he instructed the jury that as matter of law the receiving of wages would be hire and reward for the transportation of liquors into the city of Malden.

The defendant was employed by one Marotta, who runs a liquor store in Boston. The latter advertised "all goods delivered free to Malden." He has his own delivery wagon and the defendant is employed by him to drive that delivery wagon and do other work about the store. Liquors are delivered in the wagon by the defendant to various parts of Boston as well as to Malden. Under the statute no one can for hire or reward transport liquors into a no-license city or town. It appeared that the defendant, who was transporting liquor to Malden, received weekly wages from his employer for all work done by him, which included the delivery of goods in Malden.

"The court left the question whether the defendant received any hire or reward was for the jury."

"It will always be for the jury," says the court, "even though the price charged for the liquors is not made different for different distances, to say that a charge for delivery, based upon what is expected to be the average cost of all the deliveries that will be made."

The court says that if the seller agrees to deliver free of charge for the carriage, it doubtless will be a question for the jury whether this is actually done or whether he really receives a hire or reward for the carriage by its being included in the price charged for the liquors themselves, but there is nothing in the statute which forbids him from delivering to his customers in another town the goods he has sold to them, if he really in good faith does this without receiving, either directly or indirectly in the price of the goods, any hire or reward for the carriage.

NO EXCUSE FOR UGLY FACES

Blotches, Red Noses and Pimples May Be Quickly Banished

It is very easy, after all, to be rid of unsightly pimples, inflamed skin, blotches, red noses, bites, fever blisters and other blemishes as a few applications of possum, the new skin remedy, will quickly banish these troubles. Being naturally flesh-colored and containing no grease, possum cannot be detected on the face in the daytime. The actual healing and curing of the skin takes place at night, without inconvenience, the skin being restored to its natural color.

Possum can be had of any pharmacist who handles pure drugs, particularly Falls & Burleigh, Carter & Sherburne, and the Hitt-Jones Drug Store. It is recommended as a skin remedy for the minor troubles mentioned, or in curing ordinary cases of eczema, for which disease it is the accepted specific. It holds stops at once.

Anyone who will write to the Emergency Laboratories, No. 42 West Twenty-fifth street, New York City, can secure by mail, free of charge, a supply sufficient to show overnight results in clearing the complexion or removing blemishes.

GIRL SUCCEEDS

After 8 Years Reaches Brother's Grave

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 17.—After eight years of effort the pluck and devotion of a Manchester girl, Miss Annie McLean, has been rewarded by her reaching San Francisco on the pilgrimage to her brother's grave.

William McLean was a member of Gen. William Sullivan's company, the Sheridan Guards, at Chicamauga, and later served under his old captain in the 26th U. S. volunteers in the Philippines. He died in 1902, but it was several months before his relatives were informed of his death. A request for the shipment home of his body met with the reply that owing to the nature of his disease under military regulations the body could not be shipped home for several years, and then only to San Francisco at government expense.

Miss McLean, unable to rest until

Granted First Licenses Under "Bar and Bottle" Bill

The famous "Bar and Bottle" bill, much discussed during the past three months, certainly went into effect with a vengeance yesterday and in consequence two local firms are more or less affected and they are P. H. Barry, 220 and 222 Suffolk street, granted a first class license, and Laurent Grenon & Benjamin K. Gilpatrick, 308-370 Moody street.

This is the first city to be affected by the new law and the local board of police this morning had to act under the provisions of the measure. Therefore Mr. Barry and Grenon & Co. were simply granted but one license each, and that of the first class, as the new law provides that but one license can be granted to an individual or a concern, so that these two concerns will have to satisfy themselves with selling intoxicating liquors to be drunk on the premises. They cannot sell liquors or beers to be carried away either in cans or bottles, while those who were fortunate enough to be granted their licenses previous to the second day of May will enjoy both privileges, and will operate both the first and fourth class licenses.

In April, 1909, Mr. Barry was granted a license at 220-222 Suffolk street, and this year he applied for a license in upper Broadway, near the corner of Mt. Vernon street. Objections were made, and a hearing granted. Then

Mr. Barry decided to apply for a license at the old stand. He applied for a first and fourth, but inasmuch as his applications could not be properly and legally advertised and granted until after the "bar and bottle" bill became a law, he was compelled to choose between the first and fourth, and the board granted him a first class only.

In the case of Grenon & Co., the facts are similar. This license was originally granted first and fourth, to F. L. Richards at 368-370 Moody street. Some time after the first of May, Mr. Richards surrendered his license, and Grenon & Company came forward and applied, and in accordance with law had to advertise in the local papers, 10 days previous to the grant.

Therefore they got only one license, the first class, while the near door neighbors of both Barry and Grenon in the same line of business will enjoy both licenses.

In the case of the St. James' hotel, no great hardship is experienced. For two years ago the board of police took away the fourth class privilege from all hotels in the city, and Mr. Ferguson, who gets the license held by Mr. O'Donnell, takes exactly the same license as Mr. O'Donnell has had for the past two years.

WM. F. THORNTON WOLFGANG WILD

Chosen Vice President of Truant Officers

At the 16th annual meeting of the Massachusetts Truant Officers' association held in Lawrence, Saturday, William F. Thornton of this city was elected vice-president. Mr. Thornton was also elected a member of the legislative committee.

The meeting was held at the Essex County Training school and was attended by truant officers representing nearly every city and town in the state together with the school superintendents and judges of Essex county and the county commissioners.

The members of the association arrived at 10 o'clock and were conveyed to the training school, where a business meeting was held. Lunch was served at 1 o'clock followed by addresses by a number of the members and guests. The day was devoted to inspecting the school buildings and the farm which comprises an institution that ranks second to none of its kind in the country.

The session was presided over by President Thomas W. Doyle of Holyoke. Secretary of the association, J. English of Worcester was present.

The following papers were read during the morning session: "The Advantage Gained by Having the Truant Committed to the Training School for an Indefinite Period" by Amos Shaffer of Lowell; "The Truant Officers of the State of 12 to 14 Be Allowed to Work in the Mills, Shops or Stores during the Summer Vacation" by C. H. Johnson of Quincy; "What Kind of Punishment Should be Administered to the Truant by Truant?" by Nathaniel M. Nichols of Haverhill.

After the reading of the papers a general discussion followed. The papers were well prepared and were very instructive.

The following officers were elected: President, Thomas W. Doyle of Holyoke; vice president, Wm. F. Thornton of Lowell; secretary, J. English of Worcester. The executive committee was chosen as follows: Fred H. Robinson, Brookline, chairman; Henry E. Fayweather of Worcester; John E. Savage of Marlboro; N. E. Hemen of Beverly; George J. Murphy of Boston; John M. Mills of Boston; Donald H. Fitchburg; Joseph G. Elderly of Fitchburg; Paul Lord of Fall River; Edwin Cate of Lawrence. The legislative committee: John H. Westfall of Boston, chairman; Fred H. Robinson of Brookline; William F. Thornton of Lowell; J. English of Worcester; M. Nichols of Haverhill; J. Kenney of Boston.

The young men of St. Peter's parish have organized a team and want a game for Saturday with any 18 year old team in the state. The lineup consists of: Pantan, c; Corbett, p; Dunahoo, 1b; Fargate, ss; Moriarty, 2b; O'Ryan, 3b; Brennan, lf; Keane, cf; Reilly, rf; Conney, sub. All challenges will be sent to William P. Welch, 64 Chapel street.

The Riverdeles of Belvidere would like to play any 18 year old team in the city. Send all challenges to William P. Welch, 64 Chapel street or through this paper.

The Young Starlights would like to challenge any team in the city under 18 years. The lineup is as follows: E. Callahan, c; R. Lister, p; C. Fuller, 1b; E. Fuller, 2b; S. McKenna, ss; J. Devine, 3b; Bill Lister, rf; Joe Maguire, lf. They beat the Red Jackets by the score of 1 to 3. The feature of the game was the batting of the Fuller brothers.

The Coburn street stars would like to challenge any team in the city under seven years of age. Our lineup is as follows: Clement Corey, c; Frank Sheehan, p; Edward Small, 1b; John McDonald, 2b; Edward Cronin, 3b; George Brine, ss; John Corey, lf; Leo Corey, cf.

Send all challenges to Clement Corey, 135 Coburn street, City.

The Sunshine team would like to play any team under 14 years of age. Lineup, Dolly Jordan, ss; Petro Delmont, c; Brick Top Keeler, 1b; Proffessor, 2b; Peanut Dean, 3b; Lance Holland, 3b; Skinned Milk Connolly, rf; Bill Kid Mahoney, cf; Fat Brennan, lf.

Send all challenges to 64 Tyler street.

The Young Americans would like to challenge any team in this city under 13 years of age. The lineup is as follows: P. McGowan, c; M. O'Connell, p; J. O'Connell, 1b; M. McGuade, 2b; L. Tansy, 3b; Charles Sweeney, ss; Walter Ryan, lf; F. Gargan, rf; L. Robbins, cf.

The Lincoln challenge any team in the city under 18 years of age and would like games for May 21 and May 25. Would like to hear from the Maple A. C., the Highlands and the Cadet Juniors.

Send all challenges to Richard Damich, 4 Harceline street, Tel. 2624-13.

The Young Indians: Medcort, c; Grady, p; Adams, 1b; Magee, 2b; McParland, ss; Connelly, 3b; Conway, rf; Herby, lf; Melan, lf; Quigley, cf.

The Young Indians would like to play any team in the city under 12 years of age.

Send all challenges to Thomas Grady, 58 Elm street.

The Parham Stars want games. We will play any 15 year old team in the city. Send all games to Leo McCarty, 70 Willie street.

The N. Y. E. nine challenges the Andrews Street Stars to a game Saturday afternoon on their grounds in Pawtucketville for a quarter ball. They desire. Send challenges through this paper or to Alfred Malliot (Capt.) 221 Salem street, or by telephone to H. Hackett, 25 Gershon avenue, Pawtucketville. Come on, Andrews Street Stars. Don't be afraid.

The Butler A. C. baseball team has organized for the season and would like to play any team in or out of Lowell that hasn't lost foot like F. Quigley's team, from 17 to 18 years old. Our lineup:

Mills, c; Mauchan, p; Quigley, lf; McKinty, 2b; Murphy, ss; Mahoney, 3b; Holleran, lf; Ryan, cf; Gordon, rf; Spilliesey, sub. Send all challenges to James J. Mauchan, 43 Prospect street, City.

The Cowboys would like to play any team in the city under 14 years of age. We were playing under the name of the South Ends A. C. Now send all games to C. McDonough, 188 South street, or J. Sullivan, 19 Union street, or telephone 8418 or 2216. Would like a game May 21 and May 23, away from our home grounds. We will play any team, we are not squealers.

All baseball scores of the three leagues and all race returns are given by Innings on the largest blackboard in Lowell at Duffy's, 17 Market street. Full ticker service and all results promptly forwarded.

The Ketchel-Phyn beat by rounds will be given tonight at Duffy's, 17 Market street.

Baseball weather at last.

WRIGHT, FORMER TENNIS CHAMP., WILL HEAD AMERICAN TEAM

Beals C. Wright, the former national champion lawn tennis player, will head the American team of challengers for the Davis International challenge tennis cup this season, and the preliminary matches will be decided on the courts at Wimbledon, London. This was made known recently by the executive committee of the United States National Lawn Tennis association. In addition, the certainty of Americans playing against the British Isles team, representing the other challenging nation against the Australasian holders of the trophy, was assured by the acceptance of the guarantee of $2000 to defray the traveling expenses of the Americans to London. Raymond D. Little, who held a place on other international teams, has signified the possibility of his going, as have also the two Californians who met the Australasians last year, Maurice E. McLoughlin and Melville H. Long. The rules make a team of four players possible. As the matter stands at present, the opinion of experts is that Beals C. Wright, who has had an abundance of experience both in London and Australia, on international teams, McLoughlin and Long form the strongest combination that this country could send.

CAPT. CLARK EXPLAINS THE INJURIES TO HONUS WAGNER

PITTSBURGH, May 17.—Captain Fred Clarke of the Pittsburgh team last night issued a statement as to the cause and extent of Honus Wagner's injuries, which he said was warranted by many rumors and false reports in the matter.

"In the last game here with Brooklyn," said Clarke, "Wagner slid into third base and his shoulder came into contact with

AS TO DANGEROUS SIDEWALKS.

The proposition of Alderman Adams to have police officers report all sidewalks that are in bad condition is a good one. It will remove one great cause of accidents and also a cause of damage suits against the city with or without accidents. It is right that the parties responsible for dangerous sidewalks, whether the abutters or the city should be notified to put the same in safe condition for public travel. The same rule might apply to some streets such for example as East Merrimack street where the subterranean excavations left unfilled are liable to cave in at any time.

HANDWRITING IN SCHOOLS DEMORALIZED.

The schools of Lowell need a special writing master more at the present time than ever before. When the late Mr. Graves was the special instructor the handwriting was good in all the schools. After his time, new-fangled ideas were introduced and finally that travesty upon practical handwriting the "vertical" was installed. The officials who imposed that system upon a helpless public have a great deal to answer for. The "vertical" ran its course—or until the business people got a practical demonstration of its absurdity. Then it was thrown out and the Spencerian system or something like it restored. But the pupils found it difficult to change from the clumsy, slow and awkward style in which they had been drilled. The result is the handwriting of the schools has been demoralized and will remain so for a considerable time unless a special instructor be employed.

The school board should look around for an expert who has had a year's experience in Frogtown or anywhere else outside Lowell.

THE REPORT DISCREDITED.

Gradually the report of the legislative commission upon the high cost of living is being discredited. The verdict acquitting the tariff and the trusts for all responsibility for the high prices was too palpably absurd to be believed by intelligent people. The committee laid the blame upon the increase of the gold production in this country, but this is a cause that should operate universally in all countries and to a greater extent in some other countries where the increase in the production of gold has been even greater than in this. The report is largely made up of the statements and theories put forward by republican leaders and in all probability for campaign purposes. The fact that Senator Lodge utilized a portion of the report for a public document evidently for its political effect goes to prove that the report may have been framed up for this purpose, although there are some honest men on the commission whom it is difficult to believe guilty of any such business.

A BREACH OF CONFIDENCE.

Whether the confessions of Stenographer Kerby as to the evolution of the president's letter in the Ballinger case be true or false, one thing is certain, that Kerby has betrayed office secrets in a way that proves him unworthy of trust in any confidential capacity.

When a stenographer is admitted to a private office as confidential clerk or amanuensis, he is bound by all the laws of honor and common decency not to divulge the secret business of his office even if he happens to lose his position. Kerby is guilty of a piece of treachery, and this talk about a "troubled conscience" is all tommyrot. If he has a conscience it should have conjured him to silence even if he thought a wrong had been done. He forgets that in virtue of his position he was bound to secrecy.

Between his statement and that of the president, where they contradict each other, the public will not believe Kerby. The statement of the president in regard to the preparation of the letter exonerating Ballinger is quite reasonable and shows that Kerby's statement amounts to nothing.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL MOVEMENT REVERSED.

There is one thing at variance with the movement for the city beautiful that seems to have escaped the notice of those who have been advocating improvements in this line. We refer to the building of mills of from four to ten or twelve stories in height, fronting on some of the principal streets of our city. Part of Middlesex street has been seriously injured by having the end of a big mill store house come out to the sidewalk. A new mill is being built on East Merrimack street close to the edge of the street, and another is to be erected with one side fronting on Bridge street. Already the two mills stand opposite each other on Bridge street along the sidewalks. That is bad enough, but we are going to have more of it, and there is no telling how far this abuse is to be carried unless the city government steps in and insists that in all such cases either sufficient land shall be left fronting on the streets for the erection of stores or else that the mill building shall have an ornamental front that will offer some compensation for the extent of dead wall thus exhibited on some of our principal thoroughfares.

The city can seize land for park purposes, it can prevent the erection of buildings that are injurious, and unless we are greatly mistaken it could also prevent the erection of mill buildings out to the street front thus shutting off a large portion of the street for ordinary business purposes. These buildings injure any street in which they are located, and it is a very serious mistake that they are to be brought out fronting on East Merrimack street near the square and also on Bridge street.

There should be some committee of the city council to give its attention to such matters in order to protect our best streets from being forever despoiled in appearance. There has been a movement for the removal of the large billboards, but not all the billboards in the city would injure a street so much as one of these big mill gables fronting on the sidewalk. We simply call this matter to the attention of the city authorities in hopes that it shall not go on indefinitely. It is the city beautiful idea reversed.

SEEN AND HEARD

It was inadvertently stated in The Sun of May 12, that C. T. Pilote of Kenwood would be the valedictorian at the high school graduation exercises. It is C. T. Pilote of Pawtucketville who is slated for valedictorian honors. The name was right, but place of residence was wrong.

"I have always heard," remarked a visiting Englishwoman, "that tipping was not as common in America as with us; but when I find Americans tipping their own maids to button up their backs I have my doubts."

There isn't one chance in a thousand that the owner of this monkey and this hand organ wrote the sign that is attached to the monkey's back, but it is effective just the same.

"No feel da monk. Oliva him da fit."

And nobody does feed him, for certainly nobody wants to see a monkey throw a fit.

The old adage that one-half of the world knows not how the other half lives applies in a measure to the fact that there were sold by auction in New York city last week between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 worth of carpets and rugs, the product of a big carpet mill at Yonkers, N. Y. The sale was conducted on the upper floor of one of the big buildings along Fifth avenue in the wholesale district, and continued from Monday morning, when it opened, until Saturday evening at 7.30. It was attended by buyers from all over the country, who spent the entire day in the auction room, taking only a brief respite at noon time for luncheon. The luncheon was provided at the salesroom, so that the buyers did not have to leave the building, and consisted of a supply daily of 5000 sandwiches, thirty gallons of coffee, twenty gallons of consonme and 500 bottles of beer. On Friday fish was served to those who do not eat meat.

In something of a predicament this gray haired man found himself in a street car when a polite young man got up and offered him his seat. In the first place the old man would have preferred that the young man should not have done it, for the act indicated that to the young man the old man looked old, whereas the old man feels young, and sprightly and likes to fancy that he looks so.

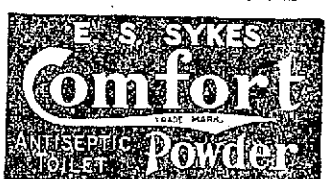

But he thanked the young man for the seat thus kindly offered to him, adding to his thanks an apologetic smile for what he was about to do, and then the old man turned and offered that seat which had just been vacated for him to a woman who stood beside him, and she took it.

So the young man's plans had miscarried slightly, and sadly the situation was a little confusing. Presently the young man retired to the end of the car and the old man remained standing as before.

The following very curious set of rules, which governed mill life in Manchester, N. H., in 1847, is clipped from the Manchester Union:

The Overseers are to be punctually in their rooms at the starting of the mill, and not be absent unnecessarily, during working hours. They are to see that all the employed in their rooms are in their places in due season, and keep a correct account of their time and work. They may grant leave of absence to those employed under them, when there are spare hands in the room, to supply their places; otherwise they are not to grant leave of absence except in cases of absolute necessity. THE PURCHASE OF A

MEANS

Bargains

We bought the entire Bankrupt Stock of The J. Brest Co., (Incorporated for $40,000) of Brockton, Mass., Furniture Dealers, for $8000 less than the goods cost.

Of course we can sell them for a good deal less than any dealer who paid full price for the same goods. And still make our profit.

If you are going to buy any FURNITURE, CARPETINGS, ART SQUARES, RANGES, GO-CARTS, ETC., this spring, you are extremely careless of your own interest if you don't buy here and now.

For you will certainly pay a Great Deal More elsewhere—They must charge you more or lose money—There is no doubt about it.

If a dealer pays $10 for an article he can't sell it for $10. He must add a percentage of profit on that article to pay store rent, help hire, feed of horses, cost of light, taxes, insurance, etc., etc.

We can sell the same article for less than $10 and make a profit. For the $8000 we saved on the first cost will cover all these expenses and leave us a good profit. In other words we made our profit out of what the creditors lost. We haven't got to make a profit out of you. And for a slight advance of five cents on each dollar's worth we will sell you the same goods by paying part cash and give you liberal terms on balance. You may buy Furniture elsewhere if you wish but we can't see why you should, when you can certainly save money by buying here.

chester Mills and the Merrimack Mills are required to observe the regulations of the room where they are employed. They are not to be absent from their work without consent, except in case of sickness, and then they are to send information to the overseer of the cause of their absence.

They are to be board in one of the boarding houses belonging to one of said corporations, unless permitted by the Agent to do otherwise, and conform to the regulations of the house where they board.

Neither of said corporations will employ anyone who is habitually drunk from public worship on the Sabbath, or who uses profane or indecent language in the Mills or elsewhere, or who uses ardent spirits as a beverage. All persons entering into the employment of either of said corporations agree to work twelve months; and to consider the usual Mill hours, as heretofore, a day's work.

All persons intending to leave the employment of either of said corporations are to give two weeks' notice of their intention to their overseer; and their engagement with such corporation is not considered fulfilled unless they comply with this regulation, in which case the person will receive an honorable discharge signed by the Agent, if requested.

Payments will be made monthly, including board and wages, which will be made up to and including the last Saturday of each month, and paid in the course of the following week.

Anyone who shall take from the Mills or the Yard any yarn, cloth, or other property belonging to either corporation will be prosecuted for every such offence.

These regulations are considered a part of the contract with all persons employed in the Manchester Mills and the Merrimack Mills.

Overseers hiring help are not allowed to set them at work until they produce a copy of these Regulations with a certificate, signed by the persons hired.

HENPECKED HUSBAND

I.

You are afraid to say that white is white.

If she contends that it is black or blue:

You eat none but the things she tells you to.

Professing that they give you keen delight:

You're always in the wrong, she in the right.

The clothes you wear are old, her clothes are new.

She makes a list of things that you may do,

You never dare to stay downtown at night.

Why is it that you hurry to obey?

When she gives orders to do thus or so?

Are you afraid that she may turn away?

And leave you languishing in lonely we?

Is love the thing that prompts you day by day

To hasten when she bids you come or go?

II.

You dare not join a club; you fear to buy

A necktie, save the one she recommends;

She forms your habits and selects your friends,

Without her leave you never bat an eye;

You try those things alone she bids you try,

Your every moment on her leave depends.

And when her anger on your head descends

You tremble like a man about to die.

Oh, is it love? For if it is, how sweet

Must be the fate of him that thus is bound!

How glorious to grovel at her feet

To deem her harsh command a lovely sound—

But probably her way is so complete

Because of some fool letter she has found.

Printed as Part of the Ballinger-Pinchot Record

WASHINGTON, May 17.—President Taft's explanation of the circumstances under which his letter exonerating Sec. Ballinger from the Glavis charges and dismissing L. R. Glavis was prepared and presented to Chairman Nelson of the investigating committee, was resumed here today. It was printed as a part of the record of the committee. Attorney Brandeis, counsel for Glavis, has laid great emphasis upon the president's letter of exoneration and dismissal, contending that the memorandum upon which it was based was prepared in Sec. Ballinger's department by Asst. Atty. Gen. Lawler. The president in a letter which he addressed to Senator Nelson last Sunday says he had the Lawler memorandum before him when he prepared his communication, but he also had notes and memoranda given him by the attorney general who had agreed with the president in the conclusion he had reached in the matter.

While Commissioner Dennett of the general land office was under cross examination last Saturday Mr. Brandeis indicated that he intended to raise the question why the Lawler memorandum had not been furnished together with the other papers bearing on the case which the president had sent to the committee. A carbon copy of the Lawler memorandum was furnished the committee by Atty. Gen. Wickersham coincident with the publication of the statement of Frederick Kerby, then a stenographer in Mr. Ballinger's office, that he had assisted Mr. Lawler in preparing the document and that it was similar in many respects to the president's letter. Mr. Wickersham sent an explanatory letter to the effect that the document had been overlooked in previous searches. The department filed it is expected that Mr. Brandeis will endeavor to locate the original memorandum.

Mr. Dennett was put under cross examination when the public hearing of the committee was resumed.

EVERYBODY IS WATCHING THE COMET

"JIM" JEFFRIES Is In Trouble With Boils Once More

BEN LOMOND, Cal., May 17.—Jim Jeffries' recurrent skin trouble is worrying both himself and his trainers and it is regarded as likely that the new breaking out may interfere to some extent with his training grind. The present boils of the retired champion are located on his upper left arm and between his shoulder blades. They are an irritating affliction and become painful if hard exercise is indulged in. But the experience the trainers had in treating the old boil on the fighter's back leads them to believe that they will be able to cope successfully with the fresh trouble and without causing much delay in his conditioning work. When told last night of the selection of Richmond as referee for the fight he expressed satisfaction over the choice made. He does not seem to be perturbed over the rumored trouble regarding the place for holding the coming battle.

MATCH CALLED OFF
LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 17.—The proposed match between Frank Conley, baseman champion, and Owen Moran was last night declared off. Conley insisted upon Moran making 125 pounds ring-side instead of 126 at six o'clock. The fighters could not agree.

MAY CHANGE FIGHT SCENE
SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—Among the disquieting rumors current today in quarters concerned with the Jeffries-Johnson championship boxing match is one that Thomas Williams, president of the California Jockey club who controls the Emeryville racetrack where it has been planned to build a mammoth arena for the coming battle, has withdrawn his support from the enterprise and has informed Promoter Rickard that he must find some other place in which to bring the fighters together. Williams refused today either to confirm or deny, saying that he did not care to discuss the matter at all.

Another report has it that Rickard and Glendon are negotiating with the people at Richmond who provided a meeting place for the recent fight between Ad Wolgast and Battling Nelson when the lightweights were barred from other trans-Pacific bay towns. The possibility of an enforced change of location for the holding of the contest has turned speculation to San Francisco itself and many profess belief the promoters have turned their attention to this city. It is pointed out that two excellent locations for staging the big battle are to be had within the limits of San Francisco where no hostility from the city officials would be encountered.

TESTING THE COURSES
ROCKLAND, Me., May 17.—The tests to determine the relative value as courses for the official acceptance trials of vessels for the United States navy off the Rockland, Provincetown and Delaware breakwater mile courses were begun today in the presence of the government trial boards. Three ships will be standardized on each course for the purpose of determining what effect different depths of water have on speed. The ships selected for the tests being the best in the navy. They are the big battleship Michigan, which was built at Camden, N. J., and the torpedo boat destroyers Reid and Pinckney, constructed at Bath. The destroyer Reid began the tests today.

TAIL OF COMET Now Extends Beyond Orbit of the Earth

TAUNTON, May 17.—The tail of Halley's comet now extends considerably beyond the earth's orbit and the earth will certainly pass through the luminous train of the sky wanderer tomorrow night. This is the conclusion of Rev. Joel Hastings Metcalf, a well-known astronomer of this city. He has discovered several comets in the past and the results of his observation have been accepted by the officials of the Harvard observatory. Mr. Metcalf observed Halley's comet this morning under ideal conditions. The sky was clear and the air was free from haze. The astronomer sighted the comet at 2:45 a. m., a short time before the head of the visitor peered above the horizon line. The observation showed that the tail of the comet is now 30 degrees in length or equal to the distance from the horizon to the zenith. The tail lay nearly parallel to the horizon. It was from eight to ten degrees broad, which means an actual width of about one million miles. Mr. Metcalf also reported that the tail was apparently straight and in process of broadening and has not yet reached its maximum width. The northern and western heads of the tail touched Gamma Pegasi and extended to 71 Aquila, possibly to Theta Aquila.

TEX RICKARD NAMED To Referee the Fight Between Jeffries and Johnson

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—"Tex" Rickard, associated with Jack Gleason in the promotion of the Jeffries-Johnson contest, who came into prominence four years ago when he engineered the Gans-Nelson fight at Goldfield, Nev., was selected yesterday to referee the fight between the two heavyweights on July 4, at Emeryville.

In accepting the place, however, the Nevada promoter made it clear that he will step aside if Jeffries and Johnson agree on another man.

This settlement came when it looked as if the meeting to select a referee would end in another deadlock, and after bitter words had passed between Johnson and Sam Berger, Jeffries' manager.

Johnson suggested Rickard, but Berger refused to consider the Nevada man, saying that he would not accept him on account of his inexperience. The colored champion declared he would stand for the three men he had mentioned, Jack Welch, Eddie Graney and Rickard.

Berger indignantly replied that he would leave the meeting. Then there came a further clash between Berger and Johnson, and ugly words were used by Johnson. Berger stood up, as if to leave.

"So you want Rickard, do you?" he queried of Johnson.

"Yes," was the answer.

"Well, all right," replied Berger, and the crowd broke into a cheer as it realized that one of the difficult points had been settled.

Rickard made the following statement:

"To straighten out this affair I am willing to act, provided my name is agreeable to all concerned. I don't want to act, and I hope that before the fight takes place Jeffries and Johnson will agree on another man, if they can come to terms I am perfectly willing to step down and out. But if they can reach no other agreement I will not back down."

In spite of the agreement there is a feeling of mistrust among those who attended the session that the last word has not been said and that the referee question again must be taken up.

It was rumored last night that, to give the impression that everything is settled.

MANY WOUNDED Collision Between Republicans and Police

MADRID, May 17.—A collision between republicans and gendarmes is reported from Valencia in connection with a manifestation in honor of the arrival there of the republican deputy Senor Seriano. The gendarmes charged and the republicans used knives and stones.

An officer was stabbed and killed and many persons were wounded. Fifty arrests were made and order was finally restored after the manifestants had sought refuge at the republican club.

Academy Buildings Reconstructed at Cost of $7,500,000 to Be Dedicated Soon

By CHARLES N. LURIE.

MAGNIFICENT as the United States Military academy has been in the past, it will be still more magnificent in the future. "It is the finest military institution in the world," said Lord Wolseley, the great British soldier, a few years ago, before the improvements in the buildings and grounds had reached their present stage of completion. "The new buildings and from the living rock, impresses itself on him. Art and Nature at West Point. The impression of fitness, of proportion and of beauty is not lessened when the visitor lands. He realizes that the splendor of the academy's site has been wisely utilized to lend beauty and impressiveness to the scene. The construction of the new buildings from the native rock of the vicinity is only an added touch of appropriateness and utility.

In June of the present year the new military chapel of the reconstructed West Point will be dedicated in the presence of an imposing group of civil, military and naval dignitaries. The chapel is the only one of the great new group of buildings about which dedication ceremonies are contemplated. It is intended to take the place of the historic old chapel, which has been in use since the thirties and is hallowed to the generations of West Pointers since that time by the service most conspicuous and important feature of the edifice is to be a magnificent stained glass memorial window, which is intended to serve the visitors to the academy and the cadets as a perpetual reminder of the high ideals inculcated at the school and the achievements of its graduates. All graduates of the institution and the descendants and families of students have been asked to contribute to the cost of this memorial window and others.

of the school. Other buildings were very badly needed. An appeal was made to congress for funds, and the house of representatives responded with an appropriation of $5,500,000, less by $1,000,000 than the amount requested by the military men, and only about half of the sum spent in the reconstruction of the Naval academy at Annapolis. Later appropriations raised the total of $7,500,000, and this has been spent in providing new buildings, roads, etc., for West Point.

which the heritage of past days plays no part." It is gratifying to learn that Colonel Larned's views have prevailed. Some of the New Buildings. For more than two years the architects worked over the plans for the reconstructed West Point. Every point of the proposed alterations was subjected to the close scrutiny of men thoroughly familiar with the old West Point and its natural surroundings, and nothing that would be inharmonious with the appliances in every department place the college on the highest level of military instructional institutions," said Lord Kitchener the other day, shortly after his visit to West Point. He recommends the establishment in Australia of a military academy similar to West Point. To the testimony of these two military authorities of Great Britain must be added that of other foreigners who have seen West Point, some of them with the idea of recommending to their respective governments the adoption of the system and methods that have made West Point the world's best military school.

Nature made West Point imposing and beautiful, and man has made the place magnificent. To the thousands who annually sail up the Hudson to the historic site of the Military academy the river presents a continual succession of beautiful pictures. By the time the bow of the steamer has passed Anthony's Nose, Hook mountain and Sugar Loaf the eye of the traveler has been regaled with scenes unsurpassed elsewhere, not even on the Rhine. As Storm King and Cro Neck, above West Point, round into view the traveler's attention is distracted from the natural beauties of the river by the buildings of the academy, and it is then that their beautifully proportioned architecture, rising Possibly nowhere else on earth can so splendid a view be obtained as that looking north from the academy grounds over the upper stretches of the Hudson and over Constitution Island, lying in the middle of the stream just above the academy. Looking at the highlands of the Hudson dimming in the distance, one can understand the reverence and affection for the river scenery felt and described by Cooper, Irving and other writers and the delight expressed in their representation on canvas by some of our most famous painters.

lies within its walls and the memorial tablets that adorn it. The old chapel will not be demolished, but will be taken apart carefully, stone by stone, to be rebuilt in the cemetery at the Military academy, where it will serve as a mortuary chapel. The new chapel is considered the most noble of the new buildings on the academy grounds. It stands on the hillside below Fort Putnam and commands an extensive landscape. It is medieval in design, with a tall square tower having four gable mullioned windows on each side. The Improvements Cost $7,500,000. Several years ago the military authorities, especially those connected with the administration of the academy, demonstrated to the country at large that the buildings at West Point had been outgrown and had outlived their usefulness. Some of them had been in constant and active use for almost seventy-five years. They were historic, of course, and pervaded with the sentiment that comes of long association with names famous in the nation's history, but they provided only cramped quarters for the work

The keynote of the alterations is found in the words of the report to congress made by Colonel Charles W. Larned, professor of drawing at the academy, who helped in the drawing of the plans and the making of the estimates. Colonel Larned said: "It is not desirable that any scheme should attempt to sweep the field clean and destroy architectural associations made honorable by generations of great men, while it is of the highest importance to preserve intact the structural sentiment which gives character and individuality to the academy. It would be a very great pity to make such an institution the subject of an architectural thesis in general plan was given a place. Among the new buildings are the cavalry and artillery barracks, artillery gun shed, riding hall, cadet headquarters and cadet store, post headquarters, cadet barracks, quartermaster and commissary storehouse and shops, officers' quarters, chapel, post exchange, gymnasium and elevator. The last named is intended to afford better transportation of persons and baggage from the railroad station, from which access now is gained to the academy by a steep and winding road. A new hotel for the accommodation of visitors to West Point was also planned. Some idea of the extent and cost of the new buildings and other improvements may be gathered from the following table, which gives the approximate amounts expended for the various items of work:

memory of Colonel Sylvanus Thayer, to whom, as "the father of the Military academy," high honor is paid by every West Pointer. Colonel Thayer was a Massachusetts man who was graduated from West Point in 1808 and served in the second war with Great Britain as chief engineer of the northern army. From the time of the establishment of the Military academy, in 1802, by act of congress, it had been permitted to fall into a shocking condition of neglect. Under the able superintendency of Colonel Thayer, however, beginning in 1817, the academy took on a new lease of life, and it has advanced steadily since that time to the position it now occupies. Colonel Hugh L. Scott, who was Kitchener's host at West Point, is the present superintendent of the academy, but General Thomas H. Barry has been nominated for the position.

How Will You Have Your Hippo?

Big African Beast Expected to Figure Soon on American Bills of Fare.

The hippo is a fearsome beast (The one that Teddy shot). But hippo meat we'll all soon eat. Cooked in a hippo pot.

From the Author's "Anti-Deer Trust Rhymes."

THAT is, we shall eat hippopotamus if the hopes and aspirations of Congressman Broussard of Louisiana meet with fulfillment. Broussard is the man who wants to bring the hippopotamus from Africa—not personally, of course—so that we may eat him. As a move in that direction he requests the government to spend $250,000 to investigate the prices of deer and other necessities for the moving of the hippopotamus.

When the preliminary work is finished and it is ascertained that Mr. and Mrs. Hippo could find a happy home in Louisiana and Florida and elsewhere and raise a large and interesting family there the next step will be the purchase of some sample specimens for about $10,000 apiece. After that, in the fullness of the years, if most of us are not too dead to care very much about anything to eat or if the high prices of animal food haven't made vegetarians of us all we can all get busy with our knives and forks and eat hippo steak and hippo chops and hippo other things.

There seems to be no doubt that the hippopotamus makes good eating. The natives in Africa eat hippopotamus flesh whenever they get a chance, and white men who have tried it declare that it is tasty and nutritious, provided the animal from which it is cut is not too old. With age the hippo loses much of his flavor and all of his tenderness, and only dire need would lead any one to consider him edible. "I am able to speak from the point of view of one who knows the practical side of the hippopotamus," recently said Captain Fritz Duquesno, the famous Boer soldier and scout, when asked about the desirability of the hippopotamus as food. "I was born and bred among these animals. I probably would have been dead myself but for the hippopotamus, for it was the food upon which I subsisted all during my boyhood. The hippo can be easily domesticated. It is as gentle as a lamb in all the zoo. It can be led about with a halter. A young hippo will take milk from a baby's bottle."

Probably, Fritz, but it would have to be a bigger bottle than any now in use in the United States. Also the possibility of leading a young hippo about with a piece of string is open to question. Granted, however, that the hippopotamus is good for eating by humans, where is he to get his own provender? "That's easy," say the enthusiastic friends of the big river horse. "In the swamps and marshes of the southern states, of course." And in the domestication here of the hippopotamus they profess to find the solution of a much vexed problem, the choking up of the rivers of the southern states by the hyacinth that has so greatly impaired the value of the streams in recent years. The federal and state governments' fights against the water hyacinth have been defeated by the rapidity with which these noxious plants propagate and spread. But let the hippopotamus loose on the hyacinth.

Increasing value of land formerly used for grazing and now turned over to agricultural uses. With the decrease in the amount of grazing land the supply of cattle becomes smaller and the prices of beef cattle go up. Of course they take the prices of other food animals with them, as the people turn to the latter for substitutes for beef. The watery lands on which it is proposed to raise hippopotamus are worthless for any other purpose. The importation of hippopotamus is taken seriously by government scientists, who see in it one source of relief for the high prices of meat. Probably the most enthusiastic of these men is Professor W. N. Irwin of the bureau of plant industry in the department of agriculture, who says: "We should be large gainers by using the flesh of the hippo—and I like to say hippo instead of the full name, because it is shorter, and somewhat more euphonious—because for one thing tuberculosis has never been found in the animal. Our beef and pork animals in this country at this time present a very serious menace to human health. In his habits the animal is clean, quiet, herbivorous. He is a pachyderm in common with the horse, the swine, the elephant and the rhinoceros.

"I have had fine specimens of hippo meat sent to me from Africa, and, although it had been many weeks on the way, had been quickly and rudely preserved, it was certainly very palatable—what you might call good eating, even though it was something to which you were not accustomed. There are some who must cultivate an appetite for oysters and for many different kinds of food. It may be that many would have to get used to hippo meat to like it. But lifted under right conditions and cooked properly it is not only good, but it is really a delicacy. In flavor it is a blend between good beef and turkey. Sometimes one might say it is a combination of beef and fine sweet pork."

Bringing the hippopotamus to this country as a source of food would only be in line with other governmental activities in that direction. Almost since the time of the establishment of the department of agriculture scientists and investigators have ransacked the earth in their endeavors to find new varieties of plants for propagation in this country. Some of the government's efforts in this direction have been highly successful, and there is no reason why animals from other countries should not flourish here. Contrary to general belief, the hippopotamus is not essentially a tropical animal, although he is found mainly in tropical Africa.

Considering the enormous amount of good meat the hippo will make when he is properly cut up, the quantity of food available for him in our southland and the ease with which he may be reared here, he certainly looks like a good proposition. Great Britain has eaten the Australian kangaroo and likes him, horse-flesh is a staple food in continental Europe, and the people of Central America eat the llard. Why cannot Americans absorb the hippopotamus? WILLIAM HENDERSON.

say the hippo's advocates, and in a short time he will turn the destructive flower, root and branch, into meat. That is where the hippo is expected to score his greatest success. In the meat question "it is a condition and not a theory that confronts us," as the late Governor Cleveland once said, speaking on another topic. Meat is dear, has been getting dearer for years and threatens to become still dearer. The cause of the high prices is variously stated, but one factor that certainly enters into the problem is the

ONE MAN KILLED

In a Drunken Row in Fall River Following a Wedding

FALL RIVER, May 17.—A drunken row in which three wedding guests took part, occurred in this city at 1.30 this morning, resulting in the death of Henry Bonnoyer, aged 28, and the subsequent arrest of his two companions on manslaughter charges, furnishing a tragic ending to the wedding party.

Louis Gibeau, 27, and Wilfred St. Martin, 28, were placed under arrest, and upon arraignment before Judge McDonough in the district court, this morning, continuances were obtained by the government, surety in the sum of $2500 each being ordered.

ROASTED TO DEATH

PORTLAND, Ore., May 17.—The famous man-monkey, "Charles the First," was roasted to death by the radiator in a baggage car on the Northern Pacific railroad coming from Seattle to Portland yesterday. He had been appearing on a western circuit, and was booked for nearly one hundred weeks ahead at $750 a week.

Charles sat up in the smoker with other vaudeville players until 6 a. m., when his owner, Charles Judge, put him to bed in his cage in the baggage car. The cage stood against a radiator, and during the night the steam was turned on. When Portland was reached it was found that the monkey was dead. There were evidences in the cage of his attempts to attract attention.

CLOSED DOOR IN PERSIA

ST. PETERSBURG, May 17.—Count von Pourtales, the German ambassador at St. Petersburg, has made representations to the government in reference to the Anglo-Russian note, which demands that Persia shall not grant strategic railroad concessions to, nor negotiate a loan with, a third power, thus impairing the security of earlier Anglo-Russian loans.

It is learned at the foreign office that Russia and Great Britain will refuse to admit the political interests of a third power in Persia. The situation is regarded here as a possible prelude to another Moroccan affair, and the Russian newspapers strike an alarmist note.

STREET RAILWAYS

Must Spend 10 Per Cent of Capital Within Two Years

BOSTON, May 17.—The bill providing that street railway companies shall expend 10 per cent of their capital within two years after receiving certificates, and that roads shall be completed within four years, was passed to a third reading in the house yesterday.

The battle over the measure started when Representative James H. Mellen of Worcester raised a point of order that it violates joint rules 8 and 9. These provide that bills affecting the railroad companies shall be advertised before the introduction.

through any city of more than 30,000 inhabitants unless it traversed a sub-way.

Representative Wolcott of Milton, chairman of the committee on street railways, offered a further amendment that nothing in the bill should apply to the Boston Bicycle railroad.

Representative Mellen moved that the bill be referred to the next legislature. He denounced it as simply an attempt on the part of the big transportation companies to "choke out" competition. Its effect would be, he maintained, to put out of business any small company which might secure a charter and is unable to build for a short time.

Representative Parks of Fall River, declared that this is a good thing and said that the bill would tend to discourage promoters who secure charters and then refuse to build, seeking on the other hand to force existing companies to purchase their franchises.

The house then killed the Keene amendment and adopted the Wolcott proposition, after which it killed the Mellen motion to refer to the legislature of 1911 on a vote of 80 to 110.

HYDE TO STUDY

Convicted Doctor to Keep up Work

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 17.—While Dr. C. C. Hyde who was convicted here yesterday of the murder of Col. Thomas Swope is in jail he is not going to permit his medical mind to become rusty. Today the physician had one of his attorneys bring him a score of texts from his office. He will study them regularly each day, he says. Dr. Hyde was known among the physicians as a serious student and was well abreast of the times in medicine and surgery. It was largely in recognition of his ability, it is said, that he was elected president of the Jackson County Medical society last fall.

Hyde has become popular with the prisoners at the jail. He is an honorary member of the "mooch court" by virtue of having paid a dollar bail when the regular cost is but fifty cents. The doctor also plays cards with the inmates.

GREAT DEMAND

For Telescopes and Opera Glasses

NEW YORK, May 17.—Whether this mundane orb is going to be swished tomorrow night by that much discussed celestial vagrant, Halley's comet, which rambles around in space and enters the earth's backyard every seventy-five years for a visit, depends entirely upon the length of the wanderer's tail, and this astral visitor has a happy and elusive faculty of putting on and dropping off a 25,000,000 mile appendage all within a day or two.

Whether this Halley's visitor will be accompanied with all his lengthy trailing appendage tomorrow night is just what millions of people will sit up to see since the learned astronomers don't seem to agree.

Prof. S. C. Mitchell of the astronomical department of Columbia college gives the cheering news that the earth will pass through the comet's tail 14,000,000 miles from the head. Meanwhile the demand for telescopes and opera glasses is growing apace to watch for the threatened collision.

EX-CHAMPION GANS

TO WAGE LIFE AND DEATH STRUGGLE

PRESCOTT, Ariz., May 17.—Joe Gans, former lightweight champion, passed through here last night on his way to Phoenix where he will wage a life and death struggle against consumption. Gans was gaunt and weak but game.

"It has hit me several hard wallops," he whispered to friends who visited him in his car, "but I am not knocked out yet."

GEN. SPRAGUE DEAD
WORCESTER, May 17.—The career of General A. B. Sprague as a soldier, politician, city official and business man closed today, death coming after an illness of two weeks.

General Sprague was born in Ware in 1832 and was mustered out of service in the Civil war as a brevet brigadier-general of volunteers.

He served the city in both branches of the city council and as mayor and has been sheriff of Worcester county and a collector of internal revenue. At the time of his death he was president of the Worcester Electric Light Co. and the Mechanics Savings bank.

ATTORNEY GENERAL SUPREME COURT

Takes Up Charges of Alleged "Graft" in Middlesex Co. Decided Against Napoleon Rivet Convicted of Murder

BOSTON, May 17.—Attorney General Malone told certain citizens of Middlesex county today that if they would file a formal petition he would grant a public hearing on the question of allowing the use of his name for an investigation of the finances of the county by the supreme court.

A number of the taxpayers of the county have filed charges against the county commissioners, the sheriff and several other county officials alleging mismanagement in the business of the county. They appeared before the attorney general today to request him to permit the use of his name, according to the provisions in such cases but the attorney general desires to hear more evidence not only on the side of the petitioners but of the respondents before taking further action.

PLEAD NOT GUILTY

Prominent Business Men Accused of Attempt to Bribe

WORCESTER, May 17.—Two prominent business men, John B. Simard, president of the Day State Coal company and Eli Bouchard, resident agent for an insurance company, pleaded not guilty in the municipal court today to charges of attempting to bribe the license commissioners in connection with the issuing of liquor licenses. Simard was arrested last night while Bouchard was taken into custody today and both were released upon furnishing $3000 bail.

COWLEY ESTATE SUED

Stella Smith Would Recover for Her Services

Did Copying and Stenographic Work for Late Judge Cowley and Received Promissory Note —Verdict of $372.60 Against Rev. Panos Ginieres

The jury in the case of Ada Newell vs. Fitchburg street railway returned a verdict of $3000 for the plaintiff.

Verdict in Auto Case
The jury in the case of Kate Holland Rev. Panos Ginieres this morning returned a verdict of $372.60 for the plaintiff. The defendant ran into Mrs. Holland on Broadway while learning to run his auto. The machine was not registered at the time and Mr. Ginieres had not received a license as a chauffeur.

Case Against Cowley
The case of Stella Smith vs. the estate of the late Judge Charles Cowley went to trial this forenoon. McIntire & Wilson appearing for the estate and Burke and Leggett for the plaintiff.

The plaintiff sues to receive $1636 on a promissory note dated Jan. 4, 1908, payable six months after date with interest at 6 per cent. Miss Smith testified that the note was given her in payment for services as stenographer during a period of over four years and that no part of the note had been paid. She stated that she was to receive $400 a year for her services. The acquaintance between them began when she had some litigation with the Daughters of Veterans which extended over a number of years.

On cross-examination Mr. Wilson produced some 30 letters all identified by Miss Wilson, which she wrote to Judge Cowley while she was residing in N. Acton. A letter dated Feb. 9, 1905, read in part, as follows:

"My dear, dear Judge: I am so happy this afternoon knowing what a dear good friend you are. I never do enough for you and I hope you will let me do everything in my power to help you. I am never so happy as years. About 14 months before the murder, the deceased, at the instigation of the defendant, took out a policy of insurance for $1000 on his life, payable to his heirs or legal representatives. About a month after the policy was issued it was assigned to the defendant. The expenses of taking out the policy and the first and second premiums thereon, which were all that had become due and payable at the time of the death of the insured, had been paid by the defendant. The government claimed that the defendant's motive for the crime was his intention to collect the amount of the policy, which had been pledged to him as collateral for a debt owed by Galloux. The court holds there was no error on the part of the trial justices in allowing the district attorney to prove that Rivet, who was a foreigner, understood what a life insurance policy meant.

The court holds the trial justices properly excluded evidence offered by the defense to the effect that on one occasion late in the fall previous to the murder, Galloux had been found in one Thigle's shop dead drunk, that he frequently was in fights when intoxicated and frequently was seen with his face battered as a result of some fracas he had been in, and that he had been seen within a year before his death with a swollen face, black eyes and battered face generally. Defendant's counsel disclaimed having evidence that Rivet knew of the character of the deceased or of any intention to show that the killing was done in self defense. The court holds the doing of an act cannot be proved by evidence that from the habits of a person he would be apt to do it.

6 O'CLOCK FORTUNE OF $500,000

Hangs on Memory of Mill Girl's Mother

MILLBURY, May 17.—Because her mother cannot remember the Christian name of her uncle Minard, Dora Renault, a 19 year old girl of this town, believes she is barred from a fortune of half a million dollars.

Ten years ago the uncle left Lowell to seek his fortune in the west, and before he left he told Dora's mother, who was Miss Julie Minard before her marriage, that he was going to make good for the sake of the little grandchild.

On the eve of his departure he told Mrs. Renault that he would give all he had to her child. None of the family knew how the world was using Minard in the west, though there were frequent letters to Mrs. Renault. In the last letter Minard said that he was prospering, but made no mention of the amount of his fortune. He concluded his letter by saying: "And remember, Julie, I intend to keep my promise made years ago, and leave all I have to little Dora."

Some weeks ago Mrs. Renault received news of his death, and also a communication from his lawyer that if she could prove that she is the woman in question, and that Minard was her uncle, her daughter would receive the fortune, which amounted to half a million dollars.

Mrs. Renault cannot remember the Christian name of her uncle, cannot remember where he was born, nor when, nor any of the details of his life. Her father's family was very large, and they were continually moving about through the different mill towns in Massachusetts. All the members of the family were lazy about their exact names, and even the parents were not sure of calling the uncle Jean, or Leon, or Gaston, or whatever the name might be, he was always called by the French diminutive of his surname, Minard, Minnie. He signed all his letters by this name, and that is the only one by which he was known to his friends.

So Dora drives all thoughts of Parisian millinery from her and sensibly continues her work in the mill in this town, until, as she says, she is really quite sure that it is not all a dream. And working beside her is a young man, Louis Rineau, and he is the only one in the town who hopes that Mrs. Renault will not remember. For he is engaged to Dora, and in this great fortune he sees a barrier mounting between them, and he is accordingly despondent.

He is quite willing to go on working in the mill until they can afford to marry, and he does not consider the fortune the blessing that the Nameless Minard meant it to be.

CLOSED BY STRIKE

BOSTON, May 17.—The shoe factory of the Bartels-Thelen Co. in Chelsea was closed today because of a strike of employees as a protest against the discharge of the foreman of the finishing department. About 150 are idle.

May Cost Girl a Rich Home

NEW YORK, May 17.—The prediction for moving picture shows has brought Emma Frey, thirteen years old, face to face with the decision of her life. Judge Parker, in the Brooklyn Children's court, yesterday gave her until Friday to decide whether she would return to the home of her wealthy foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Milner, of No. 103 Walworth street, or be committed to an institution.

"You are right on the turning point of going to heaven or hell," was the way Judge Parker put it in telling the girl this decision.

Emma Frey is one of the most interesting problems ever brought into the children's court in Brooklyn. Her story was put before Judge Parker yesterday by her foster brother, W. C. Milner, who appeared for her parents.

Eleven years ago the Milners, who are wealthy, took into their home a little girl, who was then two years old. Her father was dead and her mother had other children to support. She was welcomed into the family as if she had been born into it, and has since had every care, luxury and attention.

The girl proved to be a bright one in her studies, and last year was graduated from the public schools. Mrs. Milner was ready to send her to a private school to round out her education, but Emma frowned and said she had had enough of books.

She began to show her mania for moving picture shows some months ago. She would remain at home until nearly 8 o'clock and then put on her best gown and hat and saunter to her room, and sit there for hours.

Generally she did not get home until 11 o'clock, and her foster parents began to object. She resented this, and a few days ago she began to look for work, telling her friends that as soon as she found a job she would run away from home. This forced the Milners to have her brought into court.

"We have an automobile and three horses which are at Emma's disposal if she cares to amuse herself with them," said her foster brother yesterday.

Whatever Emma's decision she will have to be a regular patient of the children's court, for she is committed to an institution she obviously can't attend and Judge Parker will make her return to her foster parents coincident with her agreement that she will permit them to arrange her amusements.

CONVICTS MISSING

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 17.—Dr. Burns, state physician of mines, returned last night from Lucie, where a fire destroyed a prison stockade. He said "Twenty-seven convicts are missing; there is no doubt they are dead. The three white convicts escaped. The stockade was burned by a single leader who attempted some time ago to burn the place. Two of these were shot down by the guards. It is believed that most of the convicts were sleeping when the fire alarm was turned in and a stampede that followed resulted in the deaths."

STRIKERS ARE QUIET

HANNIBAL, Mo., May 17.—The arrival today of four companies of state militia and a heavy rainfall quieted the striking workmen at the plant of the Atlas Portland Cement Co. at Olason, four miles from here, where a riot was threatened yesterday.

Children Resent Attack on Chum

NEW YORK, May 17.—Two hundred small boys and girls whose anger was aroused because Tommy Mahoney, one of their playmates, was kicked and beaten, yesterday afternoon hurled sticks and stones at Anthony Smolinsky, a sexton of the Polish church, No. 424 East One Hundred and Fifty-sixth street, when he was arrested for alleged felonious assault on the lad.

With a number of boy friends Tommy was making and remaking a series of miniature mountain ranges in a pile of dirt on a vacant lot adjoining the Polish school, which is situated in the rear of the church.

"Get out of there!" shouted the sexton, who said the land was church property.

"Go chase yourself," yelled one of the lads. "We're makin' Pike's Peak now, and don't want to be bothered."

Smolinsky charged upon them, but they retreated safely, all but Tommy. He was kicked, beaten and left in a critical condition on the sidewalk.

Scores of children had gathered when an ambulance arrived from the Lehighon hospital. From their litter the child was lifted into the vehicle, and the children began to cry for vengeance, and ran toward the church. Just then two policemen came out with Smolinsky. With loud cries the children circled round him, and pelted him with stones, sticks and dirt. Some of the missiles struck the policemen, who ran through the line of children with their prisoners.

The rioting children followed. The sexton was thoroughly alarmed, and with the policemen soon outdistanced the child-mob. Smolinsky was pale and shakily with the blows taken into the Manhattan police station. He is being held without bail.

Tommy is eleven years old, and lives with his parents at No. 689 Melrose avenue. He and other children in the neighborhood had for some time used the vacant lot as a playground, although the sexton is said to have made frequent objections.

VETOED BY GOVERNOR

BOSTON, May 17.—In his second veto message which Gov. Francis sent to the legislature today the governor is vetoing the bill which would allow the members of the state police to be returned without approval. The governor believes that such a measure would establish an unwelcome precedent for other state employees.

HEAD BUMPING FATAL

DANVILLE, Ill., May 17.—Philip Saunders, aged 11, died here recently from concussion of the brain, the result of a bumping he received at school two days ago. Saunders and Tad Forbes, of the same age, were marching into the school room when Forbes accidentally bumped his head against that of Saunders.

The boy became unconscious at once and did not regain his senses. Young Forbes is also in a serious condition.

DEATHS

EEZZO.—Mrs. Gertrude Ezze, aged 27 years, died yesterday afternoon at her home in East Hillerlen. Besides her husband, James Ezze, she leaves a mother, Mrs. Emily Riley, and one sister and one brother, Ellen and Edward of North Hillerlen.

FUNERAL NOTICE

EEZZO.—The funeral of Mrs. Gertrude Ezze will take place tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock from her home in East Hillerlen. Burial will be in the Catholic cemetery, Lowell. P. H. Munley & Sons in charge.

MORSE PETITION

Signed by Son of President Taft

NEW HAVEN, May 17.—Robert Alphonso Taft, son of the president, has signed the petition for the release of Charles W. Morse from the Federal prison at Atlanta. The petition is addressed to President Taft, and the son therefore is asking his father to free the imprisoned father of Erwin Morse, who is young Taft's classmate at Yale.

Robert Taft placed his signature to the petition along with all the other members of the senior class, and without consulting his father or even telling him about it. Young Morse is very popular with his classmates, and not once refused to sign. The petition was circulated by Edward C. Roberts, of Hartford, son of a former governor of Connecticut, and a close friend of young Morse and Taft, Jr.

Interesting in this connection is the fact that President Taft will be here soon to see his son and young Morse to see their sheepskins at the Yale commencement. There is a report that young Taft will make a personal appeal to his father at that time in behalf of his friend Morse.

Despatches from Washington tell of a new setback in the Morse battle for freedom. The supreme court yesterday denied the motion of Martin W. Littleton, representing the convicted banker, for leave to file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. This seems to remove the last hope of a new trial, and unless the president pardons him, Morse must serve out his 15 year sentence.

Mrs. Morse left Washington a few days ago, after getting the signatures of 50 representatives and senators to the petition for her husband's pardon. It is understood the petition has more than 100,000 names. Mrs. Morse has gone to Atlanta to consult with her husband.

IS HELD IN $2500

Woman in State of Collapse

MILLVILLE, N. J., May 17.—The police continued digging yesterday in the cellar and around the outside of the principal building on Mrs. Elizabeth Ashmead's alleged "baby farm." Late yesterday parties believed to be charred human bones were found in a hole near the back door. They were placed in the hands of the coroner for microscopic examination.

Every foot of the property used by Mrs. Ashmead will be excavated. Although the revelations so far are not as startling as anticipated, the police are as energetic in the investigation as when it began.

Mrs. Ashmead is still in prison, in default of $2,500 bail. She is in a state of hysteria, and declares she is innocent of wrongdoing. She denies the charges made against her by her daughter, Mrs. Grace Ashmead Standford.

A young couple who said they were "Mr. and Mrs. C. T. L. Knowles" of New York, among the six persons arrested on the "farm," were released on bail yesterday. Knowles' brother is said to be a high official of the Du Pont Powder company. The brother arrived here yesterday and furnished the security, giving two $1,000 bank notes. The authorities believe the young man is of a wealthy family and will forfeit bail.

Examination of Mrs. Ashmead and witnesses began yesterday. Before Mayor Smith, Judge William Pitkin, treasurer of Cumberland county, will conduct the inquiry.

Relatives of Mrs. Ashmead are said to have refused their assistance. Howard Ashmead is said to be among those who have left her to fight alone.

PROHIBITION QUESTION

DENVER, Colo., May 17.—Important questions are being decided by voters of Denver at the municipal election today, the prohibition problem and the granting of a twenty year franchise to the Denver Union Water Co. being the principal features.

Three solutions of the prohibition problem are offered the voters. First, the city was prohibition; second, high license and the restriction of the number of saloons to one for every 700 inhabitants; third, continuance of present conditions—a $600 annual license fee and no restriction on the number of saloons.

CREDIT MEN MEET

NEW ORLEANS, May 17.—More than 1,000 delegates are expected from all over the country at attendance on the annual convention of the National Credit Men's association beginning its sessions here today. Recommendations that a fund be raised by the association for the suppression and prosecution of fraud will be one of the most important matters under consideration. P. H. McAdoo is president.

FEDERATION OF ARTS

WASHINGTON, May 17.—With an address of welcome by Franklin McVeagh, the secretary of the treasury, the first annual convention of the American Federation of Arts opened here today for a three days session.

This organization, formed less a year ago for the purpose of uniting others of improving municipal and national art affairs, is a delicate body, numbering in its ninety chapters such organizations as the Museum of Fine Arts and the Metropolitan Improvement League of Boston, the Corporation of Art, Washington; the American Fine Arts society, New York; the Art Institute of Chicago; the University of Pennsylvania, and many other great educational institutions.

A wide range of interesting papers will be read before the convention by persons prominent in the movement for the betterment of civic art.

NEW DIRECTORS CHOSEN

NEW YORK, May 17.—James Deshler and Eliza S. Williams were elected directors of the United States Rubber Co. at the stockholders meeting in New Brunswick today to succeed W. J. Moore and J. L. Watson, Jr. Following the election of the directors there was a protest lodged by six stockholders against the acceptance of President Colby's report as regards the action of the syndicate in purchasing the stock of the Revco Rubber Co.

A new season J. L. Watson, Jr., as treasurer will be chosen at a meeting of the board on Friday.

MILK INVESTIGATION

Can be Kept Sweet Three Weeks, Says C. H. Hood

BOSTON, May 17.—"We have not obtained our whole supply of milk from New York and Vermont in the past because we have been slow," declared C. H. Hood, member of a large contracting firm in Boston, in continuing his testimony before the milk investigating committee of the legislature today. "When we are through with this investigation," he added, "we shall put in a lot of work and study to find where we can obtain milk the cheapest."

He said that he was obtaining milk now from a greater distance than ordinarily and getting it cheaper, including the additional transportation, than the price the producers demand.

Clean milk, according to Mr. Hood, can be kept sweet three weeks or more. His company is now delivering milk sixty hours old when it reaches the consumer. He testified that rather than raise the price of milk last winter his company lost about $40,000 and he did not care to raise the price now because his company would lose many customers. He criticized the railroad transportation facilities, saying they were not arranged justly or fairly for the contractors and producers.

The New York system of inspecting dairies, he said, was superior to that in vogue in New England and the New York inspectors give the farmers valuable assistance which is not given by the New England men.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Man Killed Wife and Ended His Own Life

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Frank Fenton, sporting man, yesterday shot and mortally wounded his wife, Virginia, at the threshold of her mother's home in New York avenue, and then turning the revolver on himself, blew out his brains. Mrs. Fenton died in the Emergency hospital. Jealousy prompted the deed.

Fenton was known at race tracks throughout the country, and Mrs. Fenton, who was 28 years old, is best remembered as a member of the presidential colony at Oyster Bay during 1902 and 1908, when as the wife of a Secret Service Operator, Richard H. Taylor, she was known as "The Belle of Oyster Bay."

Taylor, who divorced her, was one of the secret service men who, in the early years of Roosevelt's administration, was detailed to guard the president. After the divorce, about five years ago, the former Mrs. Taylor married Fenton, who recently had been bankrupt. Financially, as a result of a cleaning out he suffered at Jacksonville.

He returned to Washington within two or three days, and got a room at No. 302 Twelfth street, this city. Mrs.

Fenton was then staying with her mother, Mrs. Philip Riley. It is known that Fenton and his wife had not been getting on well together recently. In fact, there are good reasons for the statement that Mrs. Fenton had broken up finally with her husband and that she was looking forward to a divorce from him in order that she might marry her former husband, who is said never to have lost his love for her. He never forgot her as "The Belle of Oyster Bay."

Fenton, who had borrowed money from a newspaper correspondent last Saturday, appeared again yesterday after a visit to New York and left his friend a few minutes before two o'clock, saying he was going to keep an appointment with his wife.

It is assumed that the two met and that Mrs. Fenton told her husband she was through with him. Acquaintances saw them walking in New York avenue about half past two yesterday afternoon and they seemed to be talking excitedly. At two-thirty they reached the house at No. 1120 New York avenue. Mrs. Fenton preceded her husband up the steps. He followed her into the house, and almost immediately the shots were fired.

MEN SERIOUSLY INJURED

WOONSOCKET, R. I., May 17.—A slaging in the interior of the new church of the Holy Family, South Main street, fell under the weight of three since workers at 11:30 this morning. All were seriously injured in the fall of 20 feet and were taken to the Woonsocket hospital. Donato Dintico, aged 28, of Cambridge, fractured a right rib and was injured internally. Antonio Nuteh, aged 31, of Cambridge, Mass., had his left foot fractured. Marshall Davison, aged 24, of New Britain, Conn., foreman and member of a company of contractors, the Bianconi Co. stucco workers of East Cambridge, received a fracture of the right ankle.

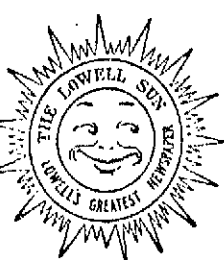

DAMAGES OF ONE CENT

LOUISVILLE, May 17.—After a hard-fought legal battle Ferdinand Rapp, a collector for a clothing house, was awarded a verdict of one cent and costs against J. H. Dunlap, whose bulldog had attacked him. The complaint was that the Dunlaps kept the bulldog for the specific purpose of standing between them and over-insistent creditors.

Rapp made a record dash around the house, with the dog hanging to him, yelling for help in both German and English, and finally sought safety in Mrs. Dunlap's bedroom and was rescued.

The evidence consisted chiefly of a pair of trousers, which resembled a storm flag after a cyclone, and a coat with the left wing gone.

The court held that if Rapp had remained in the yard he would have been well within his rights and entitled to recover more than nominal damages, but when he entered Mrs. Dunlap's bedroom he was technically a trespasser and lost his legal standing.

THE HEIKE CASE

The Hearing Was Begun Again This Morning

NEW YORK, May 17.—Completing the work of filling the jury box was expected to occupy only a short time when the trial of Charles R. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining company, was resumed today in the United States circuit court. Heike, with five others, is charged with conspiracy to cheat the government out of sugar duties by underweighing cargoes. He is the highest officer of the so-called sugar trust to be prosecuted in connection with the sugar underweighing scandals and is specifically charged with endorsing checks drawn by the government for the refund thought to be due the sugar company when the alleged false weights were turned in by the weighers. Heike pleaded immunity but his plea was disallowed by the United States supreme court.

A significant question was asked

each of the talesmen today by Henry L. Stimson, the special government prosecutor in charge of the sugar cases. Mr. Stimson's query was: "Have you been approached by any one since you were called as a talesman?"

It was supposed that Mr. Stimson's inquiry was because of representations that a prospective juror had stated privately to the court that someone had approached him relative to the performance of his duty as a juror since he was summoned as a talesman. None of the jurors, however, has been approached. It was learned that it was James Toole, president of a typographical union who had reported yesterday that he had been approached soon after he was called as a talesman. Toole was excused from service on the Heike trial and instructed to return to court Monday next.

Shortly before noon the jury was completed.

WIFE A SUICIDE

She Left No Explanation of Her Action

NEW YORK, May 17.—Leaving no explanation, Mrs. Grace Hartenstein, pretty and young wife of Frederick Hartenstein, superintendent of the Long Island Railroad company, committed suicide last night by swallowing carbolic acid in apartments she was occupying at No. 87 West Thirty-eighth street.

Mrs. Hartenstein, who had been separated from her husband for two years, went to the Thirty-eighth street house three weeks ago. She was very reticent, remaining in her rooms on the second floor of the house most of the day, and passing only the necessary amenities with the landlady, Mrs. Anna O. Hagstedt. Yesterday afternoon friends called and took Mrs. Hartenstein for an automobile ride. She returned at 4 o'clock and ran lightly up to her room.

Two hours later Edward A. Torbert, another lodger in the house, was passing Mrs. Hartenstein's apartments when he heard a thud as though a heavy body had dropped. Pushing within, he saw Mrs. Hartenstein prone on the floor, her lips burnt black and a broken bottle lying under a dresser.

In spite of the first aid applied by Dr. Valstein M. Tompkins, of No. 4 West Thirty-eighth street, Mrs. Hartenstein died soon after. A search of the dead woman's apartments revealed only the broken bottle which had contained two ounces of carbolic acid. On the bottle was labelled "Carbolic Acid, Dr. Henry B. Hale, 27.10." No note or other explanation of any kind was visible.

Dr. Henry B. Hale lives at 75 West End avenue. He said over the telephone Sunday night that he had known Mrs. Hartenstein in a professional capacity since November, 1909, but that he could not remember giving her the carbolic acid prescription.

"Mrs. Hartenstein lived at 32 West 36th street until two months ago, when she left, saying she was going west," said Mr. Hale. "She lived at the 36th street address with a man who posed as her brother. I treated him once for a broken leg, and I know his name, but I must forget to give it at this time."

Hartenstein reached the 38th street home some time after his wife had committed suicide, having been summoned by telephone.

"I don't know why she did this," said Hartenstein, a big, smooth shaven man of 40. "Although she was suing me for divorce, I loved her dearly, and would have given up my life for her. We had not been living together for two years, but I have been making her an allowance of $100 a month since we separated."

The Hartensteins were married thirteen years ago in Dehmonia's, and Mrs. Hartenstein was 22 years old. Her parents are prominent in Ontario, Canada. With the permission of Coroner

Feinberg, the body will be shipped to Bay City, Mich.

At 328 West 96th street, it was said Sunday night that Mrs. Hartenstein had been living there alone up to two months ago, when she had left, saying she intended leaving the city.

Persons at her home said that Mrs. Hartenstein had recently devoted considerable time to the study of aeroplanes and had made one or two inventions. They mentioned one or two mechanical publications in which her work was to have been featured. The inventions related to aeroplanes they said. The dead woman had no children. Just what led to the separation between Hartenstein and his wife Coroner Feinberg did not seem to know.

A STOLEN BABY

Made Two Trips Across the Ocean

NEW YORK, May 17.—Rudolph Jasper, less than two years old, was restored to his mother's arms in Hoboken yesterday on the arrival of the North German Lloyd steamship Prinz Frederick Wilhelm after he had made a trip all by himself across the ocean and back.

Mrs. August Jasper lived in Grace street, Jersey City Heights. On April 22, she declared yesterday, after a quarrel with her husband, she fled with a younger baby to the home of a neighbor. When she returned a little later she found her husband and her boy Rudolph gone.

For two days she and the police searched for the child and at last learned that he had been put on the steamship Prinz Frederick Wilhelm, in the care of a stewardess. The stewardess was told that the child's grandmother would be awaiting him in Bremen.

The German consul in Hoboken was at once notified and he cabled to Bremen to have the child returned. Beaming and happy and none the worse for his sea voyage, the little fellow came down the gangplank yesterday in the arms of the stewardess and was smothered in tears and kisses by his mother. A host of her friends were on the pier with her.

ENGAGEMENT OFF As Result of Appearance in Police Court

Hears From City Solicitor on Minor Licenses

A mixture of whiskey, beer, maudlin love making and back-yard sentiment, was what Judge Hadley considered the cause of the flare-up between George Pelletier and Alice St. Onge which was aired before him in police court this morning.

According to the story told the court, George and Alice had had one experience on matrimony's sea, but the former is now a widower and the latter a widow and about a year ago they began to keep company and decided that as soon as they had enough money they would get married.

Matters went along very well for several months when the couple got into the habit of drinking and then the little money which they had saved up for the forthcoming marriage began to diminish. A few months ago the woman's money dwindled away and nothing and George advanced her some, according to his testimony.

A few days ago the couple were in the woman's room and after considerable liquor had been disposed of the woman said that Pelletier threatened to get rid of her. Pelletier said that he said nothing of the kind. He said that the woman owed him money and when he asked her for it she intimated that he would have to wait for it and that he would fix her if she did not come forward with the money before Saturday night.

Pelletier said that he had no intention of doing the woman any harm and that he thinks her condition was such that she imagined a good deal more than the reality. "I'll tell you one thing, Judge," said Pelletier, "and that is that my engagement is all off. I will not marry her now."

The court found the defendant guilty and ordered him to furnish $100 bonds to keep the peace for six months.

There were a number of cases which were scheduled to be heard this morning, but owing to the fact that several of the lawyers were engaged in the superior court, some were out of town and other cases were not ready, there was quite a number continued.

William L. Hensley, charged with being drunk, entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to four months in jail. Arthur O. Hawke pleaded guilty to a complaint of drunkenness and was sentenced to three months at the same institution.

Joseph Linnehan, who was on parole from the state farm, will be turned to Bridgewater. William E. Brady, another parole man, will be released.

Eight first offenders were fined $2 each and eight simple drunks were released.

William L. Hamblett was fined $5.

Larceny of $10

Hector Penal was arraigned before Judge Hadley this morning on a complaint charging him with larceny of $10 and the larceny of 50 cents from Della Duppre.

He entered pleas of guilty to both complaints and was fined $10 for the larceny and the case of drunkenness was placed on file.

KEOWN—The funeral of the late Mrs. Ellen Keown took place this morning at 9 o'clock from the funeral parlors of Undertakers M. H. McDonough & Sons, and was well attended. The funeral cortege proceeded to St. Peter's church, where at 9 o'clock a funeral mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Daniel Heffernan. The choir being conducted by Miss Mary E. Donnelly and Mr. James E. Donnelly. As the remains were borne from the church the choir sang "In Paradisum." Mrs. John Kennedy presided at the organ. Among the floral tributes were a pillow inscribed "R.I.P." and "Mother," from the family, and a wreath inscribed "Sister" from a sister-in-law of the deceased. The bear-

LONDON, May 17.—The body of King Edward was taken with stately pomp from Buckingham palace this morning on the first stage of the journey to the grave and now lies in state in Westminster hall, where hundreds of thousands will pay a last tribute to the dead monarch before the final progress through the streets of the capital on Friday.

The procession from Buckingham palace to Westminster hall passed through double lines of red-coated soldiers flanked with rows of stalwart policemen and a mass of silent, black garbed humanity.

The buildings along the route were heavily draped with mourning. The embassies in Carlton house terrace were covered with funeral pall as of black and purple, relieved occasionally by green wreaths and bouquets of white lilies.

Minute Guns Fired

The first intimation that the crowd, which had been waiting for hours, had of the approach of the funeral cortege was the booming of the first of sixty-eight minute guns which were fired at St. James park, followed by the tolling of Big Ben, the house of commons, which heretofore had been hushed, which struck the hour, and the roll of muffled drums.

Then a guardsman with sword reversed came down the Mall at measured pace, two other guardsmen following close behind him. Then came the officers of the headquarters staff, army counsel and the board of admiralty. As these appeared the troops came to a half salute with reversed guns and remained thus until Field Marshal Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener of Khartoum, the admirals of the fleet, the Indian order officers in black uniforms and the aides-de-camp of the late king passed.

As the gun carriages on which the casket was borne approached, the order "Rest on your arms!" was given. Sharpshooters on the ground while the body of the late king passed by, coming to attention again for the royal standard which was carried immediately behind the casket and in front of King George, who, like the officers and other members of the royalty, was at foot.

The King's Sons

The Duke of Cornwall and Prince Albert, two little figures in the natty uniforms of naval cadets, followed the casket. King Frederick of Denmark and King Christian of Denmark and then followed the other members of the British and foreign royal families in gorgeous uniforms, the only touch of mourning being the black bands on the sleeves of their coats. An array of officers followed the king's household, nearly all in bright uniforms, but a few of them in mourning dress, followed.

The greatest interest of the crowd was aroused at the approach of the first carriage, for in this rode the queen mother, Alexandra, to whom the hearts of all Britishers have gone out during the past week. Her Majesty, wearing the deepest mourning, lifted her veil and the people reverently raised their hats to the pathetic figure who, even in the hour of her great grief, acknowledged the silent testimony of sympathy by bowing repeatedly. The queen mother was accompanied by her sister, the Dowager Empress Marie of Russia and her daughters, Princess Royal and Princess Victoria. Queen Mary occupied the state carriage, having for the occasion surrendered the first place to which, as queen, she was entitled. Her Majesty was preceded by the foreign escort, the only mounted troops participating with the exception of a few stationed at points along the route. Queen Mary was accompanied by her daughter, Princess Mary and Prince Henry.

Seven other state carriages, drawn by caparisoned horses, carried the ladies of the royal families and the suites of the queen mother and the queen. Arrived at the palace yard of Westminster where a dense throng had gathered, the gun carriage stopped, the pall was removed and the bearer company composed of life guards lifted the casket and carried it into the hall. The dominating characteristic of the procession was the impressive simplicity. There were 3000 troops, uniformed and mounted, and 12,000 sailors along the route. In the procession itself the largest body of uniformed men was the massed bands of the guards regiment numbering 250 under Lieut. Morgan, the senior bandmaster of the British army which played funeral marches. Upon leaving Buckingham palace a special introduction, at the conclusion of which the funeral march, "Beethoven's funeral march," was provided by a body of forty pipers who struck up "Flowers of the Forest" as the procession passed Marlborough, the music bringing tears to the eyes of many in the great crowd. During the horse-guard's parade the band played "Chopin's march funebre" and as the procession approached Westminster hall the strains of Handel's "Dead March from Saul" were heard.

It was a gloomy morning, clouds hiding the sun in striking contrast with the brightness of the past few days. The spectacle at Westminster hall during the brief services when the casket was deposited there was a solemn and moving picture of deep contrast.

Upon the royal ensign at the head of the casket were placed the jewel crown, the orb and scepter.

King George stood at the foot of the casket with the queen mother, Queen Mary and the young princes. Behind them were the members of royalty who had followed the body and a group of twenty royal ladies in deep black with long veils, without a touch of color relieving the sombre garb.

Around this body were stationed the officers of the court, the early marshals, black rod, silver stick and others in their brilliant uniforms.

In long rows on either side and extending nearly the length of the hall were massed the peers and the members of the house of commons, more than 400 from each chamber. All of these who included many of England's foremost statesmen, were in informal black dress. The others who made up the great assemblage that filled the hall formed a shifting field of color in which gold and scarlet predominated.

Surprised Choir

The choir, surprised in white and crimson, occupied an elevation at the south end of the hall under the vast stained windows. A step lower were stationed the red-coated bandmen. The heralds and their pursuivants occupied a still lower position but well above the floor and grouped at the foot of the elevation were a hundred of the greatest gentry and admirals of the empire. In the centre Lord Kitchener, tall and dark, towered over Lord Roberts, who is short and gray. Nearby was seen the grim face of Lord Fisher, one time senior naval lord of the admiralty.

The Archbishop's Prayer

The service occupied only half an hour. The archbishop of Canterbury, standing at the head of the casket recited the Lord's prayer, which was repeated by the whole congregation. The archbishop then read the twenty-third psalm and the dean of Westminster read the scriptural lesson from St. John, the fifth chapter, 24th and 25th verses. At the conclusion of the reading the choir chanted a brief anthem and the archbishop offered prayer.

He said: "Lord, our heavenly Father, by whom kings reign and princes decree justice, We remember before Thee our late sovereign lord King Edward in thankfulness for the blessings Thou hast bestowed upon us through his reign, for the wisdom of his rule and the faithfulness with which he served the people committed to his charge; for his continual effort to further and maintain peace among the nations and for his watchful care of the sick and the poor."

Addressing the congregation the archbishop said that there was reason for thanksgiving for the peace and prosperity of the empire and for a ruler who was devoted to the empire and its people. He charged his hearers to consider well the lesson that death teaches.

As the archbishop concluded the trumpets and drums sounded and the choir sang, "Oh, God Our Help in Ages Past." The accompaniment ceasing after the first stanza, the organ played the last. As the music died away the archbishop pronounced the benediction.

After the benediction the queen mother, Alexandra, who had been seated in a purple covered chair while the others stood, rose and, taking a step forward, knelt beside the casket. With hands clasped, she remained for a moment in silent prayer. Rising, she beckoned her son to escort her, and bowed slowly down the aisle, bowing slightly as she passed the guards of honor which stood in two ranks on either side. Queen Mary followed, also bowing and the two preceded the other members of the group of royalties from the hall.

Westminster hall, the most spacious cathedral-like structure in the kingdom, with its vastness and simplicity, formed an ideal stage for the great spectacle. It was the most perfect of the four tall, bronze pedestals, each bearing four canopies, stood at the corners of the catafalque, on either side of which was a wreath of laurel that hung from the house of lords and the house of commons respectively.

Between the feet of the steps at the south end of the hall to the north doorway a broad aisle was kept open and through this the clergy with the cross borne before advanced and met the funeral cortege upon its arrival from Buckingham palace. The heralds and gentlemen of arms preceded the casket, which was carried on the shoulders of non-commissioned officers. Its resting place on the catafalque, King George followed with his mother on his right and the Dowager empress Marie, his aunt, on his left. The entrance was made amid a profound hush broken only by the tolling of the clock outside and the tolling of the bell in the tower above.

ROOSEVELT DID NOT PARTICIPATE IN CEREMONY

LONDON, May 17.—Mr. Roosevelt, special American ambassador to the funeral of King Edward, did not participate today in the ceremony attending the removal of the body from Buckingham palace to Westminster hall. Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt, Kermit, American Ambassador and Mrs. Reid witnessed the procession from a house in Carlton house terrace, but Mr. Roosevelt spent the morning answering his accumulated correspondence.

WOMAN'S SOBS

Moved Several Jurymen to Tears

BOSTON, May 17.—Weeping as she sat at the witness stand in the superior civil court at East Cambridge yesterday afternoon, before Judge Pierce, Mrs. Emma Frances Heath of Malden told how her husband's affections were lost to her, in her $50,000 suit for alienation of affection against Mrs. Sarah Morrill, owner of the Hotel Evelyn, Malden.

She was telling of how her husband, Nathaniel H. Heath, manager of the hotel for Mrs. Merriam, came to her in 1905 and told her that he did not love her when she broke down entirely and throwing herself forward, buried her head in her arms on the witness stand, allowing the sobs to completely control her. Nor was she alone, for several of the jury wept, Judge Pierce turned his head away, while men and women spectators let the tears trickle down their cheeks unnoticed.

At last she resumed her story, and in a trembling voice told of the conversation with the husband, who, in the little parlour, said that he did not love her, that she and her son, Willie must look out for themselves. She told of her husband selling the Hotel Evelyn to Mrs. Merriam, of his going to live there as manager and leaving her alone in their home on Washington street, Malden. She told of her asking him to return home at night, and of his saying that he would soon return home, and of his growing intimacy with Mrs. Merriam. How on one night in November, 1905, while he was sick at home with the grip, Mrs. Merriam had called on him and in leaving had kissed him, of a call by Mrs. Merriam on Christmas day, when Mrs. Merriam brought the family gifts and in leaving again kissed the husband.

During the years that followed she said that Mrs. Merriam had kept up the intimacy, and that the husband never came home except sometimes during afternoons. She related of finding Mrs. Merriam in the hotel with her husband, and of asking her if she loved Mr. Heath, and of the Merriam woman saying that she did.

The afternoon session closed with Attorney Walker, counsel for Mrs. Merriam, questioning Mrs. Heath, while Mrs. Merriam sat by, unable to bear anything that was going on for she is deaf.

AFTER 3 YEARS

Alleged Smuggler Has Been Caught

HOULTON, Me., May 17.—After patiently waiting three years and watching all night several times for Louis Brissette, who was wanted for the alleged smuggling of liquor and sale of the same without paying a federal tax, the federal officials were successful yesterday in capturing their man without a struggle.

On July 3, 1907, a "line store," kept by Brissette on the boundary line between Maine and New Brunswick near Limestone, was raided by the United States officials and torn down as a nuisance.

Brissette escaped to the Canadian side and since has been running a small hotel just across the border and a sawmill on the American side.

Learning that he was near the sawmill Sunday, Deputy United States Marshal Ferdinand E. Stevens of Portland and Deputy Customs Collector George Thayer of Limestone laid in wait for him all night and early yesterday caught him unawares.

PERSONALS

Dr. Samuel Patenaude and Miller Bellefontaine have returned from a very delightful African and European tour.

They visited the Azores, the Madeira islands, Gibraltar and cruised up the Mediterranean to Algiers, Africa. They next toured Italy, visiting Rome, Florence, Venice, Milan, Naples and Capri. From Italy they went to Switzerland and visited Zurich, Bern and Geneva, finally ending up with a week in Paris.

Mrs. D. L. Page gave a birthday party yesterday afternoon at her home in Rogers street for Millicent Root and the 12th anniversary of the young lady was made a day to be remembered. The occasion was a very pretty and a very pleasing one.

The following opinion requested by the board of police and submitted today by the city solicitor is self explanatory:

Office of City Solicitor,
Lowell, Mass., May 16, 1910.
Board of Police, Lowell, Mass.

Gentlemen: I have your request for an opinion as to whether a common victualler's license and a billiard and pool license may be granted on the same premises, where these premises consist of only one room. After some consideration, I find one obstacle in the way of your issuing such licenses under the conditions indicated. The acts of 1903, chapter 368, provide that minors shall not be admitted to billiard and pool rooms without the consent of their parents or guardians. Revised laws, chapter 102, section 5, provide that common victualliers shall at all times be prepared to furnish suitable food for strangers and travellers.

Now in complying with the law in the one case, a licensee might be guilty of a breach of the law in the other. This being so, I am of the opinion that under such conditions the board would not be justified in granting the two licenses.

Respectfully submitted,
Wm. W. Duncan,
City Solicitor.

NEW HAVEN BILL REPORTED

BOSTON, May 17.—A bill permitting the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R. Co. to purchase a controlling interest in the Berkshire Street Railway Co. now controlled by the New England Investment and Securities Co. which is also dominated by the New Haven Co. was favorably reported today by the legislative committee on railroads and street railroads.

The Berkshire Co. which owns practically all the street railroad lines west of the Connecticut river in Massachusetts was acquired by the New Haven Co. several years ago but the latter company was forced to relinquish the former because of an adverse decision of the supreme court. The present legislation has been pending before the general court for three years, and if the bill becomes a law it will enable the New Haven road to operate the trolley line directly instead of indirectly as is now the case.

Rep. R. M. Washburn of Worcester, house chairman of the committee on railroads, objects to the bill and will lead the fight against it. Five other members of the committee reserve the right to dissent from the report.

RAILWAY CO. SEEKS INJUNCTION

COLUMBUS, O., May 17.—The Hooking Valley Railway Co. today filed suit in the United States circuit court here asking for an injunction against the receivers of the railroad who were appointed yesterday by Common Pleas Judge Kineaid restraining the receivers from any action until the question of jurisdiction be settled. The bill makes H. J. Booth and James Sheets the receivers, and Howard Manning, R. E. Westfall, R. H. Schoedinger, stockholders, the respondents. A temporary order is asked, pending the decision of Judge Sater in the matter.

AFTER 40 YEARS

Mrs. Cummings Asks for Separate Support

There was a decidedly pathetic feature to the case of Mary Ellen Cummings against Patrick Cummings for separate maintenance. The defendant has been an employee of the city for many years and is thrifty and industrious and has a competence of substantial size, holding stock in the Lowell Trust company and the Harvard brewery. The couple have lived together up to within about two years ago. At that time Mr. Cummings suffered a shock that left him partially paralyzed and effected his speech so that he finds words to express himself only with greatest difficulty. He remained at St. John's hospital for some time and then his wife had him removed to Dr. Flint's sanatorium in Braintree. Mr. Cummings refused to remain there and left, taking up lodgings in the boarding house of a friend.

Since then he has been looked after and his business affairs conducted by Undertaker M. H. McDonough, in whom all parties in the case have implicit confidence. Since leaving the sanatorium Mr. Cummings has not contributed to his wife's support and hence the case before Judge McIntire. Mr. Cummings was the only witness presented and his appearance and infirmity excited the sympathy of the court.

Lawyer J. Joseph O'Connor, who appeared for him, suggested that the case was one that called for the appointment of a conservator and the court agreed to the proposition.

"You don't want your wife to go hungry, you will contribute to her support, won't you, Mr. Cummings?" asked Lawyer O'Connor.

"With much difficulty Mr. Cummings replied, 'God knows, I wouldn't let a dog go hungry.'"

The court then suspended the case, and Lawyer O'Connor will petition the court for the appointment of Mr. McDonough as conservator.

AS TO DANGEROUS SIDEWALKS.

The proposition of Alderman Adams to have police officers report all sidewalks that are in bad condition is a good one. It will remove one great cause of accidents and also a cause of damage suits against the city with or without accidents. It is right that the parties responsible for dangerous sidewalks, whether the abutters or the city should be notified to put the same in safe condition for public travel. The same rule might apply to some streets such for example as East Merrimack street where the subterranean excavations left unfilled are liable to cave in at any time.

HANDWRITING IN SCHOOLS DEMORALIZED.

The schools of Lowell need a special writing master more at the present time than ever before. When the late Mr. Graves was the special instructor the handwriting was good in all the schools. After his time, new-fangled ideas were introduced and finally that travesty upon practical handwriting the "vertical" was installed. The officials who imposed that system upon a helpless public have a great deal to answer for. The "vertical" ran its course—or until the business people got a practical demonstration of its absurdity. Then it was thrown out and the Spencerian system or something like it restored. But the pupils found it difficult to change from the clumsy, slow and awkward style in which they had been drilled. The result is the handwriting of the schools has been demoralized and will remain so for a considerable time unless a special instructor be employed.

The school board should look around for an expert who has had a year's experience in Frogtown or anywhere else outside Lowell.

THE REPORT DISCREDITED.

Gradually the report of the legislative commission upon the high cost of living is being discredited. The verdict acquitting the tariff and the trusts for all responsibility for the high prices was too palpably absurd to be believed by intelligent people. The committee laid the blame upon the increase of the gold production in this country, but this is a cause that should operate universally in all countries and to a greater extent in some other countries where the increase in the production of gold has been even greater than in this. The report is largely made up of the statements and theories put forward by republican leaders and in all probability for campaign purposes. The fact that Senator Lodge utilized a portion of the report for a public document evidently for its political effect goes to prove that the report may have been framed up for this purpose, although there are some honest men on the commission whom it is difficult to believe guilty of any such business.

A BREACH OF CONFIDENCE.

Whether the confessions of Stenographer Kerby as to the evolution of the president's letter in the Ballinger case be true or false, one thing is certain, that Kerby has betrayed office secrets in a way that proves him unworthy of trust in any confidential capacity.

When a stenographer is admitted to a private office as confidential clerk or amanuensis, he is bound by all the laws of honor and common decency not to divulge the secret business of his office even if he happens to lose his position. Kerby is guilty of a piece of treachery, and this talk about a "troubled conscience" is all tommyrot. If he has a conscience it should have conjured him to silence even if he thought a wrong had been done. He forgets that in virtue of his position he was bound to secrecy.

Between his statement and that of the president, where they contradict each other, the public will not believe Kerby. The statement of the president in regard to the preparation of the letter exonerating Ballinger is quite reasonable and shows that Kerby's statement amounts to nothing.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL MOVEMENT REVERSED.

There is one thing at variance with the movement for the city beautiful that seems to have escaped the notice of those who have been advocating improvements in this line. We refer to the building of mills of from four to ten or twelve stories in height, fronting on some of the principal streets of our city. Part of Middlesex street has been seriously injured by having the end of a big mill store house come out to the sidewalk. A new mill is being built on East Merrimack street close to the edge of the street, and another is to be erected with one side fronting on Bridge street. Already the two mills stand opposite each other on Bridge street along the sidewalks. That is bad enough, but we are going to have more of it, and there is no telling how far this abuse is to be carried unless the city government steps in and insists that in all such cases either sufficient land shall be left fronting on the streets for the erection of stores or else that the mill building shall have an ornamental front that will offer some compensation for the extent of dead wall thus exhibited on some of our principal thoroughfares.

The city can seize land for park purposes, it can prevent the erection of buildings that are injurious, and unless we are greatly mistaken it could also prevent the erection of mill buildings out to the street front thus shutting off a large portion of the street for ordinary business purposes. These buildings injure any street in which they are located, and it is a very serious mistake that they are to be brought out fronting on East Merrimack street near the square and also on Bridge street.

There should be some committee of the city council to give its attention to such matters in order to protect our best streets from being forever despoiled in appearance. There has been a movement for the removal of the large billboards, but not all the billboards in the city would injure a street so much as one of these big mill gables fronting on the sidewalk.
We simply call this matter to the attention of the city authorities in hopes that it shall not go on indefinitely. It is the city beautiful idea reversed.

consisted of a supply daily of 5000

twenty gallons of consommé and 500 bottles of beer. On Friday fish was served to those who do not eat meat.

In something of a predicament this gray haired man found himself in a street car when a polite young man got up and offered him his seat. In the first place the old man would have preferred that the young man should not have done it, for the latter is confused that to the young man the old man looked old, whereas the old man feels young, and sprightly and likes to fancy that he looks so.

But he thanked the young man for the seat thus kindly offered to him,
adding to his thanks an apologetic smile for what he was about to do, and then the old man turned and offered that seat which had just been vacated for him to a woman who stood beside him, and she took it.

So the polite young man's plans had miscarried slightly, and really the situation was a little confusing. Presently the young man retired to the end of the car and the old man remained standing as before.

NEGROES READY

Comet Pills

NEW YORK, May 17.—Whatever

Halley's comet may do or not do to

this earth, the negroes of Port Au

Prince, Haiti, are prepared because they are well stocked with comet pills.

Comet pills are now to the pharmacy.

Word of their appearance arrived by the Hamburg-American liner

Allegrency, in from Port Au Prince

yesterday. Her officers said yesterday that all the negro stevedores there, all

the farmers round about, the servants, laborers, merchants, bergamons and

thieves are rushing pell mell to the hut

of a shrewd Vodoo doctor just outside the city, who is selling comet pills

faster than he can make them.

The prescription is one pill for ev-

gins to recede from the earth, but

many of the patients make doubly sure

REV. CHARLES O'REILLY PASSED
AWAY AT RUTLAND

RUTLAND, Vt., May 17.—Rev. Chas.
O'Reilly, a retired clergyman, died suddenly at his home in West Rutland at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, at the age of 55 years. He had a career of almost half a century in the Catholic church and was well known among the priests of Vermont. Bishop Joseph J.
Tier of Burlington will celebrate solemn pontifical masses at a requiem for him at St. Bridget's church Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Fr. O'Reilly was born in County
Cavan, Ire. He was ordained at All Hallows college, Dublin, June 29, 1855, and came to this country shortly after.
Fr. O'Reilly first served at the church as a missionary, being assigned for 14 years to the territory between Bellows
Falls and Brattleboro, Vt. He built
St. Michael's church at Brattleboro and also built a mission at Proctorsville.

In 1869 he was transferred to West
Rutland as pastor of St. Bridget's church, where he was stationed until 12 years ago, when he retired on account of ill health.

He was about the house Sunday
but when his niece, Miss Maria Lynch, went to call him yesterday morning she found him unconscious and he died shortly afterward. He is survived by no relatives nearer than cousins.
These are Very Rev. James McBarre,
Rev. John McBarre, and Rev. Bernard
O'Reilly of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a grandniece, Sister Oswald of Marlboro, Mass.

THE PURCHASE OF A

Bankrupt Stock

MEANS

Bargains

We bought the entire Bankrupt
Stock of The J. Brest Co., (Incorporated for $40,000) of Brockton,
Mass., Furniture Dealers, for $8000
less than the goods cost.

Of course we can sell them for a good deal less than any dealer who paid full price for the same goods. And still make our profit.

If you are going to buy any
FURNITURE, CARPETINGS, ART SQUARES,
RANGES, GO-CARTS, ETC., this spring,
you are extremely careless of your own interest if you don't buy here and now.

For you will certainly pay a Great Deal More elsewhere—They must charge you more or lose money—
There is no doubt about it.

If a dealer pays $10 for an article he can't sell it for $10. He must add a percentage of profit on that article to pay store rent, help hire, feed of horses, cost of light, taxes,
insurance, etc., etc.

We can sell the same article for less than $10 and make a profit. For the $8000 we saved on the first cost will cover all these expenses and leave us a good profit. In other words we made our profit out of what the creditors lost. We haven't got to make a profit out of you. And for a slight advance of five cents on each dollar's worth we will sell you the same goods by paying part cash and give you liberal terms on balance. You may buy Furniture elsewhere if you wish but we can't see why you should,
when you can certainly save money by buying here.

Printed as Part of the Ballinger-Pinchot Record

WASHINGTON, May 17.—President Taft's explanation of the circumstances under which his letter concerning Secretary Ballinger from the Glavis charges and discharging L. R. Glavis was prepared and presented to Chairman Nelson of the investigating committee, was resumed here today. It was printed as a part of the record of the committee. Attorney Brandeis, counsel for Glavis, has laid great emphasis upon the president's letter of exoneration and dismissal, contending that the memorandum upon which it was based was prepared in Secretary Ballinger's department by Asst. Atty. Gen. Lawler. The president in a letter which he addressed to Senator Nelson last Sunday says he had the Lawler memorandum before him when he prepared his communication, but he also had notes and memoranda given him by the attorney general who had agreed with the president in the conclusion he had reached in the matter.

While Commissioner Dennett of the general land office was under cross-examination last Saturday Mr. Brandeis indicated that he intended to raise the question why the Lawler memorandum had not been furnished together with the other papers bearing on the case which the president had sent to the committee. A carbon copy of the Lawler memorandum was furnished the committee by Atty. Gen. Wickersham, coincident with the publication of the statement of Frederick Kirby, then a stenographer in Mr. Ballinger's office, that he had assisted Mr. Lawler in preparing the document and that it was similar in many respects to the president's letter. Mr. Wickersham, however, explained that to the effect that the document had been overlooked in previous searches of the department files. It is expected that Mr. Brandeis will endeavor to locate the original memorandum.

Mr. Dennett was put under cross-examination when the public hearing of the committee was resumed.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

There's one motion picture at the Opera House, for the first three days of this week, which will please exceedingly any lover of color and whirlwind like motion. It isn't a colored film in any sense, but the local touches, the "atmosphere" which goes with a country and its people is there every second of it. The name of the picture is "The Two Brothers" and the scene is Southern California. There's a story to it, but that's commonplace and the least of the whole.

Altogether some 75 or 100 persons assist in making it, and two-thirds of these are expert riders, not mere actors and actresses, but real greaser horsemen. And one scene is especially thrilling. The chase of a wedding party in a coach over miles of territory, and the final rounding up of the bridal party, soldiers and all, by the bandits is shown. It's as thrilling as a reel as has been turned out in months. One little incident in it is exceedingly thrilling, and that is the shooting from his horse in full motion of one of the bandits. There isn't one man in a thousand who would have the nerve to toss himself out of a saddle and onto a hard road as that particular man did it.

There's yandeville to this bill, also, but the foregoing picture was so remarkable that for once the human beings are playing secondary to the facilities. Kretz Brothers, a couple of head balancers, astonish with really remarkable work. Their closing consists of playing a very near mandolin and guitar duet, while one balances the other on his head, their heads being together. Marie Camilla, a winsome young lady, is pleasing to the eye, in her two songs and violin numbers, and the Durands prove exceedingly entertaining with their comedy singing and dancing. Their act winds up with a dance on roller skates. Eva Medina gives the illustrated songs in good style.

Of the remaining pictures, one entitled "Cleopatra" will rank with the best art works ever turned out by Pathe Freres. The life of the beautiful, cruel Egyptian queen and enchantress is shown, especially in her love affair with Marc Antony. The death of the two in a grandly pictured. The rich coloring of the entire picture will bring much admiration for it. The comedy reels are "A Quiet Evening at Home" and "He Stubbed His Toe." They guarantee laughter.

Tonight the amateurs will disport again, and there will undoubtedly be a record breaking audience.

STAR THEATRE

Large crowds witnessed the Nelson-Wolstead fight picture at the Star theatre throughout Monday and this afternoon. This reproduction of the fiercest fight in ring history excels in photography and every movement made by the fighters is plainly visible. It will be remembered that the fight lasted until 6:20 in the evening and in view of this fact, the pictures are remarkably clear. A lecture explains everything, starting with the fighters in their training quarters and leading up to the crowds going into the arena, and then the fight starts. The pictures will be shown at the theatre tonight and Wednesday afternoon and evening.

THEATRE VOYONS

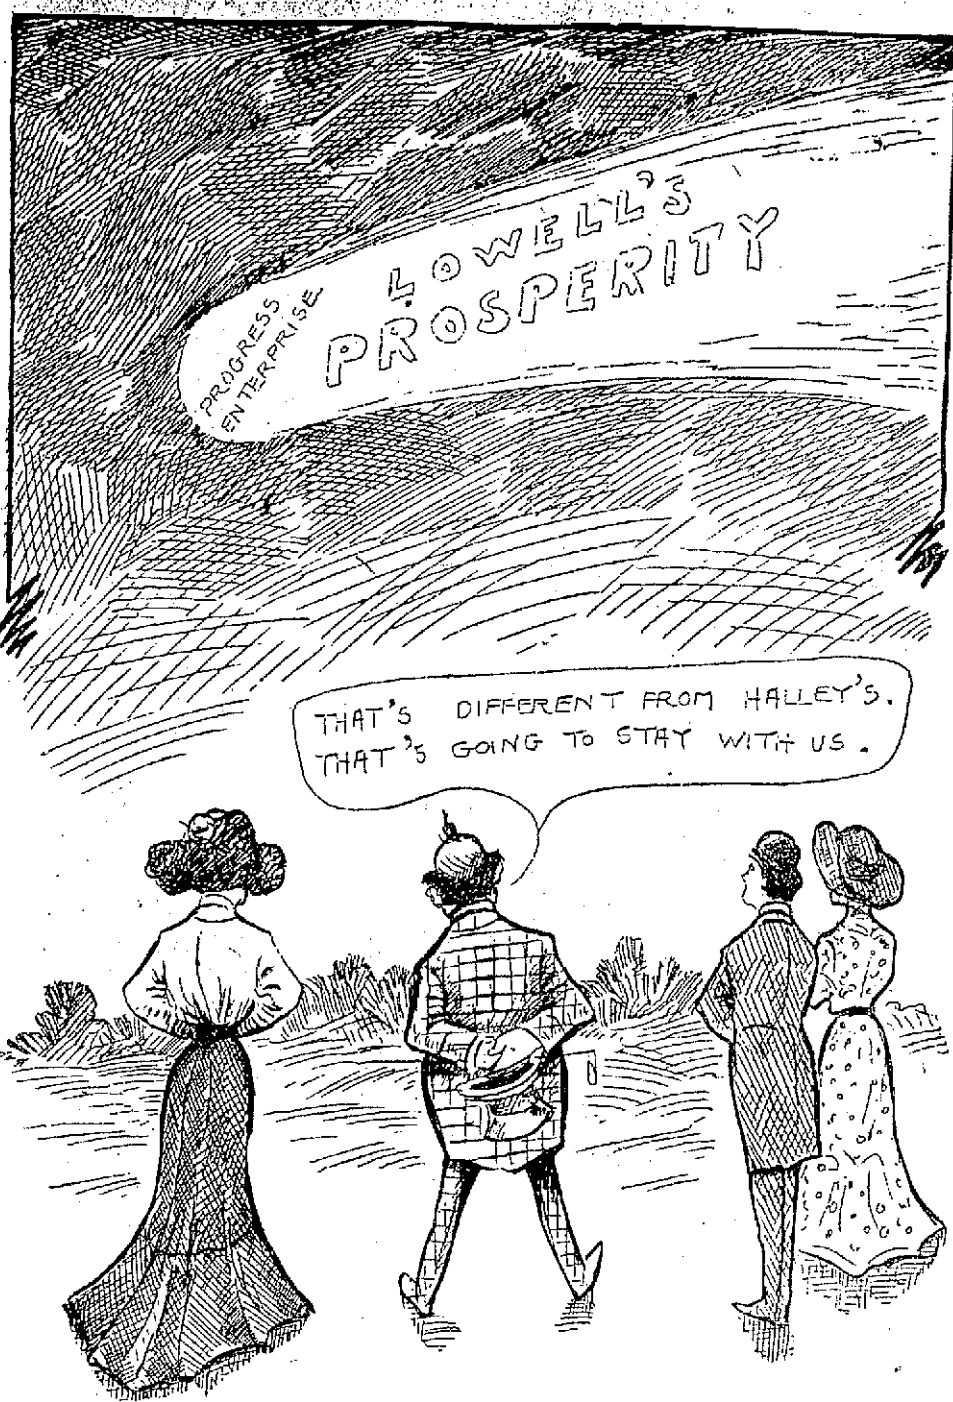

One of the features of today's show at the Theatre Voyons is Pathe's great production of Cleopatra which is a genuine success in every way. The staging and acting is far above the ordinary and the story is well told. "Roosevelt in Cairo" shows the president in many different aspects as his stay in Cairo was one constant succession of receptions, visits and slight-of-hand trips. The most interesting of the pictures shows Roosevelt and his wife on camels on their way to visit the pyramids. A touching dramatic subject and a real comedy adds variety to the bill. The musical features are exceptionally good.

EMPIRE THEATRE

The program now running at the Empire is calculated to amuse and entertain all lovers of the clean and bright in vaudeville. The Arizona Trio are of the best and the acrobatic feats are beyond criticism while the comedians and the balancing work of the hoary veterans are a real treat. "Tom Bateman" as the "Dancing Sailor" sings very pleasingly in his Skip Rope-Dancing he is the envy of all the young ladies who have seen him. The picture program is of the best and Charles A. Rogers is a decided hit in his song "Curly Head."

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

BOSTON, May 17.—New England delegates to the world's sixth Sunday school convention left this city in a special train today for Washington where the convention opens next Thursday. The Massachusetts party was joined here today by delegations from Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine and Nova Scotia. Hamilton S. Conant, general secretary of the Massachusetts Sunday School Association was in charge of the delegates.

EVERYBODY IS WATCHING THE COMET

"JIM" JEFFRIES Is In Trouble With Boils Once More

BEN LOMOND, Cal., May 17.—Jim Jeffries' recurrent skin trouble is worrying both himself and his trainers and it is regarded as likely that the new breaking out may interfere to some extent with his training grind.

The present boils of the retired champion are located on his upper left arm and between his shoulder blades. They are an irritating affliction and become painful if hard exercise is indulged in. But the experience the trainers had in treating the old boil on the fighter's back leads them to believe that they will be able to cope successfully with the fresh trouble and without causing much delay in his conditioning work. When told last night of the selection of Rickard to referee the fight he expressed satisfaction over the choice made. He does not seem to be perturbed over the rumored trouble regarding the place for holding the coming battle.

MATCH CALLED OFF

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 17.—The proposed match between Frank Conley, bantam champion, and Owen Moran was last night declared off. Conley insisted upon Moran making 125 pounds ring-side instead of 126 at six o'clock. The fighters could not agree.

MAY CHANGE FIGHT SCENE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—Among the disquieting rumors current today in quarters concerned with the Jeffries-Johnson championship boxing match is one that Thomas Williams, president of the California Jockey club, where it has been planned to build a mammoth arena for the coming battle, has withdrawn his support from the enterprise and has informed Promoter Rickard that he must find some other place in which to bring the fighters together. Williams refused today either to confirm or deny, saying that he did not care to discuss the matter at all.

Another report has it that Rickard and Gleason are negotiating with the people at Richmond, who provided a meeting place for the recent fight between Ad Wolstead and Battling Nelson when the lightweights were barred from other trans-Pacific bay towns. The possibility of an enforced change of location for the holding of the contest has turned speculation to San Francisco itself and many profess belief that the promoters have turned their attention to this city. It is pointed out that two excellent locations for staging the big fight are to be had within the limits of San Francisco where no hostility from the city officials would be encountered.

TESTING THE COURSES

ROCKLAND, Me., May 17.—The tests in determining the relative value as courses for the official acceptance trials of vessels for the United States navy off the Rockland, Provincetown and Delaware breakwater mile courses were begun today in the presence of the government trial boards. Three ships will be standardized on each course for the purpose of determining what effect different depths of water have on speed, the ships selected for the tests being the best in the navy. They are the big battleship Michigan, which was built at Camden, N. J., and the torpedo boat destroyers, Reid and Winsor, constructed at Bath. The destroyer Reid began the tests today.

TAIL OF COMET Now Extends Beyond Orbit of the Earth

TAUNTON, May 17.—The tail of Halley's comet now extends considerably beyond the earth's orbit and the earth will certainly pass through the luminous train of the sky wanderer tomorrow night. This is the conclusion of Rev. Joel Hastings Metcalf, a well-known astronomer of this city. He has discovered several comets in the past and the results of his observations have been accepted by the officials of the Harvard observatory. Mr. Metcalf observed Halley's comet this morning under ideal conditions. The sky was clear and the air was free from haze. The astronomer sighted the comet at 2:45 a. m., a short time before the head of the visitor peered above the horizon line. The observation showed that the tail of the comet is now 30 degrees in length or equal to the distance from the horizon to the zenith. The tail lay nearly parallel to the horizon. It was from eight to ten degrees broad, which means an actual width of about one million miles. Mr. Metcalf also reported that the tail was apparently straight and in process of broadening and has not yet reached its maximum width. The northern and western heads of the tail touched Gamma Pegasi and extended to 71 Aquila, possibly in Theta Aquila.

Mr. Metcalf telephoned the results of his observations to the Harvard observatory today. The Harvard observers told him that they had not begun their observations sufficiently early to get the details which he obtained and they accepted his findings.

SETTLERS' RIGHTS ARE CONSIDERED TO BE IN JEOPARDY

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 17.—A boat trip in which the voyagers rode and not rowed is said to be at the bottom of a controversy over Palo Verde valley lands valued at $2,400,000. The rights of settlers are considered in jeopardy because of a whimsical risk practiced 35 years ago by a San Francisco millionaire, now dead. It is charged that he had the boat loaded on a wagon and after it had been hauled over a prescribed area claimed 14,000 acres of rich land under the swamp and over flow not attesting to the fact that he had made the trip in a boat. The land is desert land.

The dispute, which, upon its face, appears to be a controversy between the government and state will come up for a hearing before United States Surveyor General Archer in Los Angeles June 2. Settlers, however, assert that the controversy is really between them and a landgrabbing syndicate.

RISKED HIS LIFE

DRIVER OF CHEMICAL WAGON SAVED A BOY

BOSTON, May 17.—Risking his life and those of his horses, Driver Edward J. Crowley of Chemical Engine 7 of East Boston, while responding to an alarm of fire last evening, saving the animals suddenly around, as they were tearing along Chelsea st., in order to save a little boy from being crushed to death. So abruptly was the turn made that the apparatus went up on the sidewalk and the horses crashed into the plate glass window of the David-son Drug company at the corner of Chelsea and Marion streets. The window was demolished, the engine pole broken and the horses were slightly cut, but the driver and the little lad whose life he saved escaped injury. It was impossible to learn the name of the lad but it is believed to be Cunningham. The apparatus was responding to a call from box 619, which proved to be a false alarm.

TEX RICKARD NAMED

To Referee the Fight Between Jeffries and Johnson

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—"Tex" Rickard, associated with Jack Gleason in the promotion of the Jeffries-Johnson contest, who came into prominence four years ago when he engineered the Gans-Nelson fight at Goldfield, Nev., was selected yesterday to referee the fight between the two heavyweights on July 4, at Emeryville.

In accepting the place, however, the Nevada promoter made it clear that he will step aside if Jeffries and Johnson agree on another man.

This settlement came when it looked as if the meeting to select a referee would end in another deadlock, and after bitter words had passed between Johnson and Sam Berger, Jeffries' manager.

Johnson suggested Rickard, but Berger refused to consider the Nevada man, saying that he would not accept him on account of his inexperience. The colored champion declared he would stand for the three men he had mentioned, Jack Welch, Eddie Grancy and Rickard.

Berger indignantly replied that he would leave the meeting. Then there came a further clash between Berger and Johnson, and ugly words were used by Berger and threats were made by Johnson. Berger stood up, as if to leave.

"So you want Rickard, do you?" he asked of Johnson.

"Yes," was the answer.

"Well, all right," replied Berger, and the crowd broke into a cheer as it realized that one of the difficult points had been settled.

Rickard made the following statement:

"To straighten out this affair I am willing to act, provided my name is agreeable to all concerned. I don't want to act, and I hope that before the fight takes place Jeffries and Johnson will agree on another man. If they can come to terms I am perfectly willing to step down out of it. But if they can reach no other agreement I will not back down."

In spite of the agreement there is a feeling of mistrust among those who attended the session that the last word has not been said and that the referee question again must be taken up. It was rumored last night that, to give the impression that everything is in working order Rickard was named until the contestants could look the field over.

During the negotiations it looked for a time as if there would be a free-for-all fight. Just before the compromise was reached Berger is said to have exclaimed, in an undertone, "I'll give over and hit that black man," applying, it is said, another epithet with "black."

This remark was carried to Johnson, who warned Berger never to call him that name again.

Berger denied that he had said anything of the kind, but Johnson's followers declare he did and muttered among themselves that if Berger repeated what he had said, he would never leave the room.

"You're just an educated dog," said Johnson to Berger. "Now come out and fight if you want to. I'll give $1000 if you will come right out with me and box just three rounds."

They were finally quieted and the session was resumed.

At the start of the meeting Berger again named the five men he wanted—Eddie Smith, Billy Roach, Charley Bayton, Phil Vard and Johnny Harriet. Johnson named Welch and Grancy and said he would stick to them. He intimated (further) that he would allow no one, not even the promoters, to do the selecting for him.

All sorts of compromises were suggested. Berger said he would be willing to have the sporting editors of the five San Francisco newspapers name the referee or to act in conjunction with the two promoters.

MANY WOUNDED

Collision Between Republicans and Police

MADRID, May 17.—A collision between republicans and gendarmes is reported from Valencia in connection with a manifestation in honor of the arrival there of the republican deputy Senor Serlano. The gendarmes charged and the republicans used knives and stones.

An officer was stabbed and killed and many persons were wounded. Fifty arrests were made and order was finally restored after the manifestants had sought refuge at the republican club.

LOWELL AUTO CLUB

TO HEAR LECTURE ON THE MANUFACTURE OF RUBBER TIRES

The Lowell Automobile club will hold a smoke talk on Friday night, May 20th, at their quarters at the Richardson hotel at 8 o'clock when one of the most interesting lectures will be given by a representative of the E. F. Goodrich company of Akron, Ohio, on the subject of rubber. The lecturer will be Mr. Tillisch, who will answer all questions that may be asked relative to the subject.

This lecturer has the photographic plates which will show the sap as it leaves the tree, tracing its progress through the various manufacturing processes until it is used on the automobile wheel. The use of the photographic films has been accepted by the largest advertisers in the country to set forth in a way that will not only advertise, but also educate. There is scarcely any commodity among the necessities which is so popularly known as rubber and perhaps there is no article of commercial convenience, the construction and maintenance of which is so little understood as the automobile tire. Therefore, the nature of rubber, the difficulties of gathering it, the form of shipment, its transformation from the crude into the rubber of manufacture, and the actual making of an automobile tire, for example, are matters of educational concern.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD'S NEW YORK TERMINAL SYSTEM

AFTER nearly a decade of stupendous construction operations the Pennsylvania railroad is on the eve of opening for passenger traffic its new terminal facilities in and around the city of New York. Finishing touches are being applied to the splendid new passenger station in the heart of Manhattan Island. The two tunnels leading into the metropolis from the New Jersey shore under the Hudson river are completed. The four tunnels leading in from Long Island under the East river are ready and waiting. The Manhattan cross town tunnels ending at the river shaft in the block between Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth streets, east of First avenue, are finished. With steady progress these spring days the huge weave of tracks below the ground surface leading to the great passenger station is being brought to completion, and at Sunnyside, on Long Island, the immense railroad yards are ready to receive the first rush of business.

No date for the opening of the station has been formally announced. It is expected, however, that it will be in full operation by the close of the summer.

With the opening of this vastly improved traffic system that centers in the nation's metropolis the means of transportation between the east and the west will have been revolutionized. This revolution was conceived during the administration of the late A. J. Cassatt, president of the Pennsylvania, and has been carried forward by his successors without a hitch.

Achieved at the expenditure of many millions of dollars, these improvements will enable passengers from eastern, western and Long Island points to go directly into New York city without change of cars or transfer to ferryboat, arriving at a railroad station which is conceded to be the handsomest and most convenient in the world.

When these vast improvements were conceived ten years ago the Pennsylvania railroad was employing the same method of reaching New York city that was employed when it first leased the United Railroads of New Jersey in 1871—ferries across the Hudson river from Jersey City. Ten years ago the road was hauling freights to eastern cities over practically the same grades that were to be encountered in 1875. Then came the plans to overcome the ferry transfers and the grades. In a few months from now freight trains, which reach the east over a new line, with no grades greater than twelve feet to the mile, will be floated from Greenville, N. J., to Bay Ridge, N. Y., and when the New York connecting railroad, crossing the East river on a four track bridge, is completed these trains will be run directly from Bay Ridge to Port Morris, N. Y., where connections for New England will be made with the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Electric Engines Used.

This New York tunnel extension and its necessary adjuncts comprise the costliest improvements ever made by a railroad company. The tunnel extension begins at Harrison, N. J., a few hundred yards east of Newark, where there is a car yard for the big electric locomotives used to haul all trains through the tubes. Passenger trains change here from steam to electric power. Passengers destined for the downtown section of New York, the great financial and wholesale district, may alight at Harrison and take an electric train into the huge new station of the Hudson and Manhattan railroad at Church and Cortlandt streets by way of the McAdoo tunnels under the Hudson.

After changing engines the through trains for New York will leave Harrison on rails crossing over the old Pennsylvania tracks on a steel and concrete bridge, following a double track line on a high embankment across the marshy Hackensack meadows to Bergen Hill, where they will enter the tunnel tubes and pass under the waters of the Hudson into the station in New York, thence below the surface of Manhattan Island under the East river to Long Island City.

The central feature of the entire improvement is the passenger station in New York, the main entrance being on Seventh avenue between Thirty-first and Thirty-third streets. The station is divided into three levels, the tracks being forty feet below street level. The main entrance is for foot passengers only. Through an imposing arcade 225 feet long by 45 feet wide the passengers go to the main waiting room, the largest in the world, 277 feet long, 103 feet wide and 150 feet high. The arcade is flanked by shops on both sides, and at its further end are a restaurant, a lunch room and a cafe. Beyond is the concourse level, or station proper, being on the first level below the street surface and containing the grand waiting room, wherein are located the ticket offices, baggage checking windows, telephones and telegraph offices and other adjuncts arranged so conveniently that no retracing of steps is necessary. On the west, adjoining the general waiting room, are two subsidiary waiting rooms, each 68 by 100 feet, one for men and one for women. Each of these opens into retiring rooms.

The main baggage room, with 400 feet frontage, is on the same level. This large frontage is for the transfer wagons. It is directly beneath the arcade and the restaurant spaces on the level above. Baggage is taken in and brought out through a special subway. Motor trucks and elevators deliver trunks to the tracks below. On this level motor cars will be stationed.

The concourse, connecting by a wide thoroughfare with the main waiting room, is a covered assembling place 200 feet wide and extending the entire width of the station and out under the adjoining streets. The concourse is the vestibule to the tracks on the third and lowest level. Stairs descend to each of the train platforms. There are also direct approaches to the concourse from the two side streets. Between the main concourse and the tracks is the exit concourse, to be used for express purposes only. This is eighteen feet above the track level, with stairways and elevator conveniences. Staircases and gradual inclines lead directly to the side streets.

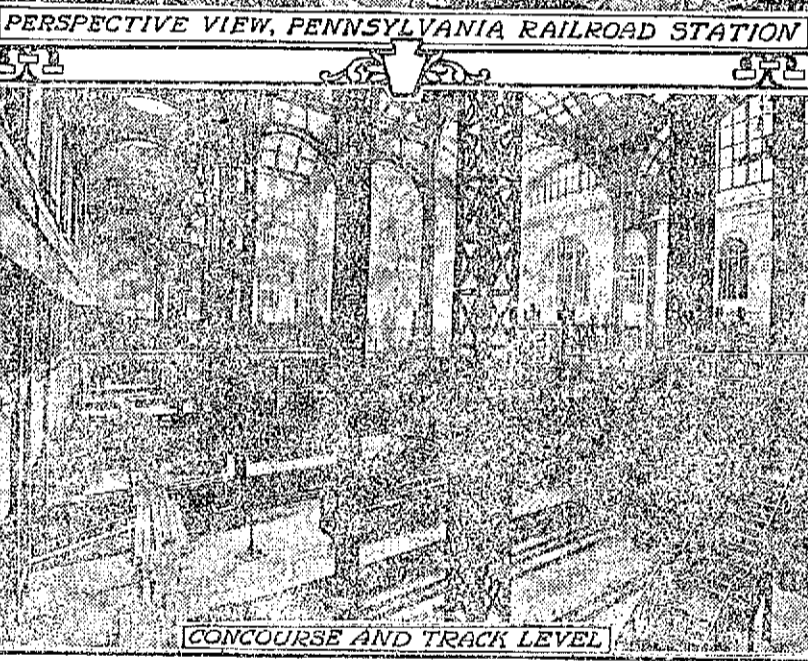

Into the north side of the station, extending along Thirty-third street, will run trains from all points on Long Island by way of the East river tunnels. This traffic can be handled independently of the general through traffic and the local traffic from the western approach. The train platforms are about thirty-six feet below street level.

Terminal Area Twenty-eight Acres.

To give some idea as to the magnitude of the station and its adjoining area of track approaches it may be stated that twenty-eight acres of land are included in the scheme, the station walls themselves enclosing eight acres. The first stone of the masonry work on the building was laid June 15, 1908, the task being completed July 31, 1909. The exterior walls, nearly half a mile altogether, required 400,000 cubic feet of pink granite. Inside the concourse 60,000 cubic feet of stone were used. This total of 500,000 cubic feet of granite required 1,340 freight cars to transport it from Milford, Mass., where it was quarried. In the construction of the building were used 27,000 tons of steel. Fifteen million bricks were set in place. The Roman Doric style of architecture was employed. The station covers the entire area bounded by Seventh and Eighth avenues and Thirty-first and Thirty-third streets. The building is of the dimensions of a great exposition palace, being 784 by 420 feet. The structure is described as "really a monumental bridge over the tracks, with entrances on four sides."

Colonnades on Each Side.

The Seventh avenue facade, composed principally of a Roman Doric colonnade, was conceived especially to express in the largest possible fashion a monumental gateway. It has been compared to the Brandenburg gate in Berlin, through which passes so much of the traffic of the German capital, though the New York gateway is much larger. The main body of the building reaches seventy-six feet above street level. There are colonnades along the Eighth avenue and the Thirty-first and Thirty-third street facades similar to the main colonnade, with sculptured groups above them supporting large ornamental clocks.

One of the impressive features of the great waiting room is the window treatment. On each side above the main body of the building are three semicircular windows of a radius of 33 feet 4 inches and 66 feet 8 inches wide at the base. There is also at each end of the waiting room a window of like size. The high ceiling of the waiting room is carried above the general roof level of the station by a domelike elevation which relieves the building of any suggestion of squatness. The interior of the waiting room was suggested by the great halls and basilicas of Rome, such as the baths of Caracalla, Titus and Diocletian and the basilica of Constantine.

The length of the tracks inside the station area of twenty-eight acres is sixteen miles. There are twenty-one standing tracks in the station, with eleven passenger platforms.

To clear the ground for excavating about 600 buildings were removed from the terminal area, for the site is in the midst of a fully built up city district. Three billion cubic yards of excavating were necessary. Streets crossing the terminal area are carried over by bridging. In fact, the whole area, exclusive of the station itself, is simply a bridged over excavation, so that the casual observer is unaware of the wonderful weave of excavation underneath.

For the first time when the Pennsylvania railroad was the Pennsylvania New York connecting railroad bridge there will be a through service from points west and south to New England by way of New York without change of train.

The Pennsylvania railroad in constructing this great improvement has built not alone for the present, but for the future. Included within a radius of nineteen miles from the city hall of New York, near the lower end of Manhattan Island, there was in 1890 a population of 3,326,098. By 1900 it had grown to 4,612,153. Five years later it was 5,494,635. In ten years it had increased 38 per cent. It is estimated that by 1915 the population of this territory will be about 6,000,000 people and by 1920 approximately 8,000,000.

Reasons For Improvement.

The enormous increase of railroad

traffic in and out of New York city within the past twenty years prompted the Pennsylvania railroad to undertake and carry to its successful culmination this great work. The reasons for the undertaking are thus expressed officially:

First.—To provide for the future by enlarging the present facilities for freight and passenger traffic because of the continuous growth in this traffic and to accomplish it before the cost became almost prohibitive or the task impossible because of the construction of other underground transportation lines.

Second.—To run its passenger trains into a central location in the city of New York instead of a station on the west bank of the Hudson river.

Third.—To open to the people in the thickly populated borough of Manhattan the residential sections of Long Island and to offer to Newark and other populous towns in New Jersey direct and quick access to the resorts on Long Island beaches.

Fourth.—To provide in all rail connections between the south and west on the one hand and New England and the east on the other.

Fifth.—To give the boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens, with their population of over 1,500,000, direct railroad connections to and from the New England, southern and western states and to supply freight facilities with similar connections in these boroughs, thereby properly serving the entire area of Greater New York through freight stations suitably located to develop its commercial interests.

Sixth.—To provide additional freight facilities and shorten the water transportation trip for the New England traffic across New York harbor from about twelve miles to three and four-tenths miles.

Seventh.—To make its Long Island railroad investment remunerative within a comparatively short period.

Eighth.—To obtain a proper share of the golden future by judicious expenditures in a territory having abundant promise, whether viewed from the growth of traffic in the past or the outlook for the future.

How the Tunnels Were Built.

The construction of the Pennsylvania railroad tunnels under the North and East rivers into New York and

New Jersey, attaining a maximum depth of ninety-seven feet below mean high water and built for a heavy and high speed traffic of great volume, was an undertaking with little or no precedent. To accomplish this work was a most puzzling engineering problem on account of the soft mud through which the tunnels were driven under the Hudson river.

The tunnels or tubes themselves consist of a series of iron rings, and the insulation of every ring meant an advance of two and a half feet. Eleven plates and a key piece at the top complete the circumference, and an entire ring weighs about fifteen tons. The cast iron plates, or sections of the ring, have flanges at right angles to the surface, and it is through these that the successive rings are held together with bolts. The record progress in one day of eight hours was five of these rings, or twelve and one-half feet. Hydraulic rams, placed against the flanges every few inches around the tube, were used to push forward the huge shields with which the tunnels were bored. Each shield weighed 191 tons. It had nine doors in it, and through these came the rock or sand or silt or whatever the material the tube penetrated.

If the tunnel project was to be a success the courses of the east and west bound shields had to be kept so true that they would meet exactly. To insure this the engineers calculated the difficulties closely, and a really remarkable system of reports was in effect from the first day work was started. Every morning they knew the progress made in the tunnels the day before to the very inch and the amount of rock and soil excavated to the cubic foot. The Pennsylvania railroad officers and the engineers held this perfect system and the thoroughness of each day's work chiefly responsible for the promptness of the meeting of the tubes. Engineers say, too, that no project was ever carried out where the emphasis was so entirely upon the results rather than upon the money it cost to attain them.

The shields in the north tube under the Hudson river met on Sept. 17, 1906. Each had traveled some 3,000 feet through a treacherous river bed, yet the meeting was perfect. About a month later the shields in the south

tube met in the same way. To fill in the gap where the shields met in the south tube a tunnel section that had been on exhibition at the St. Louis world's fair was used. It consisted of eight rings. The shields in the four East river tunnels met as perfectly as those in the Hudson tubes, and all were completed at about the same time. When the tubes were through from end to end the work of putting in the re-enforced concrete lining was started immediately. This lining is twenty-two inches thick. On each side of the tunnel there is a so called bench three feet wide, which serves as a walk, while within will be carried conduits for telegraph, telephone, signal and power wires.

In the construction of the tunnels nothing was left undone by the railroad company to protect the lives and health of the workmen. No engineering problem connected with the entire New York tunnel extension received more attention than the many precautions to protect the hundreds of men who, day and night, week days and Sundays and holidays, bored the under-river tunnels. Down under many fathoms of mud and rock the steel tubes which are to land passengers from the east and west into the heart of New York city were pushed steadily forward with no more waste of time than it took to change "shifts."

Underwater work has a fearsome sound—to those who have never seen it going on. Talk to men who have been engaged in it for years, and one gets another idea. There are plenty who can speak with authority, for the world was searched for men of experience to build the Pennsylvania tunnels. On the cross town shafts sixty Austrians who got their training in the Simpson tunnel were employed. There were engineers and foremen here who had tunneled in Egypt,

South Africa, England and America and who now are doubtless looking for other subterranean regions to conquer.

All the excitement was taken out of one novice's visit back of a tunnel shield by finding Tom Brown, the oldest foreman on the contractor's staff, seated on a pile of river bed silt gravely squeezing mud balls for the purpose of finding how much water the sand carried at that spot. That nothing but the air pressure kept the whole of the river from descending on his head worried him not the least.

But the dangers of the work? Dangers there were, or a certain risk of injury, but not enough to worry a man in good health who observed the rules that stared him in the face from every wall.

To make it as safe under the head of the river as it is on the land's surface was the aim of the Pennsylvania tunnel builders. The old Hudson river tunnel which crosses the Hudson at Merton street was abandoned at one time because so many lives were lost. The main difficulty was to keep the river from coming into the tube and drowning the workmen. The air under the heavy pressure required to keep the water from sweeping in sometimes blew out through the river bottom, and then the water poured in in such volume that there was little or no time for escape.

In the Pennsylvania railroad tunnels the life of the "sand hog" was almost as safe as that of the surface worker. Emergency locks, air curtains and emergency platforms or walks near the roof of the tunnel were provided so that in case of a blowout and consequent flooding of the tunnel the men would have a chance to escape through the air held in the top of the tunnel.

The most important of the rules enforced while the Pennsylvania tunnels were being built was one requiring the men to go slowly through the air locks. The rule was to take a minute for about two pounds of pressure—in other words, in coming out of a pressure of thirty-four pounds a man should spend not less than fifteen minutes in the lock. Finding that this rule was ignored, Henry Japp, managing engineer of the contractors who built the East river tubes, devised a valve which enabled the lock tender to regulate the change of pressure with mechanical exactness.

Before a man was permitted to work in the under-river tunnels he was put through a severe examination for heart and lung troubles and general condition. If he passed the medical inspection he was sent "down in the air" for an hour or two and then re-examined. If the second examination was satisfactorily passed he was put on a short shift for a week and then if he showed no ill effects was given a steady job.

Men of all nationalities built the Pennsylvania tunnels, negroes doing a large part of the job. Laziness was something the contractors never had to contend with. They say there must be something about the compressed air which generates energy and enthusiasm, for the "muckers"—commonly known as "sand hogs"—vied with one another to make the greatest progress.

SOME FIGURES SHOWING MILEAGE AND CAPACITY OF IMPROVEMENTS:

Maximum capacity of all tunnels per hour, 144 trains.

Storage capacity of station yard tracks, 386 cars.

Proposed initial daily service of Pennsylvania Railroad trains, 400.

Proposed initial daily service of Long Island Railroad trains, 600.

Length of river tube tunnels, single track miles, 6.8.

Length of land tunnels, single track miles, 6.8.

Length of run, Bergen Portal to Long Island Portal, 5.3 miles.

Total length of track in tunnels, exclusive of yard tracks in station, 16.5 miles.

Length of run, Harrison, N. J., to terminal station, 8.6 miles.

Length of run, Jamaica, L. I., to terminal station, 11.85 miles.

Boxing Club Officers Taken By Police

NEW YORK, May 17.—(Twin) Sullivan of Boston and Jimmy Clabby of Milwaukee refused to go on last night for the 10 round bout that was to have been the main attraction of the Marathon Athletic club at Brooklyn. They had good reason. Early in the evening the police entered the club house armed with seven warrants from the supreme court of Kings county for the owners and officers of the club, and for Jack (Twin) Sullivan, Mike's brother, Al Bonadict, with whom Jack fought 10 rounds last week, Tommy West, who acted as second for Jack, and Billy Madden, the man who brought out John L. Sullivan, and was in Bonadict's corner last week. Only the owners and officers of the club were arrested.

The warrants charged the officers of the club with selling tickets to a prize fight in violation of the law and charged the principals and seconds respectively of prize fighting and of aiding and abetting a prize fight.

There was great excitement when the arrests were made, but Sullivan and Clabby declined to take chances with the law, the club held six preliminary bouts as scheduled.

GENERAL MATTOCKS DEAD
PORTLAND, Me., May 17.—General Charles F. Mattocks, colonel of the 17th regiment in the Civil war and the only Maine man who held a general's commission in the Spanish war, died last night. He has been prominent in the Grand Army and Loyal Legion, and was a former judge in the probate court. He was 59 years old.

ROLLER INJURED

IN HIS WRESTLING BOUT WITH ZYBSZKO

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 17.—Stanislaw Zybszko, the Polish wrestler and a candidate for Frank Gotch's title as champion, last night defeated Dr. Roller of Seattle, in a finish match. Roller's left shoulder was badly wrenched when the Pole slammed him to the mat for the first fall.

It was announced that Dr. Roller was returning to the ring for the second bout against the advice of his second and when he reappeared it was seen that his left arm hung helplessly by his side. Zybszko quickly got behind him and when he began working upon the injured arm Dr. Roller's second threw up the sponge.

The time for the first fall was 1:05.40 and for the second 1:40.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION

A program has been prepared for the annual convention of the Lowell union, Christian Endeavorers, which will be held at the Paige Street Free Baptist church on Saturday afternoon and evening of this week. Not only will the Lowell district be represented, but visitors are expected from many out-of-town places.

The two main addresses will be given, one in the afternoon by Rev. Smith Baker, D. D., and in the evening by Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., the Christian Endeavor founder and referred to by Christian Endeavorers as Father Endeavor Clark. Dr. Baker's subject is to be "How to Build Up Your Own Society," and Dr. Clark will speak on "The Secret of Worldwide Success in Christian Endeavor."

Besides the two addresses, papers will be read on various subjects, and a good part of the program will be devoted to music. Supper will be served, followed by a reception to Dr. Clark.

EX-GOV. ROLLINS HORSE OWNERS

Faces a Charge of Given Advice as to Use of Medicines

NEW YORK, May 17.—While former Governor Frank West Rollins of New Hampshire has declared he had no idea of defrauding the customs oficers of New York by not declaring all

Although much has been written concerning the methods of administering medicines to horses, to this day many horse owners and caretakers exhibit a great amount of ignorance or carelessness in giving necessary medicines to horses. They may be given by the mouth, by the lungs and air passages, by applications to the skin and by hypodermics, injections and by enemas.

Those medicines to be given by the mouth consist in the main of powders, balls, drenches and electuaries. Powders should always be finely ground and free from irritating, poisonous or caustic substances, lacking disagreeable taste or smell. Such can easily be mixed with the feed or water. If given with the grain moistening them will ensure their being eaten rather than blown about or left in the feed box or manger.

Balls should be made about 2 inches long and three-quarters of an inch in diameter, soft and flexible. Medicine is of a disagreeable nature like physic, is much easier given as a ball than a drench. When balls are to be given, and physic is as important in the proper treating of the horse in many ills as it is in humanity, it is quite easily done if one goes about it in a cool and collected manner and proceeds along these lines.

Lead the horse up to the side of some elevation, upon which you can have a ring or hook above the head through which you can pass the end of the halter but do not make it fast. Have an assistant just hold it pulling the head up easily and quietly until the head or line of the face is just a mite above a horizontal line. Take the ball between the thumb and finger of hand, immerse it in oil or glycerine, open the horse's mouth gently, pull the tongue out and over to the left hand side allowing it to lay across the teeth and firmly but gently held by the hand, press the ball up the mouth well back at the root of the tongue, drop it there, remove the hands quickly and allow the tongue to be pulled back into the mouth. The horse will generally swallow a properly made ball without further effort on your part. It is well to have a pail of water handy, and if the ball is given when the animal is thirsty, he will readily drink and help to carry the ball along to the stomach.

FRANK W. ROLLINS

his dutiable goods, his hearing, which will be held next Friday, promises to bring out a spirited fight. Mr. Rollins and his son, who were arrested on the charge of smuggling at the dock, and Mrs. Rollins later appeared before the customs officials and gave bond for $2000 on the same charge.

KEPT PRISONER

Girl Was Found By the Police

NEW YORK, May 17.—Bruised and under-clothed, a girl who gives her name as Elizabeth Kelley, 19 years old, was taken by the police yesterday from a house in Bayonne, N. J. She says she has been kept a prisoner there by Joseph Figel, an Italian, for three months.

The girl has been in this country only six months. She says she met Figel in a moving picture show, and he induced her to enter his house by promises of employment. She was found yesterday nearly crazed with fright in a third story room. Women's clothes had to be borrowed before she could be taken out. She said her own had been burned by Figel to prevent her escape. Figel was arrested and held without bail.

WENT ON STRIKE

Lasters in Marlboro Quit Work

MARLBORO, May 17.—Fifty men employed in the last department of the Rice & Hutchins Middlesex factory at this place went on strike yesterday afternoon.

The grievance of the strikers against the firm is that two brother employees in the last department were discharged yesterday morning for what the strikers claim insufficient cause and the strikers have declared they will not return to work until the two discharged men are reinstated.

The real cause of the discharge of the two men, the strikers claim, is that one of them has been very active in the affairs of the union. Both of those discharged went out of the factory yesterday morning for some reason of their own when they returned they were notified their services were no longer required.

All of the men on strike are members of the United Shoe Workers of America and they held a meeting last night in their rooms in Warren block. After the meeting the strikers said there is no change in the situation. Many of the strikers are Greeks.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

Empire colony, 170, U. O. P. F., held its regular meeting in Pilgrim hall last night and much business of importance was transacted. Two candidates were initiated. The membership committee reported that everything was ready for the services to be held Monday evening, June 6.

An invitation to visit Garfield colony was accepted.

Butler Ames Co. 16, U. R. K. P.
The regular assembly of Butler Ames company, 16, U. R. K. P., was held last night, Lieut. Col. Robert Hall of Haverhill presiding. Edwin F. Lamson was installed as second lieutenant of the company. One application for membership was received. At the close of the business session a social hour was enjoyed.

Division 2, A. O. H.
A well attended meeting of Division 2, A. O. H., was held last night in Hibernian hall, with Vice-President Lynch in the chair. Considerable business of importance was transacted. Five propositions for membership were received and three candidates were initiated. There will be a special meeting on Sunday, May 21, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to complete all arrangements for the A. O. H. outing at Lexington park on Sunday, June 5.

WM. J. BRYAN

SPEAKS IN FAVOR OF COUNTY OPTION

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., May 17.—Speaking at the Overland theatre here last night after being refused by the county commissioners the use of the courthouse, Wm. J. Bryan urged the need of an extra session of the legislature to enact the initiative and referendum, whereby the question of county option might be removed from partisan politics. The large crowd was respectful and attentive.

Mr. Bryan said the attitude of the saloon interests was that they were opposed to county option, that they were unwilling that the people should vote on the question. He criticized the attitude of the anti-optionists of this country, who, he said, went so far as to oppose the free discussion of the initiative and referendum. He declared: The liquor interests are responsible for the forcing of the county option question in the arena of politics, and they have only themselves to blame for the results that shall follow the growing indignation against the impudence, the insolence of the liquor interests.

BOSTON, May 17.—Pickpockets were scored by Judge Murray in the municipal criminal court yesterday. Six men were arraigned for attempted larceny from the person, and the judge found all the prisoners guilty.

His Honor said: "The city is infested with pickpockets. It is getting so that it is unsafe to ride in an electric car or walk through the public thoroughfares. Every man brought before me for picking pockets or attempting to do so, who is found guilty, shall be made an example of."

John Long and Edward Miller were arrested while "working" an electric car on Huntington avenue last Thursday evening. Detectives Gleavey and Tinton of headquarters said Long had served sentences at state prison, the house of correction and Sing Sing.

NAVAL WARFARE

TOOK PLACE ON THE POTOMAC RIVER

WASHINGTON, May 17.—A bit of naval warfare took place yesterday on the Potomac river at Indian Head, Va., when the old United States navy ram Katabdin, which was stricken from the navy list last year, received her baptism of fire. It was not the fire of an enemy, but it was aimed at her with every intention of sinking her, if possible. Having outlived her usefulness as a fighting vessel, the curious naval vessel was clothed in modern 12-inch, high grade armor plate and a dozen ordnance experts directed the attack on her with the new soft nose naval shell, hurled through a big 12-inch gun. Anchored at a distance of about five miles the Katabdin served to assist the naval experts in ascertaining whether the new shell can be detected when it strikes at any angle or whether it would bite into the armor plate as the naval officers anticipated. Unfortunately for the public the navy department conducted the experiment with all possible secrecy.

ANOTHER ARREST

In Connection With Fitchburg Bank Swindling Case

FITCHBURG, May 17.—The arrest of Hector McLane at Bridgeport, Conn., late today, local police assert, closes the net about the suspects who, on May 4, buncoed the Worcester North Savings Institution out of $1700, using a deed and mortgage given by a man passing as George P. Sands and now alleged to be Hector McLane.

All the suspects in the swindle are in custody, two here, and one at Bridgeport.

Corbett J. McLane of Worcester who was arrested Sunday on a charge of larceny in connection with the swindle, was arraigned yesterday in the local police court and on his plea of not guilty a hearing was set for May 25, and he was held in surties of $2500.

Corbett J. McLane, according to the police, represented himself as Armstrong, an attorney when the deed figuring in the case was forged in the office of Atty. Jean Robichaud and the name of John Dohia was used.

It is claimed by the police McLane with his brother, Hector McLane, came here from Worcester about May 1, and formed the acquaintance of James Russell, who has been arrested under the name of James A. McNeil. The three men, according to the police, were all implicated in the deal whereby the savings institution took a mortgage on the property of John Dohia, which Hector McLane, who passed as George P. Sands, claimed he had purchased.

Hector McLane, according to the police, is the man who got the $1700 from the savings institution, and who is alleged to have passed himself as John Dohia in the law office of Attorney Robichaud.

Inspector Flaherty learned yesterday that Corbett J. McLane that it was his brother, Hector McLane, who arranged the scheme. The police have learned that Hector McLane recently attempted to secure money in the same way in Bridgeport, Conn. and he is now on bail there waiting for a hearing upon the complaint, charging him with attempt to defraud. A detective was here yesterday from Bridgeport after Hector McLane, as he is wanted in that city.

The police gave out the statement yesterday that Corbett McLane has made a complete confession, in which

TRAIN WRECKED

PITTSFIELD, May 17.—Traffic on the Boston & Albany railroad was blocked for several hours at Pittsfield Junction last night by the wreck of the Harlem express, bound from New York to North Adams. Although the locomotive left the tracks and turned over on one side, meanwhile plunging diagonally across the roadbed so as to block every track, only the engineer, Peter O'Donnell of North Adams, was thrown through the cab window and somewhat injured. The 25 passengers in the train were shaken up but none injured to any extent.

Besides the locomotive, a baggage car was derailed. The train was running slowly in the yard at Pittsfield Junction and was about to take the switch from the main line to the branch line leading to North Adams shortly before 8 o'clock, when the engine suddenly left the tracks and plunging across the roadbed, turned over on one side. Engineer O'Donnell had one foot slightly hurt, while his fireman escaped save for slight bruises received as he was hurled out. The engineer was taken to North Adams on a special train.

The route of the train was recently extended from Pittsfield to North Adams. There was a report current that the accident was due to rail spreading where repairs were being made, but the company officials would assign no cause for the derailment.

WILL THESE INSURGENT SENATORS SURRENDER TO PRESIDENT TAFT?

WASHINGTON, May 17.—From now until the close of congress the country is due to witness a spirited fight between the administration forces and six insurgent senators. Senators Bristow, La Follette, Duffell, Beveridge, Clapp and Cummins have not been in harmony with all the policies of the president. The president requested a score of senators to call at the White House and discuss various bills that he is anxious to have passed. Invitations were extended to some of the insurgents, and Cummins was among the number to respond, but he has not promised to follow the leadership of Taft, according to reports here.

she started for the coast, determined to work her passage as best she could. She sought employment in one town and city after another, always getting a little farther west. It took her a year to make her way to Chicago, and many months to save enough money to proceed on her journey. Slowly but surely she neared the goal, making her way through Illinois, Nebraska, Colorado, Arizona and finally, eight years from the time of her departure, she reached San Francisco. She readily found the grave, No. 745, west side, a new addition to San Francisco cemetery, where the remains of her brother were buried in 1905, three years after his death in Manila.

In a letter received yesterday she describes the burial place as beautiful, and expresses her deep appreciation of the efforts of Gen. Sullivan to have the remains of her brother brought from the Philippines to rest in his native land. He died of cholera. Miss Meehan has found work as a waitress in San Francisco.

BLOOD STANDS STILL
PILES CAN'T BE CURED UNTIL CIRCULATION IS RESTORED
It is useless to try to cure piles by operating or use of salves or suppositories—as long as the blood is stagnant in the lower bowel, new tumors will continue to form. Clear the blood—free the circulation. Then piles will leave for good. A successful, scientific, internal remedy is Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, sold under guarantee by Carter & Sherburne, Lowell, Mass. Hem-Roid does its work thoroughly. $1 for 24 days' treatment. Dr. Leonhardt, Col. Station B, Buffalo, N. Y. Write for booklet.

NO MORE BOXING

ECZEMA TWENTY YEARS CURED BY AN OIL

No matter if you have suffered for 20 years, we as druggists, know that your itch can be cured in one day, and that sooner or later—perhaps very soon—your skin will be as clean and pure as ever.

Wash your skin with a simple compound, the mild soothing oil of wintergreen, D. D. D. Prescription.

The first day, the first night of restful sleep will prove to you that we make no foolish exaggerated claims. Eczema sufferers must recognize that we certainly would not make such claims, if within a few minutes after trying the remedy you could prove us wrong; we know the itch is allayed at once.

While we have always sold D. D. D. Prescription at $1.00 a bottle, we do feel that everybody ought to be convinced at once. So we have arranged with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special offer—for the present—a trial size bottle at only 25 cents (for those who have never tried the remedy).

Carter & Sherburne, Falls & Burlington, N. H.

Haverhill, May 17.—The bouts that were to have been boxed here last night under the conduct of the Merrimack Athletic and Social Association, were called off late yesterday afternoon, when the promoters received word from the police that arrests would follow if any attempt should be made to carry out the program arranged.

Steve Kennedy of Lawrence was slated to meet Johnny Moran of New York in the main bout of 12 rounds, and Moran was already in the city when the ultimatum from police headquarters went forth. Stanley Ketchel was to have acted as his second.

Complaint was made to the city officials recently that the boxing clubs, although incorporated, were not keeping within the law, in that many persons were permitted to witness the bouts who were not bona fide members of the club.

Alderman Joe W. Bean investigated the complaint, and after a conference with City Marshal Mack he decided that the best course to pursue would be to put a ban on all boxing exhibitions, with the result that the lid is now on tight, so far as boxing is concerned in Haverhill.

LIQUOR CASE

Supreme Court Finds That Judge Morton Erred in Ruling

The full bench of the supreme court yesterday sustained the defendant's exceptions in the case of the Commonwealth vs. Ferdinando Radocci. Judge Morton of the superior court erred when he instructed the jury that as matter of law the receiving of wages would be hire and reward for the transportation of liquors into the city of Malden.

The defendant was employed by one Albroda, who runs a liquor store in Boston. The latter advised Radocci goods delivered free to Malden. He has his own delivery wagon and the defendant is employed by him to drive that delivery wagon and do other work about the store. Liquors are delivered in the wagon by the defendant to various parts of Boston as well as to Malden. Under the statute no one can for hire or reward transport liquors into a no-license city or town. It appeared that the defendant, who was transporting liquor to Malden, received weekly wages from his employer for all work done by him, which included the delivery of goods to Malden.

The court holds the question whether the defendant received any hire or reward was for the jury. "It will always be for the jury," says the court, "even though the price charged for the liquor is not made different for different distances, to say whether that price does not really include a charge for delivery, based perhaps upon what is expected to be the average cost of all the deliveries that will be made."

The court says that if the seller agreed to deliver free of charge for the carriage, it doubtless will be a question for the jury whether this is actually done or whether he really receives a hire or reward for the carriage by its being included in the price charged for the liquors themselves, but there is nothing in the statute which forbids him from delivering to his customers in another town the goods he has sold to them, if he really in good faith does this without receiving, either directly or indirectly in the price of the goods, any hire or reward for the carriage.

The court says "Whatever the seller may do himself he may do through his hired servant. In such a case the wages paid to that servant for all the services to be rendered by the latter cannot be said to be a hire or reward for the carriage of liquors, merely because those services may incidentally include the duty of carrying the liquors and delivery of them to the purchasers thereof. We need not consider how this would be if it appeared that the servant was hired and paid exclusively or even principally for the purpose of making such deliveries."

The full bench of the supreme court yesterday sustained the exceptions of the respondent in the case of Joseph Weeks against Sarah L. Brooks et al. on the ground that the superior court should have framed issues for a jury as asked for by the respondent. The court says that a jury trial where the title to real property is put in issue is not a privilege to be granted in the sound discretion of the court as in probate appeals or issues in suits in equity, but is a right guaranteed by the constitution.

The case related to the registration of a tract of land on Beacon street and Commonwealth avenue. The defendant wanted issues framed for a jury as to the title and the superior court refused to frame issues for a jury. The case went to that court on an appeal from the land court.

NO EXCUSE FOR UGLY FACES

Blotches, Red Noses and Pimples May Be Quickly Banished

It is very easy, after all, to be rid of unsightly pimples, itchy skin, blotches, red noses, liver, fever blisters and other blemishes, as a few applications of posonia, the new skin remedy, will quickly banish these troubles. Posonia is a fresh-colored, and containing no grease, beauty cream, not being detected on the face in the daytime. The actual healing and curing process is accomplished readily and without inconvenience, the skin being restored to its natural color.

Posonia can be had of any pharmacist who handles pure drugs, particularly Pills & Barkishaw, Carter & Sherburne, and the Elder-Jones Drug Co. Fifty cents' worth will answer either for the minor troubles mentioned, or in curing ordinary cases of eczema, for which disease it is the accepted specific. Testing stops at once.

Anyone who will write to the Emergency Laboratories, No. 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York City, can secure by mail, free of charge, a sample sufficient to show overnight results in clearing the complexion of removing pimples.

GIRL SUCCEEDS

After 8 Years Reaches Brother's Grave

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 17.—After eight years of effort the pluck and devotion of a Manchester girl, Miss Annie Meehan, has been rewarded by her reaching San Francisco on the pilgrimage to her brother's grave. William Meehan was a member of Gen. William Sullivan's company, the Sheridan Guards, at Chikamauga, and later served under his old captain in the 24th U. S. volunteers in the Philippines. He died in 1892, but it was several months before his relatives were informed of his death. A request for the shipment home of his body met with the reply that owing to the nature of his disease under military regulations the body could not be shipped home for several years, and then only to San Francisco at government expense.

Lowell Man Under Arrest

EXTRA

MASON ARRESTED

Charged With Breaking and Entering and Larceny

BANGOR, Me., May 17.—William Mason of Lowell, Mass., is locked up at police headquarters in this city, charged with having broken into the Bangor & Aroostook station at Brownville Monday night and stolen therefrom two one thousand mile mileage books and two pay checks. Mason, it is said, presented the pay checks in payment for clothing purchased at two Bangor stores and received the balance in cash. A mileage book which corresponds in number with that stolen at Brownville Monday night was disposed of at a pawnshop on Exchange street.

ONE MAN KILLED

In a Drunken Row in Fall River Following a Wedding

FALL RIVER, May 17.—A drunken row in which three wedding guests took part, occurred in this city at 1.30 this morning, resulting in the death of Henry Bonnoyer, aged 28, and the subsequent arrest of his two companions on manslaughter charges, furnishing a tragic ending to the wedding party.

Louis Gibeau, 27, and Wilfred St. Martin, 28, were placed under arrest and upon arraignment before Judge McElbough in the district court, this morning, continuances were obtained by the government, surety in the sum of $2500 each being ordered.

CLOSED DOOR IN PERSIA

ST. PETERSBURG, May 17.—Count von Pourtales, the German ambassador at St. Petersburg, has made representations to the government in reference to the Anglo-Russian note, which demands that Persia shall not grant strategic railroad concessions to, nor negotiate a loan with, a third power, thus impairing the security of earlier Anglo-Russian loans.

It is learned at the foreign office that Russia and Great Britain will refuse to admit the political interests of a third power in Persia. The situation is regarded here as a possible prelude to another Moroccan affair, and the Russian newspapers strike an alarmist note.

ROASTED TO DEATH

PORTLAND, Ore., May 17.—The famous man-monkey, "Charles the First," was roasted to death by the radiator in a baggage car on the Northern Pacific railroad coming from Seattle to Portland yesterday. He had been appearing on a western circuit, and was booked for nearly one hundred weeks ahead at $750 a week.

Charles sat up in the smoker with other vaudeville players until 6 a. m., when his owner, Charles Judge, put him to bed in his cage in the baggage car. The cage stood against a radiator, and during the night the steam was turned on. When Portland was reached it was found that the monkey was dead. There were evidences in the cage of his attempts to attract attention.

LOSS IS $25,000

Lumber Mill Burned to Ground

BANGOR, Me., May 17.—Fire early this afternoon burned Cassidy & Son's lumber mill to the ground and the flames spreading to the Ross Coal company's shed caused a total loss there. A large amount of lumber was burned. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

COMET VISIBLE TOMORROW
CAMBRIDGE, May 17.—The great sweep of the tail of Halley's comet of 80 degrees or the distance from the horizon to the zenith as observed by Rev. Mr. Metcalf at Tauton and Prof. Whiting at Wellesley college this morning lead the astronomers at the Harvard observatory to predict that this portion of the comet will be visible tomorrow morning from 1 a. m. until dawn.
No special preparations are being made at the Harvard observatory to observe the comet during the next few days as it is believed that its proximity to the sun will prevent any satisfactory results.

HYDE TO STUDY

Convicted Doctor to Keep up Work

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 17.—While Dr. B. C. Hyde who was convicted here yesterday of the murder of Col. Thomas Swope is in jail he is not going to permit his medical mind to become rusty. Today the physician had one of his attorneys bring him a score of texts from his office. He will study them regularly each day, he says. Dr. Hyde was known among the physicians as a serious student and was well abreast of the times in medicine and surgery. It was largely in recognition of his ability, it is said, that he was elected president of the Jackson County Medical society last fall.
Hyde has become popular with the prisoners at the jail. He is an honorary member of the "mock court" by virtue of having paid a dollar initiation fee when the regular cost is but fifty cents. The doctor also plays cards with the inmates.

EX-CHAMPION GANS

TO WAGE LIFE AND DEATH STRUGGLE

PRESCOTT, Ariz., May 17.—Joe Gans, former lightweight champion, passed through here last night on his way to Phoenix where he will wage a life and death struggle against consumption. Gans was gaunt and weak but game.

NEW FOUNTAIN

WAS IN OPERATION IN MONUMENT SQUARE TODAY

The unveiling of a monument with patriotic inscriptions by school children would not have attracted more children than did the opening for the summer months of the fountain at Monument square this forenoon. It would almost seem as if the world had passed around and that the children had all asked off to enjoy the occasion. The youngsters are particularly interested in the Monument square fountain because it affords them an opportunity for amusement not met with elsewhere. While the fountain is sanitary and a bit pretentious, the changes are no more of its exact pattern will be installed on one another. Once in a while a little fellow having a real good drink will be almost choked by the extra force of water due to the stoppage in other vents by his comrades. The children may enjoy it, but it's the day's best bet that their parents don't like it as it is so unusual sight to see children leaving the fountain with their clothes soaked with water.

WILL NOT STRIKE

NEW HAVEN, May 17.—There will be no strike of telegraphers, trainmen and agents on the New Haven road. At today's conference between the committee of the men headed by National Vice-President Peterson of their organization, and General Manager Higgins of the company, a satisfactory agreement was reached. The new agreement will be operative next Saturday.

WAR DECLARED

ON THE PRISON SHOPS IN MISSOURI

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 17.—Governor Hadley and his state board of prison inspectors will be taken to task within the next few days by the state board of barbers' examiners for permitting a barber shop to be operated in the penitentiary by three convict barbers that is patronized by the prison officials and employees. Patrons pay 50 cents a month. The barbers' board has been informed and this entitles them to as many shaves, hair cuts, shampoos, massages, etc., as they wish.
The fee goes to the state, and such this as the patrons give goes to the convict barbers. The state law requires all barbers to have a license. In a technical sense the prison shop is operated contrary to law, the barbers' board asserts.
It is contended that the shop is against public policy, as offering unfair competition against labor.

TROOPS RUSHED TO FRONTIER

GUAYASQUIL, Ecuador, May 17.—More troops are being rushed to the frontier. An artillery brigade splendidly equipped left for Machala in the southwestern part of Ecuador today. Congress will meet in extraordinary session on June 1 to deal with the trouble with Peru.

WILL NOT COMPROMISE

WASHINGTON, May 17.—At a conference of republican regulars in the senate this afternoon it was decided that compromise with the insurgent republicans was impossible. All propositions looking to an agreement through mutual concessions for an amicable settlement of remaining sections of the railroad bill are likely to be withdrawn.

ATTORNEY GENERAL SUPREME COURT

Takes Up Charges of Alleged "Graft" in Middlesex Co.

BOSTON, May 17.—Attorney General Malone told certain citizens of Middlesex county today that if they would file a formal petition he would grant a public hearing on the question of allowing the use of his name for an investigation of the finances of the county by the supreme court.

A number of the taxpayers of the county have filed charges against the county commissioners, the sheriff and several other county officials alleging mismanagement in the business of the county. They appeared before the attorney general today to request him to permit the use of his name, according to the provisions in such cases but the attorney general desires to hear more evidence not only on the side of the petitioners but of the respondents before taking further action.

PLEAD NOT GUILTY

Prominent Business Men Accused of Attempt to Bribe

WORCESTER, May 17.—Two prominent business men, John B. Simard, president of the Bay State Coal company and Eli Bouchard, resident agent for an insurance company, pleaded not guilty in the municipal court today to charges of attempting to bribe the license commissioners in connection with the issuing of liquor licenses. Simard was arrested last night while Bouchard was taken into custody today and both were released upon furnishing $3000 bail.

COWLEY ESTATE SUED

Did Copying and Stenographic Work for Late Judge Cowley and Received Promissory Note—Verdict of $372.60 Against Rev. Panos Giniere.

Verdict in Auto Case
The jury in the case of Kate Holland vs. Panos Giniere this morning returned a verdict of $372.60 for the plaintiff. The defendant ran into Mrs. Holland on Broadway while learning to run his auto. The machine was not registered at the time and Mr. Giniere had not received a license as a chauffeur.

Case Against Cowley
The case of Stella Smith vs. the estate of the late Judge Charles Cowley went to trial this forenoon. McIntire & Wilson appearing for the estate and Burke and Leggett for the plaintiff.

The plaintiff sued to receive $1696 on a promissory note dated Jan. 4, 1905, payable six months after date with interest at 6 per cent. Miss Smith testified that the note was given her in payment for services as stenographer during a period of over four years and that no part of the note had been paid. She stated that she was to receive $400 a year for her services. The acquaintance between them began when she had some litigation with the Daughters of Veterans which extended over a number of years.

On cross-examination Mr. Wilson produced some 30 letters all identified by Miss Wilson, which she wrote to Judge Cowley while she was residing in N. S. Acton. A letter dated Feb. 9, 1905, read in part, as follows:

"My dear, dear Judge: I am so happy this afternoon knowing what a dear good friend you are. I never do enough for you and I hope you will let me do everything in my power to help you. I am never so happy as when I can do something for you. I am so glad to have you as a friend, and I hope I am worthy of your friendship. I really do not know what to write about, and I write to let you know how I appreciate what you have done for me. I hope you and I can live long enough so I can show you how much I think of you." This letter was signed, "Your little girl, Stella."
Miss Smith stated that she wrote this letter under the impulse of the moment during her trouble with the Daughters of Veterans. She was happy because he had helped her.

GEN. SPRAGUE DEAD

WORCESTER, May 17.—The career of General A. B. Sprague as a soldier, politician, city official and business man closed today, death coming after an illness of two weeks.
General Sprague was born in Ware in 1832 and was mustered out of service in the Civil war as a brevet brigadier-general of volunteers.
He served the city in both branches of the city council and as mayor and has been sheriff of Worcester county and a collector of internal revenue. At the time of his death he was president of the Worcester Electric Light Co. and the Mechanics Savings bank.

Decided Against Napoleon Rivet

Convicted of Murder

Defendant's exceptions were overruled by the full bench of the supreme court yesterday. In the case of the commonwealth vs. Napoleon J. Rivet, convicted of murder in the first degree. He killed Joseph Galloux, Feb. 29, 1908, in Lowell.

The men were friends for several years. About 14 months before the murder, the deceased, at the instigation of the defendant, took out a policy of insurance for $1000 on his life, payable to his heirs or legal representatives. About a month after the policy was issued it was assigned to the defendant. The expenses of taking out the policy and the first and second premiums thereon, which were all that had become due and payable at the leigner, understood what a life insurance policy meant.

The court holds the trial justices properly excluded evidence offered by the defense to the effect that on one occasion late in the fall previous to the murder, Galloux had been found in one Daigle's shop dead drunk, that he frequently was in fights when intoxicated and frequently was seen with his face battered as a result of some fracas he had been in, and that he had been seen within a year before his death with a swollen face, black eyes and battered face generally. Defendant's counsel disclaimed having evidence that Rivet knew of the character of the deceased or of any intention to show that the killing was done in self defense. The court holds the doing of an act cannot be proved by evidence that from the habits of a person he would be apt to do it.

NAPOLEON RIVET

time of the death of the insured, had been paid by the defendant.

The government claimed that the defendant's motive for the crime was his intention to collect the amount of the policy, which had been pledged to him as collateral for a debt owed by Galloux. The court holds there was no error on the part of the trial justices in allowing the district attorney to prove that Rivet, who was a for-

GREAT DEMAND

For Telescopes and Opera Glasses

NEW YORK, May 17.—Whether this mundane orb is going to be swathed tomorrow night by that much discussed celestial vagrant, Halley's comet, which rambles around in space and enters the earth's backyard every seventy-five years for a visit, depends entirely upon the length of the wanderer's tail, and this astral visitor has a happy and elusive faculty of putting on and dropping off a 25,000,000 mile appendage all within a day or two.

Whether this Halley's visitor will be accosted with all his lengthy trappings tomorrow night is just what millions of people will sit up to see since the learned astronomers don't seem to agree.

6 O'CLOCK FORTUNE OF $500,000 Hangs on Memory of Mill Girl's Mother

MILLBURY, May 17.—Because her mother cannot remember the Christian name of her uncle Minard, Dora Renault, a 19 year old girl of this town, believes she is barred from a fortune of half a million dollars.

Ten years ago the uncle left Ludlow to seek his fortune in the west, and before he left he told Dora's mother, who was Miss Julie Minard before her marriage, that he was going to make good for the sake of the little grandniece.

On the eve of his departure he told Mrs. Renault that he would give all he had to her child. None of the family knew how the world was using Minard in the west, though there were frequent letters to Mrs. Renault. In the last letter Minard said that he was prospering, but made no mention of the amount of his fortune. He concluded his letter by saying: "And remember, Julie, I intend to keep my promise made years ago, and leave all that I have to little Dora."

Some weeks ago Mrs. Renault received news of his death, and also a communication from his lawyer that if she could prove that she is the woman in question, and that Minard was her uncle, her daughter would receive the legacy, which amounted to half a million dollars.

Mrs. Renault cannot remember the Christian name of her uncle, cannot remember where he was born, nor when, nor any of the details of his life. Her father's family was very large, and they were continually moving about through the different mill towns in Massachusetts. All the members of the family were hazy about their exact ages and even the parents were not sure. Instead of calling the uncle Jean, or Leon, or Gaston, or whatever the name might be, he was always called by the French diminutive of his surname, Minard, Minnie. He signed all his letters by this name, and that is the only one by which he was known to his friends.

So Dora drives all thoughts of Parisian millinery from her and sensibly confines her work in the mill in this town, until, as she says, she is really quite sure that it is not all a dream. And working beside her is a young man, Louis Rindgen, and he is the only one in the town who hopes that Mrs. Renault will not remember. For he is engaged to Dora, and in this great fortune he sees a barrier amounting between them, and he is accordingly despondent.

He is quite willing to go on working in the mill until they can afford to marry, and he does not consider the fortune the blessing that the Nameless Minard meant it to be.

Children Resent Attack on Chum

NEW YORK, May 17.—The predilection for moving picture shows has brought Emma Frey, thirteen years old, face to face with the decision of her life. Judge Parker, in the Brooklyn Children's court, yesterday gave her until Friday to decide whether she would return to the home of her wealthy foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mildner, of No. 103 Walworth street, or be committed to an institution.

"You are right on the turning point of going to heaven or hell," was the way Judge Parker put it in telling this girl his decision.

She certainly to enjoy the moving picture shows," said Emma, as she was taken to the home of the Children's society. "I don't see why I haven't the right to earn my own living, pay my board and do as I please."

Emma Frey is one of the most interesting problems ever brought into the Children's court. Her father was a poor man, but her mother had other children to support. She was welcomed into the family as if she had been born into it, and has since had every care, luxury and attention.

The girl proved unusually bright in her studies, and last year was graduated from the public schools. Mrs. Mildner was ready to send her to a private school to round out her education, but Emma frowned and said she had had enough of books.

She began to show her month for moving picture shows some months ago. She was then ten years old. Her father was dead and her mother had nearly 8 o'clock and then put on her best gown and hat and sauntered to this or that five cent theatre.

Generally she did not get home until 11 o'clock, and her foster parents began to object. She resented this, and a few days ago she began to look for work, telling her friends that as soon as she found a job she would run away from home. This forced the Mildners to have her brought into court.

"We have an automobile and three horses which are at Emma's disposal if she cares to amuse herself with them," said her foster brother yesterday.

Whatever Emma's decision she will cease to be a regular patron of the picture shows. If she is committed to an institution she obviously can't attend and Judge Parker will make her return to her foster parents coincident with her agreement that she will permit them to arrange her amusements.

CONVICTS MISSING

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 17.—Dr. Burns, state physician of prisons, returned last night from Lucile, where a fire destroyed a prison stockade. He said "Twenty-seven convicts are missing; there is no doubt they are dead. The three white convicts escaped. The stockade was burned by the convicts who attempted some time ago to break out of the prison. It is believed that most of the convicts were sleeping when the fire alarm was turned in and a stampede that followed resulted in the deaths."

STRIKERS ARE QUIET

HANNIBAL, Mo., May 17.—The arrival today of four companies of soldiers and a heavy rainfall quieted the striking workmen at the plant of the Atlas Portland Cement Co. at Hannibal, four miles from here, where a riot was threatened yesterday.

MORSE PETITION

Signed by Son of President Taft

NEW HAVEN, May 17.—Robert Alphonso Taft, son of the president, has signed the petition for the release of Charles W. Morse from the Federal prison at Atlanta. The petition is addressed to President Taft, and the son therefore is asking his father to free the imprisoned father of Edwin Morse, who is young Taft's classmate at Yale.

Robert Taft placed his signature to the petition along with all the other members of the senior class, and without consulting his father or even telling him about it. Young Morse is very popular with his classmates, and not one refused to sign. The petition was circulated by Edward C. Roberts, of Hartford, son of a former governor of Connecticut, and a close friend of young Morse and Taft, Jr.

Interesting in this connection is the fact that President Taft will be here soon to see his son and young Morse receive their sheepskins at the Yale commencement. There is a report that young Taft will make a personal appeal to his father at that time in behalf of his friend Morse.

Despatched from Washington tell of a new setback in the Morse battle for freedom, however. The supreme court yesterday denied the motion of Martin W. Littleton, representing the convicted banker, for leave to file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. This seems to remove the last hope of a new trial, and unless the president pardons him, Morse must serve out his 15 year sentence.

Mrs. Morse left Washington a few days ago, after getting the signatures of 50 representatives and senators to the petition for her husband's pardon. It is understood the petition has more than 100,000 names. Mrs. Morse has gone to Atlanta to consult with her husband.

IS HELD IN $2500

Woman in State of Collapse

MILLVILLE, N. J., May 17.—The police continued digging yesterday in the cellar and around the outside of the principal building on Mrs. Elizabeth Ashmead's alleged "baby farm." Late yesterday parties believed to be charred human bones were found in a hole near the back door. They were placed in the hands of the coroner for microscopic examination.

Every foot of the property used by Mrs. Ashmead will be excavated. Although the revelations so far are not as startling as anticipated, the police are as energetic in the investigation as when it was begun.

Mrs. Ashmead is still in prison, in default of $2,500 bail. She is in a state of hysteria, and declares she is innocent of wrongdoing. She denies the charges made against her by her daughter, Mrs. Grace Ashmead Standford.

A young couple who said they were "Mr. and Mrs. C. T. L. Knowles," of New York, among the six persons arrested on last yesterday, "knowles" brother is said to be a high official of the Du Pont Powder company. The brother arrived here yesterday and furnished the security, giving two $1000 bank notes. The authorities believe the young man is of a wealthy family and will forfeit bail.

Examination of Mrs. Ashmead and witnesses began yesterday, before Mayor Smith. J. Hampton Philbin, prosecutor of Cumberland county, will conduct the inquiry.

Relatives of Mrs. Ashmead are said to have refused their assistance. Mrs. Ashmead is said to be among those who have left her to fight alone.

PROHIBITION QUESTION

DENVER, Colo., May 17.—Important questions are being decided by voters of Denver at the municipal election today, the prohibition problem and the granting of a twenty year franchise to the Denver Union Water Co. being the principal questions.

Three solutions of the prohibition problem are offered the voters. First, the city wide prohibition; second, high license and the restriction of the number of saloons to one for every 700 inhabitants; third, continuance of present conditions, a 1000 annual license fee and no restriction on the number of saloons.

CREDIT MEN MEET

NEW ORLEANS, May 17.—More than 1000 delegates from all sections of the country are in attendance on the annual convention of the National Credit Men's association beginning its sessions here today. Representatives of the fund are expected by the association for the suppression and prosecution of fraud will be one of the most important matters under consideration. E. H. McAdow is president.

FEDERATION OF ARTS

WASHINGTON, May 17.—With an address of welcome by Franklin MacVagh, the secretary of the treasury, the first annual convention of the American Federation of Arts opened here today for a three days session.

This organization, formed here a year ago for the purpose, among others, of improving municipal and national art affairs, is a definite body, numbering in its many chapters such organizations as the Museum of Fine Arts and the Metropolitan Improvement League of Boston, the Corcoran gallery of art, Washington; the American Fine Arts society, New York; the Art Institute of Chicago; the University of Pennsylvania, and many other great educational institutions.

A wide range of interesting papers will be read before the convention by persons prominent in the movement for the betterment of civic art.

NEW DIRECTORS CHOSEN

NEW YORK, May 17.—James Doherty and Ellsworth S. Williams were elected directors of the United States Rubber Co. at the stockholders meeting in New Brunswick today to succeed W. P. Moore and J. P. Watson, Jr. Following the election of the directors there was a protest lodged by six stockholders against the acceptance of President Cols' report as regards the action of the syndicate in purchasing the stock of the Revere Rubber Co. A successor to J. J. Watson, Jr., as treasurer will be chosen at a meeting of the board on Friday.

MILK INVESTIGATION

Can be Kept Sweet Three Weeks, Says C. H. Hood

BOSTON, May 17.—"We have not obtained our whole supply of milk from New York and Vermont in the past because we have been slow," declared C. H. Hood, member of a large contracting firm in Boston, in continuing his testimony before the milk investigating committee of the legislature today.

"When we are through with this investigation," he added, "we shall put in a lot of work and study to find where we can obtain milk the cheapest."

He said that he was obtaining milk now from a greater distance than ordinarily and getting it cheaper, including the additional transportation, than the price the producers demanded.

Clean milk, according to Mr. Hood,

can be kept sweet three weeks or more. His company is now delivering milk sixty hours old when it reaches the consumer. He testified that rather than raise the price of milk last winter his company lost about $40,000 and he did not care to raise the price now because his company would lose many customers. He criticized the railroad transportation facilities, saying that they were not arranged justly or fairly for the contractors and producers.

The New York system of inspecting dairies, he said, was superior to that in vogue in New England and the New York inspectors give the farmers valuable assistance which is not given by the New England men.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Man Killed Wife and Ended His Own Life

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Frank Fenton, sporting man, yesterday shot and mortally wounded his wife, Virginia, at the threshold of her mother's home in New York avenue, and then turning the revolver on himself, blew out his brains. Mrs. Fenton died in the Emergency hospital. Jealousy prompted the deed.

Fenton was known at race tracks throughout the country, and Mrs. Fenton, who was 28 years old, is best remembered as a member of the presidential colony at Oyster Bay during 1902 and when as the wife of Secret Service Operator Richard H. Taylor, she was known as "The Belle of Oyster Bay."

Taylor, who divorced her, was one of the secret service men who, in the early years of Roosevelt's administration, was detailed to guard the president. After the divorce, about five years ago, the former Mrs. Taylor married Fenton, who recently had been hard up financially, as a result of a cleaning out he suffered at Jacksonville.

Life returned to Washington within two or three days, and got a room at No. 302 Twelfth street, this city. Mrs. Fenton was then staying with her mother, Mrs. Philip Riley. It is known that Fenton and his wife had not been getting on well together recently. In fact, there are good reasons for the statement that Mrs. Fenton had brooked her former husband, who is said never to have lost his love for her. He never forgot her as "The Belle of Oyster Bay."

Fenton, who had borrowed money from a newspaper correspondent last Saturday, appeared again yesterday after a visit to New York and left his friend a few minutes before two o'clock, saying he was going to keep an appointment with his wife.

It is surmised that the two met and that Mrs. Fenton told her husband she was through with him. Acquaintances saw them walking in New York avenue about half past two yesterday afternoon and they seemed to be talking excitedly. At two-forty they reached the house at No. 1120 New York avenue. Mrs. Fenton preceded her husband up the steps. He followed her into the house, and almost immediately the shots were fired.

MEN SERIOUSLY INJURED

WOONSOCKET, R. I., May 17.—A staging in the interior of the new church of the Holy Family, South Main street, fell under the weight of three stucco workers at 11:30 this morning. All were seriously injured in the fall of 20 feet and were taken to the Woonsocket hospital. Donato Dinico, aged 28, of Cambridge, fractured a right rib and was injured internally. Antonio Nutch, aged 31, of Cambridge, Mass., had his left foot fractured. Marshall Davison, aged 24, of New Britain, Conn., foreman and member of a company of contractors, the Bianconi Co. stucco workers of East Cambridge, received a fracture of the right ankle.

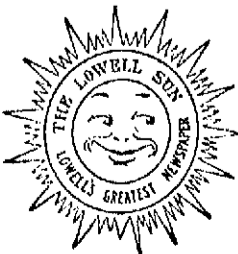

DAMAGES OF ONE CENT

LOUISVILLE, May 17.—After a hard-fought legal battle Ferdinand Rapp, a collector for a clothing house, was awarded a verdict of one cent and costs against J. H. Dunlap, whose bulldog had attacked him. The complaint was that the Dunlaps kept the bulldog for the specific purpose of standing between them and over-insistent creditors.

Rapp made a record dash around the house, with the dog hanging to him, yelling for help in both German and English, and finally sought safety in Mrs. Dunlap's bedroom and was rescued.

The evidence consisted chiefly of a pair of trousers, which resembled a storm flag after a cyclone, and a coat with the left wing gone.

The court held that if Rapp had remained in the yard he would have been well within his rights and entitled to recover more than nominal damages, but when he entered Mrs. Dunlap's bedroom he was technically a trespasser and lost his legal standing.

THE HEIKE CASE

The Hearing Was Begun Again This Morning

NEW YORK, May 17.—Completing the work of filing the jury box was expected to occupy only a short time when the trial of Charles R. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining company, was resumed today in the United States circuit court. Heike, with five others, is charged with conspiracy to cheat the government out of sugar duties by underweighing cargoes. He is the highest officer of the so-called sugar trust to be prosecuted in connection with the sugar underweighing scandals and is specifically charged with endorsing checks drawn by the government for the refund thought to be due the sugar company when the alleged false weights were turned in by the weighers. Heike pleaded immunity but his plea was disallowed by the United States supreme court.

A significant question was asked

each of the talesmen today by Henry L. Stimson, the special government prosecutor in charge of the sugar cases. Mr. Stimson's query was: "Have you been approached by any one since you were called as a talesman?"

It was supposed that Mr. Stimson's inquiry was because of representations that a prospective juror had stated privately to the court that someone had approached him relative to the outcome of his duty as a juror since he was summoned as a talesman. None of the jurors, however, has been approached. It was learned that it was James Toole, president of a typographical union who had reported yesterday that he had been approached soon after he was called as a talesman. Toole was excused from service on the Heike trial and instructed to return to court Monday next.

Shortly before noon the jury was completed.

NEW YORK, May 17.—Leaving no explanation, Mrs. Grace Hartenstein, pretty and young wife of Frederick Hartenstein, superintendent of the Long Island Railroad company, committed suicide last night by swallowing carbolic acid in apartments she was occupying at No. 67 West Thirty-eighth street.

Mrs. Hartenstein, who had been separated from her husband for two years, went to the Thirty-eighth street house three weeks ago. She was very reticent, remaining in her rooms on the second floor of the house most of the time, and passing only the necessary time in the lobby. Mrs. Anna O. Hagstedt, yesterday afternoon friends called and took Mrs. Hartenstein for an automobile ride. She returned at 4 o'clock and ran lightly up to her rooms.

Two hours later Edward A. Torbert, another lodger in the house, was alerted from Mrs. Hartenstein's apartments when he heard a thud as though a heavy body had dropped. Rushing within, he saw Mrs. Hartenstein prone on the floor, her lips burnt black and a broken bottle lying near a dresser.

In spite of the first aid applied by Dr. Walstein M. Tompkins, of No. 4 West Thirty-eighth street, Mrs. Hartenstein died soon after. A search of the dead woman's apartments revealed only the broken bottle which had evidently contained two ounces of carbolic acid. On the bottle was labelled "Carbolic Acid, Dr. Henry B. Hale, 217, 10." No note or other explanation of any kind was visible.

Dr. Henry B. Hale lives at 75 West End avenue. He said over the telephone Sunday night that he had known Mrs. Hartenstein as a professional capacity since November, 1909, but that he could not remember giving her the carbolic acid prescription.

"Mrs. Hartenstein lived at 32 West 98th street until two months ago, when she left, saying she was going west," said Dr. Hale. "She lived at the 95th street address with a man who posed as her brother. I treated him once for a broken leg, and I know his name, but I must refuse to give it at this time."

Hartenstein reached the 35th street house some time after his wife had committed suicide, having been summoned by telephone.

"I don't know why she did this," said Hartenstein. "A big, smooth shaven man of 40. Although she was suing me for divorce, I loved her dearly, and would have given up my life for her. We had not been living together for two years, but she was making for an allowance of $100 a month since we separated."

The Hartensteins were married thirteen years ago in Delmonico's, and Mrs. Hartenstein was 32 years old. Her parents are prominent in Ontario, Canada. With the permission of Coroner Felberg, the body will be shipped to Bay City, Mich.

At 22 West 95th street, it was said Sunday night that Mrs. Hartenstein had been living there alone up to two months ago, when she had left, saying she intended leaving the city.

Persons at her home said that Mrs. Hartenstein had recently devoted considerable time to the study of aeroplanes and had made one or two inventions. They mentioned one or two mechanical publications in which her work was to have been featured. The inventions related to aeroplanes. They said the dead woman had no children. But what led to the separation between Hartenstein and his wife, Coroner Felberg did not seem to know.

A STOLEN BABY

Made Two Trips Across the Ocean

NEW YORK, May 17.—Rudolph Jasper, less than two years old, was restored to his mother's arms in Hoboken yesterday on the arrival of the North German Lloyd steamship Prinz Frederick Wilhelm after he had made a trip all by himself across the ocean and back.

Mrs. August Jasper lived in Grace street, Jersey City Heights. On April 22, she declared yesterday, after a quarrel with her husband, she fled with a younger baby to the home of a neighbor. When she returned a little later she found her husband and her boy Rudolph gone.

For two days she and the police searched for the child and at last learned that he had been put on the steamship Prinz Frederick Wilhelm, in the care of a stewardess. The stewardess was told that the child's grandmother would be awaiting him in Bremen.

The German consul in Hoboken was at once notified and he cabled to Bremen to have the child returned.

Beaming and happy and none the worse for his sea voyage, the little fellow came down the gangplank yesterday in the arms of the stewardess and was smothered in tears and kisses by his mother. A host of her friends were on the pier with her.

THE MODERN TREND

THE SUN Is On Sale At Both News Stands In the Union Station BOSTON

A mixture of whiskey, beer, manilla love making and back-yard sentiment, was what Judge Hadley considered the cause of the flare-up between George Pelletier and Alice St. Onge which was aired before him in police court this morning.

According to the story told the court George and Alice have had one experience on matrimony's sea, but the former is now a widower and the latter a widow and about a year ago they began to keep company and decided that as soon as they secured enough money they would get married.

Matters went along very well for several months when the couple got into the habit of drinking and then the little money which they had saved up for the forthcoming marriage began to diminish. A few months ago the woman's money dwindled away to nothing and George advanced her some, according to his testimony.

A few days ago the couple were in the woman's room and after considerable liquor had been disposed of the woman said that Pelletier threatened to get rid of her. Pelletier said that he said nothing of the kind. He said that the woman owed him money and when he asked her for it she intimated that he would have to wait for it and he said he would fix her if she did not come forward with the money before Saturday night.

Pelletier said that he had no intention of doing the woman any harm and that he thinks her condition was such that she imagined a good deal more than the reality. "I'll tell you one

The court found the defendant guilty and ordered him to furnish $100 bonds to keep the peace for six months.

There were a number of cases which were scheduled to be heard this morning, but owing to the fact that several of the lawyers were engaged in the superior court, some were out of town and other cases were not ready, there was quite a number continued.

William Livesey, charged with being drunk, entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to four months in jail. Arthur O. Hawke pleaded guilty to a complaint of drunkenness and was sentenced to three months at the same institution.

Jeremiah Linnehan, who was on parole from the state farm, will be returned to Bridgewater. William E. Brady, another parole man, will be returned.

Eight first offenders were fined $2 each and eight simple drunks were released.

William L. Hamblett was fined $6.

Larceny of $10

Hector Penal was arraigned before Judge Hadley this morning on a complaint charging him with drunkenness and the larceny of $10 cents from Della Duppre. He entered a plea of guilty to both complaints and was fined $10 for the larceny and the case of drunkenness was placed on file.

ora were Cornelius Cassidy, Patrick Roarke, John McClear and Patrick Corey. Burial was in the Catholic cemetery, where the final prayers were read by Rev. Fr. Heffernan. Undertaker M. H. McDonough & Sons had charge.

LONDON, May 17.—The body of King Edward was taken with stately pomp from Buckingham palace this morning on the first stage of the journey to the grave and now lies in state in Westminster hall, where hundreds of thousands will pay a last tribute to the dead monarch before the final progress through the streets of the capital on Friday.

The procession from Buckingham palace to Westminster hall passed through double lines of red coated soldiers flanked by rows of stalwart policemen and a mass of silent, black garbed humanity.

The buildings along the route were heavily draped with mourning. The embassies in Carlton house terrace were covered with funeral pall of black and purple, relieved occasionally by green wreaths and bouquets of white lilies.

Minute Gun Fired

The first intimation that the crowd, which had been waiting for hours, had of the approach of the funeral cortege was the booming of the first of sixty-eight minute guns which were fired at St. James park, followed by the tolling of Big Ben, the great clock in the tower of the house of commons, which heretofore had been heard only as it struck the hour, and the roll of muffled drums.

Then a guardman with sword reversed came down the Mall at measured tread, two other guardsmen following close behind. Then came the officers of the headquarters staff, the army counsel and the board of admiralty. As these appeared the troops came to a half salute with reversed swords and remained thus until Field Marshals Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener of Khartoum, the admirals of the fleet, the chief justices and the lords of the house of commons, which heretofore had been heard only as it struck the hour, and the roll of muffled drums.

As the gun carriages on which the casket was borne approached, the order "Rest on your arms!" was given sharply. With heads bowed the soldiers kept their eyes on the ground while the body of the late king passed by, coming to attention and firing the royal standard which was carried immediately behind the casket and in front of King George, who, like the officers and other members of the royalty, was at foot.

The King's Sons

The Duke of Cornwall and Prince Albert, two little figures in the natty uniforms of naval cadets, followed their father, King Frederick of Denmark, King Haakon with the Duke of Connaught, who then came next and then followed the other members of the British and foreign royal families in gorgeous uniforms, the only touch of mourning being the black bands on the sleeves of their coats. An officer of the late king's household, carrying all of them in bright uniforms, but a few of them in mourning dress, followed.

The greatest interest of the crowd was aroused at the approach of the first carriage, for in this rode the queen mother, Alexandra, to whom the hearts of all Britisheers have gone out during the past week. Her Majesty, wearing the deepest mourning, had lifted her veil and the people reverently raised their hats to the pathetic figure who, even in the hour of her great grief, acknowledged the silent testimony of sympathy by bowing low. The queen mother was accompanied by her sister, the Dowager Empress Marie of Russia, and her daughters Princess Royal and Princess Victoria. Queen Mary occupied the second state carriage, having for the occasion surrendered the first place to her mother, as queen, she was entitled. Her Majesty was preceded by the sovereign's escort, the only exception troops participating with the exception of a few stationed at points along the route. Queen Mary was accompanied by her daughter, Princess Mary and Prince Henry.

Several state carriages, drawn by caparisoned horses, carried the ladies of the royal families and the suites of the queen mother and the queen.

Arrived at the palace yard of Westminster where a dense throng had gathered the gun carriage stopped, the palls were removed and the bearer company composed of lifeguards lifted the casket and carried it into the hall. The dominating feature of the procession was the impressive simplicity. There were 3000 troops afoot and mounted and 12,000 sailors along the route but in the procession itself the largest body of uniformed troops was the massed bands of the guards regiment numbering 250 under Lieut. Morgan, the senior bandmaster of the British army which played funeral marches. Upon leaving Buckingham palace a corps of sixty drums played a special introduction, at the conclusion of which the massed bands took up "God Save the King."

The most striking feature of the music was provided by a body of forty pipers who struck up "Flowers of the Forest" as the procession passed Marlborough, the music bringing tears to the eyes of many in the great crowd. During the horseguards' parade the band played "Chopin's march funebre" and as the procession approached Westminster hall the strains of Handel's "Dead March from Saul" were heard.

It was a gloomy morning, clouds filling the sun in striking contrast with the brightness of the past few days. The spectacle at Westminster hall during the brief services when the casket was deposited there was a solemn and moving picture of deep contrast.

Upon the royal ensign at the head of the casket were placed the jewel crown, the orb and scepter. King George stood at the foot of the casket with the queen mother, Queen Mary and the young princes. Behind them were the members of royalty who had followed the body and a group of twenty and a half of the black with long white wings and a touch of color relieving their sombre garb. Around this body were stationed the officers of the court, the early marsh, black rod, silver stick and others in their brilliant uniforms.

In long rows on either side and extending nearly the length of the hall were massed the peers and the members of the house of commons, more than 400 from each chamber. All of these who included many of England's foremost statesmen, were in informal black dress. The others who made up the great assembly were in full uniform, which formed a shining field of color in which gold and scarlet predominated.

Mrs. Reid witnessed the procession from a house in Carlton house terrace, but Mr. Roosevelt spent the morning answering his accumulated correspondence.

WOMAN'S SOBS
Moved Several Jurymen to Tears

BOSTON, May 17.—Weeping as she sat at the witness stand in the superior court at East Cambridge yesterday afternoon before Judge Pierce, Mrs. Emma Frances Heath of Malden told how her husband's affections were lost to her, in her $50,000 suit for alienation of affection against Mrs. Sarah Merriam, owner of the Hotel Evelyn, Malden.

She was telling of how her husband, Nathaniel H. Heath, manager of the hotel for Mrs. Merriam, came to her in 1908 and told her that he did not love her when she broke down entirely and throwing herself forward, buried her head in her arms on the witness stand, allowing the sobs to completely control her. Nor was she alone, for several of the jury sobs wept. Judge Pierce turned his head away, while men and women spectators let the tears trickle down their cheeks unnoticed.

At last she resumed her story, and in a trembling voice told of the conversation with the husband, who, in the little parlor, said that he did not love her, that she and her son, Willie must look out for themselves.

She told of her husband selling the Hotel Evelyn to Mrs. Merriam, of his going to live there as manager and leaving her alone in their home on Washington street, Malden. She told of her asking him to return home, nights, and of his saying that he would soon return home, and of his growing intimacy with Mrs. Merriam. How on one night in November, 1906, while he was sick at home with the grip, Mrs. Merriam had called on him and in leaving had kissed him, of a call by Mrs. Merriam on Christmas day, when Mrs. Merriam brought the family gifts and in leaving again kissed the husband.

During the years that followed she said that Mrs. Merriam had kept up the intimacy, and that the husband never came home except sometimes during afternoons. She related of finding Mrs. Merriam in the hotel with her husband, and of asking her if she loved Mr. Heath, and of the Merriam woman saying that she did.

The afternoon session closed with Attorney Walker, counsel for Mrs. Merriam, asking questions of Mrs. Heath, while Mrs. Merriam sat near, unable to hear anything that was going on for she is deaf.

AFTER 3 YEARS
Alleged Smuggler Has Been Caught

HOULTON, Me., May 17.—After patiently waiting three years and watching all night several times for Louis Brissette, who was wanted for the alleged smuggling of liquor and sale of the same without paying a federal tax, the federal officials were successful yesterday in capturing their man without a struggle.

On July 3, 1907, a "line store," kept by Brissette on the boundary line between Maine and New Brunswick near Limestone, was raided by the United States officials and torn down as a nuisance.

Brissette escaped to the Canadian side and since has been running a small hotel just across the border and a sawmill on the American side.

Learning that he was near the sawmill Sunday, Deputy United States Marshal Ferdinand E. Stevens of Portland and Deputy Customs Collector George Thayer of Limestone laid in wait for him all night and early yesterday caught him unawares.

They visited the Azores, the Madeira Islands, Gibraltar and cruised up the Mediterranean to Algeria, Africa. They next toured Italy, visiting Rome, Florence, Venice, Milan, Naples and Pompeii. From Italy they went to Switzerland and visited Zurich, Bern and Geneva, finally winding up with a week in Paris.

Mrs. D. L. Page gave a birthday party yesterday afternoon at her home in Rogers street for Millicent Root and the 12th anniversary of the young lady was made a day to be remembered. The occasion was a very pretty and a very pleasing one.

CAPABLE MIDDLE AGED MAN wanted to milk cows morning and evening and mind them in the pasture. Inquire 129 Mammoth road, Dracut.

Office of City Solicitor,
Lowell, Mass., May 16, 1910.
Board of Police, Lowell, Mass.

Gentlemen: I have your request for an opinion as to whether a common victualer's license and a billiard and pool license may be granted on the same premises, where these premises consist of only one room. After some consideration, I find one obstacle in the way of your issuing such licenses under the conditions indicated. The acts of 1908, chapter 363, provide that minors shall not be admitted to billiard and pool rooms without the written consent of their parents or guardians. Revised laws, chapter 102, section 5, provide that common victualers shall at all times be prepared to furnish suitable food for strangers and travelers.

Now in complying with the law in the one case, a licensee might be guilty of a breach of the law in the other. This being so, I am of the opinion that under such conditions the board would not be justified in granting the two licenses.

Respectfully submitted,
Wm. W. Duncan,
City Solicitor.

SECRETARY KNOX TO ACT
WASHINGTON, May 17.—There is reason to believe that Secretary Knox contemplates taking some immediate action, having for its object the re-establishment of peaceful relations between Peru and Ecuador. The state department officials, however, decline to discuss the matter at this time.

NEW HAVEN BILL REPORTED
BOSTON, May 17.—A bill permitting the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R. Co. to purchase a controlling interest in the Berkshire Street Railway Co. now controlled by the New England Investment and Securities Co., which is also dominated by the New Haven Co. was favorably reported today by the legislative committee on railroads and street railroads.

The Berkshire Co. which owns practically all the street railroad lines west of the Connecticut river in Massachusetts was acquired by the New Haven Co. several years ago but the latter company was forced to relinquish the former because of an adverse decision of the supreme court. The present legislation has been pending before the general court for three years, and if the bill becomes a law it will enable the New Haven road to operate the trolley line directly instead of indirectly as is now the case.

Rep. R. M. Washburn of Worcester, house chairman of the committee on railroads, objects to the bill and will lead the fight against it. Five other members of the committee reserve the right to dissent from the report.

RAILWAY CO. SEEKS INJUNCTION
COLUMBUS, O., May 17.—The Hooking Valley Railway Co. today filed suit in the United States circuit court here asking for an injunction against the receivers of the railroad who were appointed yesterday by Common Pleas Judge Kincaid restraining the receivers from any action until the question of jurisdiction be settled. The bill makes H. J. Booth and James Sheets the receivers, and Howard Mannington, R. E. Westfall, R. H. Schoedinger, stockholders, the respondents. A temporary order is asked, pending the decision of Judge Sater in the matter.

REPUBLICAN WHIP IN DANGER
BINGHAMTON, May 17.—Announcement was made yesterday that District Attorney James H. Hill will be supported by republicans of Chenango county for the congressional nomination in the 30th district, in opposition to John W. Dwight, republican whip of the house, this fall.

Mr. Hill has for several years been a National bank director, and it is urged that he would be valuable in congress on account of currency reform legislation. There is some dissatisfaction in the district on account of Communism and also with Dwight's selection of Ben. Conger as state senator from the 41st district.

AFTER 40 YEARS
Mrs. Cummings Asks for Separate Support

There was a decidedly pathetic feature to the case of Mary Ellen Cummings against Patrick Cummings for separate maintenance.

The defendant has been an employee of the city for many years and by thrift and industry amassed a competence of substantial size, holding stock in the Lowell Trust company and the Harvard brewery. The couple have been married 40 years and lived happily together up to within about two years ago. At that time Mr. Cummings suffered a shock that left him partially paralyzed and effected his speech so that he finds words to express himself only with greatest difficulty. He remained at St. John's hospital for some time and then his wife had him removed to Dr. Flint's sanitarium in Dracut. Mr. Cummings refused to remain there and left, taking up lodgings in the boarding house of a friend.

Since then he has been looked after and his business affairs conducted by Undertaker M. H. McDonough. In whom all parties in the case have implicit confidence. Since leaving the sanitarium Mr. Cummings has not contributed to his wife's support and hence the case before Judge McIntire.

Mr. Cummings was the only witness presented and his appearance and infirmity excited the sympathy of the court.

Lawyer J. Joseph O'Connor, who appeared for him, suggested that the case was one that called for the appointment of a conservator and the court agreed to the proposition.

"You don't want your wife to go hungry; you will contribute to her support, won't you, Mr. Cummings?" asked Lawyer O'Connor.

"With much difficulty Mr. Cummings replied, 'God knows, I wouldn't let a dog go hungry.'"

The court then suspended the case, and Lawyer O'Connor will petition the court for the appointment of Mr. McDonough as conservator.

AID FOR CHILDREN
ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 17.—The aid that New York gives to dependent children was discussed at the seventh national conference on the education of backward, truant, delinquent and dependent children by Mrs. Anna Co-vill, agent of the New York Children's Aid society.

NIGHT EDITION STREET RAILWAYS

Must Spend 10 Per Cent of Capital Within Two Years

BOSTON, May 17.—The bill providing that street railway companies shall expend 10 per cent of their capital within two years after receiving certificates, and that roads shall be completed within four years, was passed to a third reading in the house yesterday.

The battle over the measure started when Representative James H. Mellen of Worcester raised a point of order that it violates joint rules 8 and 9. These provide that bills affecting the railroad companies shall be advertised before the introduction.

Speaker Walker ruled that those rules applied only to special bills affecting particular companies.

Mr. Mellen declared that the measure before the house affected the interests of the Boynton Bicycle company, and raised the point of order with respect to the municipalities through which the Boynton road is intended to run. He claimed that it would abridge their rights.

Speaker Walker ruled this point out on the same grounds that he had the other.

Representative Keene of Somerville then offered an amendment that no electric railroad should be built through any city of more than 20,000 inhabitants unless it traversed a subway.

Representative Wolcott of Milton, chairman of the committee on street railways, offered a further amendment that nothing in the bill should apply to the Boynton Bicycle railroad.

Representative Mellen moved that the bill be referred to the next legislature. He denounced it as simply an attempt on the part of the big transportation companies to "choke out" competition. Its effect would be, he maintained, to put out of business any small company which might secure a charter and is unable to build for a short time.

Representative Parks of Fall River, declared that this is a good thing and said that the bill would tend to discourage promoters who secure charters and then refuse to build, seeking on the other hand, to force existing companies to purchase their franchises.

The house then killed the Keene amendment and adopted the Wolcott proposition, after which it killed the Mellen motion to refer to the legislature of 1911 on a vote of 80 to 110.

STOCK MARKET
HEAVY AND DUL AT CLOSING	Low	High	Close
Hour Today
Rally Of About One Point In Chesapeake & Ohio Then Came A Renewed Drop Which Carried Prices Down
NEW YORK, May 17.—London sent lower prices for Americans today upon resumption of business after three days' cessation. There was little increase in activity in the market, however, and the prevailing sentiment, Northern Pacific and Western Maryland declined 1 and Chicago, Great Western pf 1 1/4. Reading advanced 1/4. A rise of nearly a point in Reading strengthened the market, but the higher prices brought out more stock and a reaction followed to well below the opening figures. U. S. Steel, American Sugar, Anacosta and American Tobacco pf, sagged 1 and Reading 1 1/2.
Disappointment was felt that the reopening of the foreign exchanges brought no increase of activity. No influence was perceptible from any news event and the sag in prices was due to neglect.
Fluctuations were mostly within a range of an eighth and trading was at a standstill. Southern Railway pf. declined a point while General Electric advanced 1/4.
The dullness of the market increased as the day drew to a close. None of the usually active stocks moved wide enough to permit even of scalping operations.
The market closed heavy and dull. A rally of about a point in Chesapeake & Ohio was followed by a renewed drop which carried some prices back to the lowest.

CAPT. CLARK
HONUS WAGNER

PITTSBURG, May 17.—Captain Fred Clarke of the Pittsburgh team last night issued a statement as to the cause and extent of Honus Wagner's injuries, which he said was warranted by many rumors and false reports in the matter. <td></td>
"In the last game here with Brooklyn," said Clarke, "Wagner slid into third base and his shoulder came into contact with McElven's foot. The top of the shoulder was bruised and the hurt is a painful one. A slight cold aggravated the soreness and stiffened the muscles. Wagner wanted to 'lay off,' fearing he would not do his best, but I prevailed upon him to remain at his post. Then he and Miller 'cooked up' the exchange of positions to make Wagner's work lighter."

SPENCER WEPT PEOPLE SCARED

He Lost His Nerve Thought Comet Had Visited the Earth

SPRINGFIELD, May 17.—In superior court yesterday afternoon Bertram G. Spencer and E. F. Cook, alias George Freeman, were arraigned on charges of murder. The arraignment of the two prisoners came quite unexpectedly and few except court officials and lawyers witnessed the proceedings.

Spencer, who has become known as Springfield's famous gentleman burglar, is charged with the murder by shooting of Miss Martha B. Blackstone, a Springfield school teacher, at the home of Mrs. Sarah J. Dow on Fourth hill the evening of March 31, following an attempt to burglarize the house.

Spencer wept bitterly when he was arraigned. Judge Schofield, who was presiding, inquired if the prisoner was represented by counsel, and Spencer requested the court to assign him counsel, expressing a preference for Col. Charles L. Young of Springfield and C. T. Callahan of Holyoke. His request was granted.

Cook, who is charged with the murder of Herbert E. White at Ludlow Feb. 3, appeared very indifferent and smiled when he was arraigned. W. H. McClinton of Springfield was assigned by the court as his counsel.

SALEM PAPER

SPEAKS IN HIGH TERMS OF REV. DAVID J. MURPHY

The following item from the Salem News will be of interest to Lowell people.

Rev. David J. Murphy, assistant of the Church of the Immaculate Conception in this city, for the past 16 years, has been transferred to St. Leo's church, Rochester. He left Salem this afternoon. During his residence in this city, Fr. Murphy has won the esteem and highest respect of all with whom he has come in contact. Catholic and Protestant alike, and no priest in Salem is more beloved than he.

He has been the Catholic chaplain at the jail for a long time, and there he has done a splendid work. He will be sorely missed by all the members of the lower parish, in whose hearts he held a very warm place. All will wish for him the fullest measure of success in his new field of labor.

Fr. Murphy is a brother of Mr. James A. Murphy, leader of St. Michael's church choir of this city.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1909 was 16,828

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilotte, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 1, 1910. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

This is by far the largest average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

AS TO DANGEROUS SIDEWALKS.

The proposition of Alderman Adams to have police officers report all sidewalks that are in bad condition is a good one. It will remove one great cause of accidents and also a cause of damage suits against the city with or without accidents. It is right that the parties responsible for dangerous sidewalks, whether the abutters or the city should be notified to put the same in safe condition for public travel. The same rule might apply to some streets such for example as East Merrimack street where the subterranean excavations left unfilled are liable to cave in at any time.

HANDWRITING IN SCHOOLS DEMORALIZED.

The schools of Lowell need a special writing master more at the present time than ever before. When the late Mr. Graves was the special instructor the handwriting was good in all the schools. After his time, new-fangled ideas were introduced and finally that travesty upon practical handwriting the "vertical" was installed. The officials who imposed that system upon a helpless public have a great deal to answer for. The "vertical" ran its course—or until the business people got a practical demonstration of its absurdity. Then it was thrown out and the Spencerian system or something like it restored. But the pupils found it difficult to change from the clumsy, slow and awkward style in which they had been drilled. The result is the handwriting of the schools has been demoralized and will remain so for a considerable time unless a special instructor be employed.

The school board should look around for an expert who has had a year's experience in Frogtown or anywhere else outside Lowell.

THE REPORT DISCREDITED.

Gradually the report of the legislative commission upon the high cost of living is being discredited. The verdict acquitting the tariff and the trusts for all responsibility for the high prices was too palpably absurd to be believed by intelligent people. The committee laid the blame upon the increase of the gold production in this country, but this is a cause that should operate universally in all countries and to a greater extent in some other countries where the increase in the production of gold has been even greater than in this. The report is largely made up of the statements and theories put forward by republican leaders and in all probability for campaign purposes. The fact that Senator Lodge utilized a portion of the report for a public document evidently for his political effect goes to prove that the report may have been framed up for this purpose, although there are some honest men on the commission whom it is difficult to believe guilty of any such business.

A BREACH OF CONFIDENCE.

Whether the confessions of Stenographer Kerby as to the evolution of the president's letter in the Ballinger case be true or false, one thing is certain, that Kerby has betrayed office secrets in a way that proves him unworthy of trust in any confidential capacity.

When a stenographer is admitted to a private office as confidential clerk or amanuensis, he is bound by all the laws of honor and common decency not to divulge the secret business of his office even if he happens to lose his position. Kerby is guilty of a piece of treachery, and this talk about a "troubled conscience" is all tommyrot. If he has a conscience it should have conjured him to silence even if he thought a wrong had been done. He forgets that in virtue of his position he was bound to secrecy.

Between his statement and that of the president, where they contradict each other, the public will not believe Kerby. The statement of the president in regard to the preparation of the letter exonerating Ballinger is quite reasonable and shows that Kerby's statement amounts to nothing.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL MOVEMENT REVERSED.

There is one thing at variance with the movement for the city beautiful that seems to have escaped the notice of those who have been advocating improvements in this line. We refer to the building of mills of from four to ten or twelve stories in height, fronting on some of the principal streets of our city. Part of Middlesex street has been seriously injured by having the end of a big mill store house come out to the sidewalk. A new mill is being built on East Merrimack street close to the edge of the street, and another is to be erected with one side fronting on Bridge street. Already the two mills stand opposite each other on Bridge street along the sidewalks. That is bad enough, but we are going to have more of it, and there is no telling how far this abuse is to be carried unless the city government steps in and insists that in all such cases either sufficient land shall be left fronting on the streets for the erection of stores or else that the mill building shall have an ornamental front that will offer some compensation for the extent of dead wall thus exhibited on some of our principal thoroughfares.

The city can seize land for park purposes, it can prevent the erection of buildings that are injurious, and unless we are greatly mistaken it could also prevent the erection of mill buildings out to the street front thus shutting off a large portion of the street for ordinary business purposes. These buildings injure any street in which they are located, and it is a very serious mistake that they are to be brought out fronting on East Merrimack street near the square and also on Bridge street.

There should be some committee of the city council to give its attention to such matters in order to protect our best streets from being for-
of the large billboards, but not all the billboards in the city would injure a street so much as one of these big mill gables fronting on the sidewalk.
We simply call this matter to the attention of the city authorities in hopes that it shall not go on indefinitely. It is the city beautiful idea reversed.

SEEN AND HEARD

It was inadvertently stated in The Sun of May 12, that C. T. Pilotte of Kenwood would be the valedictorian at the high school graduation exercises. It is C. T. Pilotte of Pawtucketville who is slated for valedictorian honors. The name was right, but place of residence was wrong.

"I have always heard," remarked a visiting Englishman, "that tipping was not as common in America as with us; but when I find Americans tipping their own maids to button up their backs I have my doubts."

There isn't one chance in a thousand that the owner of this monkey and this hand organ wrote the sign that is attached to the monkey's back, but it is effective just the same.

"No feed da monk. Giva him da sic."

And nobody does feed him, for certainly nobody wants to see a monkey throw a fit.
The old adage that one-half of the

that there were said by auction in one of the big buildings along Fifth avenue in the wholesale district, and

it opened, until Saturday evening at 7.30. It was attended by buyers from all over the country, who spent the entire day in the auction room, taking only a brief respite at noon time for luncheon. The luncheon was provided at the salesroom, so that the buyers did not have to leave the building, and consisted of a supply, daily of 5000

twenty gallons of consommé and 500
bottles of beer. On Friday fish was served to those who do not eat meat.

In something of a predicament this gray haired man found himself in a street car when a polite young man got up and offered him his seat. In the first place the old man would have preferred that the young man should not have done it, for the act indicated that to the young man the old man looked old, whereas the old man
feels young, and sprightly and likes
to fancy that he looks so.

But he thanked the young man for
the seat thus kindly offered to him,
adding to his thanks an apologetic smile for what he was about to do, and then the old man turned and offered
that seat which had just been vacated for him to a woman who stood beside
him, and she took it.
So the polite young man's plans had miscarried slightly, and really the situation was a little confusing. Presently the young man retired to the end of the car and the old man remained
standing as before.

The following very curious set of rules, which governed mill life in Manchester, N. H., in 1847, is clipped from the Manchester Union:

The Overseers are to be punctually in their rooms at the starting of the mill, and not be absent unnecessarily during working hours. They are to see that all those employed in their rooms are in their places in due season, and keep a correct account of their time and work. They may grant leave of absence to those employed under them, when there are no hands in the mill room, to supply their places; otherwise they are not to grant leave of absence except in cases of absolute necessity.

are required to observe the regulations of the room where they are employed.
They are not to be absent from their work without consent, except in case of sickness, and they are to send information to the overseer of the cause of their absence.

They are to board in one of the boarding houses belonging to one of said corporations, unless permitted by the agent to do otherwise, and conform to the regulations of the house where they board.

Neither of said corporations will employ anyone who is habitually absent from public worship on the Sabbath, or who uses profane or indecent language in the Mills or elsewhere, or who uses drink as a beverage.

All persons entering into the employment of either of said corporations agree to work twelve months; and to consider the usual Mill hours, as heretofore, a day's work.

All persons intending to leave the employment of either of said corporations are to give two weeks' notice of their intention to their overseer, and their engagement with such corporation is not considered fulfilled unless they comply with this regulation, in which case the person will receive an honorable discharge, signed by the Agent, if requested.

Payments will be made monthly, including board and wages, which will be made up to and including the last Saturday of each month, and paid in the course of the following week.

Anyone who shall take from the Mills or the Yard any yarn, cloth, or other property belonging to either cor-employed in the Manchester Mills and the Merrimack Mills.

Overseers hiring help are not allowed to set them at work until they produce a copy of these Regulations with a certificate, signed by the persons hired.

NEGROES READY

Are Well Stocked With

Comet Pills

NEW YORK, May 17.—Whatever
Halley's comet may do or not do to
this earth, the negroes of Port Au
Prince, Haiti, are prepared because they are well stocked with comet pills.
Comet pills are new to the pharmacy. Word of their appearance arrived by the Hamburg-American liner
Allegheny, in from Port Au Prince yesterday. Her officers said yesterday that all the negro stevedores there, all
the farmers round about, the servants, laborers, merchants, beggars and
thieves are rushing pell mell to the hut
of a shrewd Vodoo doctor just outside the city, who is selling comet pills
faster than he can make them.

The prescription is one pill for every hour up to the time the comet begins to recede from the earth, but many of the patients make doubly sure
by taking one pill every half hour. The comet doctor guards his formula closely and is growing rich fast.

REV. CHARLES O'REILLY PASSED

AWAY AT RUTLAND

RUTLAND, Vt., May 17.—Rev. Chas.
O'Reilly, a retired clergyman, died
suddenly at his home in West Rutland
at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, at the age of 55 years. He had a career of almost half a century in the Catholic church and was well known among the priests of Vermont. Bishop Joseph F.
Rice of Burlington will celebrate solemn pontifical mass of requiem for him at St. Bridget's church Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Fr. O'Reilly was born in County
Cavan, Ire. He was ordained at All
Hall's college, Dublin, June 29, 1853,
and came to this country shortly after.
Fr. O'Reilly first served the church as a missionary, being assigned for 14 years to the territory between Bellows
Falls and Brattleboro, Vt. He built
St. Michael's church at Brattleboro and also built a mission at Proctors-
ville.

In 1869 he was transferred to West
Rutland as pastor of St. Bridget's church, where he was stationed until 12 years ago, when he retired on account of ill health.

He was about the house Sunday
but when his niece, Miss Maria Lane, went to call him yesterday morning she found him unconscious and he died shortly afterward. He is survived by no relatives nearer than cousins.
These are Very Rev. James McEnroe,
Rev. John McEnroe, and Rev. Bernard
O'Reilly of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a grandniece, Sister Oswald of Marlboro, Mass.

THE PURCHASE OF A

Bankrupt Stock

MEANS

Bargains

We bought the entire Bankrupt
Stock of The J. Brest Co., (Incorporated for $40,000) of Brockton,
Mass., Furniture Dealers, for $8000,
less than the goods cost.

Of course we can sell them for a good deal less than any dealer who paid full price for the same goods. And still make our profit.

If you are going to buy any
FURNITURE, CARPETINGS, ART SQUARES, RANGES, GO-CARTS, ETC., this spring,
you are extremely careless of your own
interest if you don't buy here and now.

For you will certainly pay a Great Deal More elsewhere—They must charge you more or lose money—
There is no doubt about it.

If a dealer pays $10 for an article he can't sell it for $10. He must add a percentage of profit on
that article to pay store rent, help
hire, feed of horses, cost of light, taxes,
insurance, etc., etc.

We can sell the same article for less than $10 and make a profit. For the $8000 we saved on the first cost will cover all these expenses and leave us a good profit. In other words
we made our profit out of what the creditors lost. We haven't got to make a profit out of you. And for a slight advance of five cents on each dollar's worth we will sell you the same goods by paying part cash and give you liberal terms on balance. You may buy Furniture elsewhere if you wish but we can't see why you should,
when you can certainly save money by buying here.

Printed as Part of the Ballinger-Pinchot Record

WASHINGTON, May 17.—President Taft's explanation of the circumstances under which his letter exonerating Sec. Ballinger from the Glavis charges and dismissing L. R. Glavis was prepared and presented to Chairman Nelson of the investigating committee, was resumed here today. It was printed as a part of the record of the committee. Attorney Brandeis, counsel for Glavis, has laid great emphasis upon the president's letter of exoneration and dismissal, contending that the memorandum upon which it was based was prepared in Sec. Ballinger's department by Asst. Atty. Gen. Lawler. The president in a letter which he addressed to Senator Nelson last Sunday says he had the Lawler memorandum before him when he prepared his communication, but he also had notes and memoranda given him by the attorney general who had agreed with the president in the conclusion he had reached in the matter.

While Commissioner Dennett of the general land office was under cross examination last Saturday Mr. Brandeis indicated that he intended to raise the question why the Lawler memorandum had not been furnished together with the other papers bearing on the case which the president had sent to the committee. A carbon copy of the Lawler memorandum was furnished to the committee by Atty. Gen. Wickersham coincident with the publication of the statement of Frederick Kerby, then a stenographer in Mr. Ballinger's office, that he had assisted Mr. Lawler in preparing the document and that it was similar in many respects to the president's letter. Mr. Wickersham sent an explanatory letter to the effect that the document had been overlooked in previous searches. The department files. It is expected Mr. Brandeis will endeavor to locate the original memorandum. Mr. Dennett was put under cross examination when the public hearing of the committee was resumed.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

There's one motion picture at the Opera House, for the first three days of this week, which will please exceedingly any lover of color and whirlwind like motion. It isn't a colored film in any sense, but the local touches, the "atmosphere" which goes with a country and its people is there every second of it. The name of the picture is "The Two Brothers" and the scene is southern California. There's a story to it, but that's commonplace and the least of the whole.

Altogether some 75 or 100 persons assist in making it, and two-thirds of these are expert riders, not mere actor riders, but real greaser horsemen. And one scene is especially thrilling. The chase of a wedding party in a coach over miles of territory, and the final rounding up of the bridal party, soldiers and all, by the bandits is shown. It's as thrilling as a reel as has been turned, out in months. One little incident in it is exceedingly thrilling, and that is the shooting from his horse in full motion of one of the bandits. There isn't one man in a thousand who would have the nerve to toss himself out of a saddle and onto a hard road as that particular man did it.

The foregoing picture was so remarkable that for once the human beings are playing secondary to the faunimals. Eretto Brothers, a couple of head balancers, astonish with really remarkable work. Their closing consists of playing a very near mandolin and guitar, while one balances the other on his head, their heads being together. Marie Canilla, a winsome young lady, is pleasing to the limit, in her two songs and violin numbers, and the Durandos prove exceedingly entertaining with their comedy singing and dancing. Their act winds up with a can on roller skates. Eva Medora gives the illustrated songs in good style.

Of the remaining pictures, one entitled "Cleopatra" will rank with the best art works ever turned out by Pathe Freres. The life of the beautiful, cruel Egyptian queen and enchantress is shown in her love affair with Marc Antony. The death of the two is graphically pictured. The rich coloring of the entire picture will bring much admiration for it. The comedy reels are "A Quiet Boarding House" and "The Stopped His Toe." Tonight the amateurs will disport again, and there will undoubtedly be a record breaking audience.

STAR THEATRE

Large crowds witnessed the Nelson-Wolfe fight pictures at the Star theatre throughout Monday and this afternoon. This reproduction of the fiercest fight in ring history, with photography and every movement made by the fighters is plainly visible. It will be remembered that the fight lasted until 6:20 in the evening and in view of this fact, the pictures are remarkably clear. A lecture explains everything, starting with the fighters in their training quarters and leading up to the crowds going into the arena, and then the fight starts. The pictures will be shown at the theatre tonight and Wednesday afternoon and evening.

THEATRE VOYONS

One of the features of today's show at the Theatre Voyons in Pathe's great production of Cleopatra which is a genuine success in every way. The staging and acting is far above the ordinary and the story is well told. Cleopatra in Cairo shows the ex-president in many different aspects as his stay in Cairo was one constant succession of receptions, visits and sight-seeing trips. The most interesting of the pictures shows Roosevelt and his wife on camels on their way to visit the pyramids. A touching dramatic subject and a real comedy adds variety to the bill. The musical features are exceptionally good.

EMPIRE THEATRE

The program now running at the Empire is calculated to amuse and entertain all lovers of the clean and bright in vaudeville. The Arizona Trio, one of the best and the acrobatic feats are beyond criticism while the contortions and the ballet work of Mrs. Arizona were greeted with rounds of hearty applause at every appearance. Tom Bateman as the "Dancing Sailor" sings very pleasingly in his Skip Rope Dancing he is the envy of all the young ladies who have seen him. The picture program is the best and Charles A. Rogers is a decided hit in his song "Curly Head."

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION
BOSTON, May 17.—New England delegates to the world's sixth Sunday school convention left this city in a special train today for Washington where the convention opens next Thursday. The Massachusetts party was joined here today by delegations from Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine and Nova Scotia. Hamilton S. Conant, general secretary of the Massachusetts Sunday School Association was in charge of the delegates.

THAT'S DIFFERENT FROM HALLEY'S.

EVERYBODY IS WATCHING THE COMET

"JIM" JEFFRIES

Is In Trouble With Boils Once More

BEN LOMOND, Cal., May 17.—Jim Jeffries' recurrent skin trouble is worrying both himself and his trainers and it is regarded as likely that the new breaking out may interfere to some extent with his training grind.

The present boils of the retired champion are located on his upper left arm and between his shoulder blades. They are an irritating affliction and become painful if hard exercise is indulged in. But the experience the trainers had in treating the old boil on the fighter's back leads them to believe that they will be able to cope successfully with the fresh trouble and without causing much delay in his conditioning work. When told last night of the selection of Rickard to referee the fight he expressed satisfaction over the choice made. He does not seem to be perturbed over the rumored trouble regarding the place for holding the coming battle.

MATCH CALLED OFF

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 17.—The proposed match between Frank Conley, bantam champion, and Owen Moran was last night declared off. Conley insisted upon Moran making 125 pounds ring-side instead of 135 at six o'clock. The fighters could not agree.

MAY CHANGE FIGHT SCENE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—Among the disquieting rumors current today in quarters concerned with the Jeffries-Johnson championship boxing match is one that Thomas Williams, president of the California Jockey club who controls the Emeryville racetrack where it has been planned to build a mammoth arena for the coming battle, has withdrawn his support from the enterprise and has informed Promoter Rickard that he must find some other place in which to bring the fighters together. Williams refused today either to confirm or deny, saying that he did not care to discuss the matter at all.

Another report has it that Rickard and Gleason are negotiating with the people at Richmond, who provided a meeting place for the recent fight between Ad Wolgast and Battling Nelson when the lightweights were barred from other trans-Pacific bay towns. The possibility of an enforced change of location for the holding of the contest has turned speculation to San Francisco itself and many profess belief the promoters have turned their attention to this city. It is pointed out that two excellent locations for staging the big mill are to be had within the limits of San Francisco where no hostility from the city officials would be encountered.

TESTING THE COURSES

ROCKLAND, Me., May 17.—The tests to determine the relative value as courses for the official acceptance trials of vessels for the United States navy off the Rockland, Provincetown and Delaware breakwater were begun today in the presence of the government trial boards. Three ships will be standardized on each course for the purpose of determining what effect different depths of water have on speed, the ships selected for the tests being the best in the navy. They are the big battleship Michigan, which was built at Camden, N. J., and the torpedo boat destroyers Reid and Flusser, constructed at Bath. The destroyer Reid began the tests today.

TAIL OF COMET

Now Extends Beyond Orbit of the Earth

TAUNTON, May 17.—The tail of Halley's comet now extends considerably beyond the earth's orbit and the earth will certainly pass through the luminous train of the sky wanderer tomorrow night. This is the conclusion of Rev. Joel Hastings Metcalf, a well-known astronomer of this city. He has discovered several comets in the past and the results of his observation have been accepted by the officials of the Harvard observatory. Mr. Metcalf observed Halley's comet this morning under ideal conditions. The sky was clear and the air was free from haze. The astronomer sighted the comet at 2:45 a. m. a short time before the head of the visitor peered above the horizon line. The observation showed that the tail of the comet is now 30 degrees in length or equal to the distance from the horizon to the zenith. The tail lay nearly parallel to the horizon. It was from eight to ten degrees broad, which means an actual width of about one million miles. Mr. Metcalf also reported that the tail was apparently straight and in process of broadening with time. The northern and western heads of the tail touched Gamma Pegasi and extended to 71 Aquila, possibly to Theta Aquila.

Mr. Metcalf telephoned the results of his observations to the Harvard observatory today. The Harvard observers told him that they had not begun their observations sufficiently early to get the details which he obtained and they accepted his findings.

SETTLERS' RIGHTS

ARE CONSIDERED TO BE IN JEOPARDY

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 17.—A boat trip in which the voyagers rode and not rowed is said to be at the bottom of a controversy over Palo Verde valley lands valued at $2,000,000. The rights of settlers are considered in jeopardy because of a whimsical trick practiced 35 years ago by a San Francisco millionaire, now dead. It is charged that he had the boat loaded on a wagon and after it had been hauled over a prescribed area claimed 4,000 acres of rich land under the swamp and overflow act attesting to the fact that he had made the trip in a boat. The land is desert land.

RISKED HIS LIFE

DRIVER OF CHEMICAL WAGON SAVED A BOY

BOSTON, May 17.—Risking his life and those of his horses, Driver Edward J. Crowley of Chemical Engine 7 of East Boston, while responding to an alarm of the last evening, saving the animals suddenly around, as they were tearing along Chelsea st., in order to save a little boy from being crushed to death. So abruptly was the turn made that the apparatus went up on the sidewalk and the horses dashed into the plate glass window of the Baylson Drug company at the corner of Chelsea and Marlon streets. The window was demolished, the engine pole broken and the horses were slightly hurt, the driver and the little lad whose life he saved escaped injury. It was impossible to learn the name of the lad but it is believed to be Cunningham. The apparatus was responding to a call from box 612, which proved to be a false alarm.

To Referee the Fight Between Jeffries and Johnson

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—"Tex" Rickard, associated with Jack Gleason in the promotion of the Jeffries-Johnson contest, who came into prominence four years ago when he engineered the Gans-Nelson fight at Goldfield, Nev., was selected yesterday to referee the fight between the two heavyweights on July 4, at Emeryville.

In accepting the place, however, the Nevada promoter made it clear that he will step aside if Jeffries and Johnson agree on another man.

This settlement came when it looked as if the meeting to select a referee would end in another deadlock, and after bitter words had passed between Johnson and Sam Berger, Jeffries' manager.

Johnson suggested Rickard, but Berger refused to consider the Nevada man, saying that he would not accept him on account of his inexperience. The crowd broke into a cheer as he mentioned Jack Welch, Eddie Graney and Rickard.

Berger indignantly replied that he would leave the meeting. Then there came a further clash between Berger and Johnson, and ugly words were used by Berger and threats were made by Johnson. Berger stood up, as if to leave.

"So you want Rickard, do you?" he queried of Johnson.

"Yes," was the answer.

"Well, all right," replied Berger, and the crowd broke into a cheer as he realized that one of the difficult points had been settled.

Rickard made the following statement:

"To straighten out this affair I am willing to act, provided my name is acceptable to all concerned. I don't want to act, and I hope that before the fight takes place Jeffries and Johnson will agree on another man. If they can come to terms I am perfectly willing to step down and out. But if they can reach no other agreement I will not back down."

In spite of the agreement there is a feeling of mistrust among those who attended the session that the last word has not been said and that the referee question again must be taken up. It was rumored last night that, to give the impression that everything is settled.

In working order Rickard was named until the contestants could look the field over.

During the negotiations it looked for a time as if there would be a free-for-all fight. Just before the compromise was reached Berger is said to have exclaimed, in an undertone, "I'll go over and hit that black man," applying, it is said, another epithet with "black."

This remark was carried to Johnson, who warned Berger never to call him that name again.

Berger denied that he had said anything of the kind, but Johnson's followers declare he did and muttered among themselves that if Berger repeated what he said, he would never leave the room.

"You're just an educated dog," said Johnson to Berger. "Now come out and fight if you want to. I'll give $1000 if you will come right out with me and box just three rounds."

This was finally quieted and the session was resumed.

At the start of the meeting Berger again named the five men he wanted—Eddie Smith, Billy Roach, Charley Elyton, Phil Wand and Johnny Hersel. Johnson returned Welch and Graney and said he would stick to them. He intimated further that he would allow no one, not even the promoters, to do the selecting for him.

All sorts of compromises were suggested. Berger said he would be willing to have the sporting editors of the San Francisco newspapers name the referee or to act in conjunction with the two promoters.

MANY WOUNDED

Collision Between Republicans and Police

MADRID, May 17.—A collision between republicans and gendarmes is reported from Valencia in connection with a manifestation in honor of the arrival there of the republican deputy Senor Seriano. The gendarmes charged and the republicans used knives and stones.

An officer was stabbed and killed and many persons were wounded. Fifty arrests were made and order was finally restored after the manifestants had sought refuge at the republican club.

LOWELL AUTO CLUB

TO HEAR LECTURE ON THE MANUFACTURE OF RUBBER TIRES

The Lowell Automobile club will hold a smoke talk on Friday night, May 20th, at their quarters at the Richardson hotel at 8 o'clock when one of the most interesting lectures will be given by a representative of the B. F. Goodrich company of Akron, Ohio, on the subject of rubber. The lecturer will be Mr. Tiltich, who will answer all questions that may be asked relative to the subject.

This lecturer has the photographic films which will show the way as it leaves the tree, tracing it through the various manufacturing processes until it is used on the automobile wheel. The use of the photographic films has been necessary by the largest advertisers in the country to set forth in a way that will not only advertise, but also educate. There is scarcely any commodity among the necessities which is so popularly known as rubber and perhaps there is no article of commerce the construction and maintenance of which is so little understood as the automobile tire. Therefore, the nature of rubber, the difficulties of gathering it, the form of shipment, its transformation from the crude into the rubber of manufacture, and the actual making of an automobile tire, for example, are matters of educational concern.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD'S NEW YORK TERMINAL SYSTEM

RESTAURANT

CONCOURSE AND TRACK LEVEL

AFTER nearly a decade of stupendous construction operations the Pennsylvania railroad is on the eve of opening for passenger traffic its new terminal facilities in and around the city of New York. Finishing touches are being applied to the splendid new passenger station in the heart of Manhattan Island. The two tunnels leading into the metropolis from the New Jersey shore under the Hudson river are completed. The four tunnels leading in from Long Island under the East river are ready and waiting. The Manhattan cross town tunnels ending at the river shaft in the block between Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth streets, east of First avenue, are finished. With steady progress these spring days the huge weave of tracks below the ground surface leading to the great passenger station is being brought to completion, and at Sunnyside, on Long Island, the immense railroad yards are ready to receive the first rush of business.

No date for the opening of the station has been formally announced. It is expected, however, that it will be in full operation by the close of the summer.

With the opening of this vastly improved traffic system that centers in the nation's metropolis the means of transportation between the east and the west will have been revolutionized. This revolution was conceived during the administration of the late A. J. Cassatt, president of the Pennsylvania, and has been carried forward by his successors without a hitch.

Achieved at the expenditure of many millions of dollars, these improvements will enable passengers from eastern, western and Long Island points to go directly into New York city without change of cars or transfer to ferryboat, arriving at a railroad station which is conceded to be the handsomest and most convenient in the world.

When these vast improvements were conceived ten years ago the Pennsylvania railroad was employing the same method of reaching New York city that was employed when it first leased the United Railroads of New Jersey in 1871—ferryage across the Hudson river from Jersey City. Ten years ago the road was hauling freights to eastern cities over practically the same grades that were to be encountered in 1910. Then came the plans to overcome the ferry transfers and the grades. In a few months from now freight trains, which reach the east over a new line, with no grades greater than twelve feet to the mile, will be floated from Greenville, N. J., to Bay Ridge, N. Y., and when the New York connecting railroad, crossing the East river on a four track bridge, is completed these trains will be run directly from Bay Ridge to Port Morris, N. Y., where connections for New England will be made with the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Electric Engines Used.

This New York tunnel extension and its necessary adjuncts comprise the costliest improvements ever made by a railroad company. The tunnel extension begins at Harrison, N. J., a few hundred yards east of Newark, where there is a car yard for the big electric locomotives used to haul all trains through the tubes. Passenger trains from southern and western points change here from steam to electric power. Passengers destined for the downtown section of New York, the great financial and wholesale district, may alight at Harrison and take an electric train into the huge new station of the Hudson and Manhattan railroad at Church and Cortlandt streets by way of the McArdoo tunnels under the Hudson.

After changing engines the through trains for New York will leave Harrison on rails crossing over the old Pennsylvania tracks on a steel and concrete bridge, following a double track line on a high embankment across the marshy Hackensack meadows to Bergen Hill, where they will enter the tunnel tubes and pass under the waters of the Hudson into the station in New York, thence below the surface of Manhattan Island under the East river to Long Island City.

The central feature of the entire improvement is the passenger station in New York, the main entrance being on Seventh avenue between Thirty-first and Thirty-third streets. The station is divided into three levels, the tracks being forty feet below street level. The main entrance is for foot passengers only. Through an imposing arcade 225 feet long by 45 feet wide the passengers go to the main waiting room, the largest in the world, 277 feet long, 103 feet wide and 150 feet high. The arcade is flanked by shops on both sides, and at its farther end are a restaurant, a lunch room, and a cafe. Beyond is the concourse level, or station proper, being on the first level below the street surface and containing the grand waiting room, wherein are located the ticket offices, baggage checking windows, telephones and telegraph offices and other adjuncts arranged so conveniently that no retracing of steps is necessary. On the west, adjoining the general waiting room, are two subsidiary waiting rooms, each 68 by 100 feet, one for men and one for women. Each of these opens into retiring rooms.

The main baggage room, with 450 feet frontage, is on the same level. This large frontage is for the transfer wagons. It is directly beneath the arcade and the restaurant spaces on the level above. Baggage is taken in and brought out through a special subway. Motor trucks and elevators deliver trunks to the tracks below. On this level motor cars will be stationed.

The concourse, connecting by a wide thoroughfare with the main waiting room, is a covered assembling place 200 feet wide and extending the entire width of the station and out under the adjoining streets. The concourse is the vestibule to the tracks on the third and lowest level. Stairs descend to each of the train platforms. There are also direct approaches to the concourse from the two side streets. Between the main concourse and the tracks is the exit concourse, to be used for express purposes only. This is eighteen feet above the track level, with stairways and elevator conveniences. Staircases and gradual inclines lead directly to the side streets.

Into the north side of the station, extending along Thirty-third street, will run trains from all points on Long Island by way of the East river tunnels. This traffic can be handled independently of the general through traffic and the local traffic from the western approach. The train platforms are about thirty-six feet below street level.

Terminal Area Twenty-eight Acres.

To give some idea as to the magnitude of the station and its adjoining area of track approaches it may be stated that twenty-eight acres of land are included in the scheme, the station walls themselves inclosing eight acres. The first stone of the masonry work on the building was laid June 16, 1908, the task being completed July 31, 1909. The exterior walls, nearly half a mile altogether, required 490,000 cubic feet of pink granite. Inside the concourse 60,000 cubic feet of stone were used. This total of 550,000 cubic feet of granite required 1,150 freight cars to transport it from Milford, Mass., where it was quarried. In the construction of the building were used 27,000 tons of steel. Fifteen million bricks were set in place. The Roman Doric style of architecture was employed. The station covers the entire area bounded by Seventh and Eighth avenues and Thirty-first and Thirty-third streets. The building is of the dimensions of a great exhibition palace, being 784 by 430 feet. The structure is described as "really a monumental bridge over the tracks, with entrances on four sides."

Colonnades on Each Side.

The Seventh avenue facade, composed principally of a Roman Doric colonnade, was conceived especially to express in the largest possible fashion a monumental gateway. It has been compared to the Brandenburg gate in Berlin, through which passes so much of the traffic of the German capital, though the New York gateway is much larger. The main body of the building reaches seventy-six feet above street level. There are colonnades along the Eighth avenue and the Thirty-first and Thirty-third street facades similar to the main colonnade, with sculptured groups above them supporting large ornamental clocks.

One of the impressive features of the great waiting room is the window treatment. On each side above the main body of the building are three semicircular windows of a radius of 33 feet 4 inches and 68 feet 8 inches wide at the base. There is also at each end of the waiting room a window of like size. The high ceiling of the waiting room is carried above the general roof level of the station by a dome-like elevation which relieves the building of any suggestion of squatness. The interior of the waiting room was suggested by the great halls and basilicas of Rome, such as the baths of Caracalla, Titus and Diocletian and the basilica of Constantine.

The length of the tracks inside the station area of twenty-eight acres is sixteen miles. There are twenty-one standing tracks in the station, with eleven passenger platforms.

To clear the ground for excavating about 500 buildings were removed from the terminal area, for the site is in the midst of a fully built up city district. Three million cubic yards of excavating were necessary. Streets crossing the terminal area are carried over by bridging. In fact, the whole area, exclusive of the station itself, is simply a bridged over excavation, so that the casual observer is unaware of the wonderful weave of trackage underneath.

For the first time when the Pennsylvania trains use the tunnels and the New York connecting railroad bridge there will be a through service from points west and south to New England by way of New York without change of train.

Reasons for Improvement.

The enormous increase of railroad

traffic in and out of New York city within the past twenty years prompted the Pennsylvania railroad to undertake and carry to its successful culmination this great work. The reasons for the undertaking are thus expressed officially:

First.—To provide for the future by enlarging the present facilities for freight and passenger traffic because of the continuous growth in this traffic and to accomplish it before the cost became almost prohibitive or the task impossible because of the construction of other underground transportation lines.

Second.—To run its passenger trains into a central location in the city of New York instead of a station on the west bank of the Hudson river.

Third.—To open to the people in the thickly populated borough of Manhattan the residential sections of Long Island and to offer to Newark and other populous towns in New Jersey direct and quick access to the resorts on Long Island beaches.

Fourth.—To provide an all rail connection between the south and west on the one hand and New England and the east on the other.

Fifth.—To give the boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens, with their population of over 1,500,000, direct railroad connections to and from the New England, southern and western states and to supply freight facilities with similar connections in these boroughs, thereby properly serving the entire area of Greater New York through freight stations suitably located to develop its commercial interests.

Sixth.—To provide additional freight facilities and shorten the water transportation trip for the New England traffic across New York harbor from about twelve miles to three and four-tenths miles.

Seventh.—To make its Long Island railroad investment remunerative within a comparatively short period.

Eighth.—To obtain a proper share of the golden future by judicious expenditures in a territory having abundant promise, whether viewed from the growth of traffic in the past or the outlook for the future.

How the Tunnels Were Built.

The construction of the Pennsylvania railroad tunnels under the North and East rivers into New York and

New Jersey, attaining a maximum depth of ninety-seven feet below mean high water and built for a heavy and high speed traffic of great volume, was an undertaking with little or no precedent. To accomplish this work was a most puzzling engineering problem on account of the soft mud through which the tunnels were driven under the Hudson river.

The tunnels or tubes themselves consist of a series of iron rings, and the installation of every ring meant an advance of two and a half feet. Eleven plates and a key piece at the top complete the circumference, and an entire ring weighs about fifteen tons. The cast iron plates, or sections of the ring, have flanges at right angles to the surface, and it is through these that the successive rings are held together with bolts. The record progress in one day of eight hours was five of these rings, or twelve and one-half feet. Hydraulic rams, placed against the flanges every few inches around the tube, were used to push forward the huge shields with which the tunnels were bored. Each shield weighed 134 tons. It had nine doors in it, and through these came the rock or sand or silt or whatever the material the tube penetrated.

If the tunnel project was to be a success the courses of the east and west bound shields had to be kept so true that they would meet exactly. To insure this the engineers calculated the difficulties closely, and a really remarkable system of reports was in effect from the first day work was started. Every morning they knew the progress made in the tunnels the day before to the very inch and the amount of rock and soil excavated to the cubic foot. The Pennsylvania railroad officers and the engineers hold this perfect system and the thoroughness of each day's work chiefly responsible for the promptness of the meeting of the tubes. Engineers say, too, that no project was ever carried out where the emphasis was so entirely upon the results rather than upon the money it cost to attain them.

The shields in the north tube under the Hudson river met on Sept. 17, 1906. Each had traveled some 3,000 feet through a treacherous river bed, yet the meeting was perfect. About a month later the shields in the south

tube met in the same way. To fill in the gap where the shields met in the south tube a tunnel section that had been on exhibition at the St. Louis world's fair was used. It consisted of eight rings. The shields in the four East river tunnels met as perfectly as those in the Hudson tubes, and all were completed at about the same time.

When the tubes were through from end to end the work of putting in the re-reinforced concrete lining was started immediately. This lining is twenty-two inches thick. On each side of the tunnel there is a so called bench three feet wide, which serves as a walk, while within will be carried conduits for telegraph, telephone, signal and power wires.

In the construction of the tunnels nothing was left undone by the railroad company to protect the lives and health of the workmen. No engineering problem connected with the entire New York tunnel extension received more attention than the many precautions to protect the hundreds of men who, day and night, week days and Sundays and holidays, bored the under-river tunnels. Down under many fathoms of mud and rock the steel tubes which are to land passengers from the east and west into the heart of New York city were pushed steadily forward with no more waste of time than it took to change "shifts."

Underwater work has a fearsome sound—to those who have never seen it going on. Talk to men who have been engaged in it for years, and one gets another idea. There are plenty who can speak with authority, for the world was searched for men of experience to build the Pennsylvania tunnels. On the cross town shafts sixty Austrians who got their training in the Simplon tunnel were employed. There were engineers and foremen here who had tunneled in Egypt,

South Africa, England and America and who now are doubtless looking for other subterranean regions to conquer.

All the excitement was taken out of one novice's visit back of a tunnel shield by finding Tom Brown, the oldest foreman on the contractor's staff, seated on a pile of river bed silt gravely squeezing mud balls for the purpose of finding how much water the sand carried at that spot. That nothing but the air pressure kept the whole of the river from descending on his head worried him not the least.

But the dangers of the work? Dangers there were, or a certain risk of injury, but not enough to worry a man in good health who observed the rules that stared him in the face from every wall.

To make it as safe under the bed of the river as it is on the land's surface was the aim of the Pennsylvania tunnel builders. The old Hudson river tunnel which crosses the Hudson at Morton street was abandoned at one time because so many lives were lost. The main difficulty was to keep the river from coming into the tube and drowning the workmen. The air under the heavy pressure required to keep the water from sweeping in sometimes blew out through the river bottom, and then the water poured in in such volume that there was little or no time for escape.

In the Pennsylvania railroad tunnels the life of the "sand hog" was almost as safe as that of the surface worker. Emergency locks, air curtains and emergency platforms or walks near the roof of the tunnel were provided so that in case of a blowout and consequent flooding of the tunnel the men would have a chance to escape through the air held in the top of the tunnel.

The most important of the rules enforced while the Pennsylvania tunnels were being built was one requiring the men to go slowly through the air locks. This rule was to take a minute for about two pounds of pressure in either words, in coming out of a pressure of thirty-four pounds a man should spend not less than fifteen minutes in the lock. Finding that this rule was ignored, Henry Japp, managing engineer of the contractors who built the East river tubes, devised a valve which enabled the lock tender to regulate the change of pressure, with mechanical exactness.

Before a man was permitted to work in the under-river tunnels he was put through a severe examination for heart and lung troubles and general condition. If he passed the medical inspection he was sent "down in the air" for an hour or two and then re-examined. If the second examination was satisfactorily passed he was put on a short shift for a week and then if he showed no ill effects was given a steady job.

Men of all nationalities built the Pennsylvania tunnels, negroes doing a large part of the job. Laziness was something the contractors never had to contend with. They say there must be something about the compressed air which generates energy and enthusiasm, for the "muckers"—commonly known as "sand hogs"—vied with one another to make the greatest progress.

SOME FIGURES SHOWING MILEAGE AND CAPACITY OF IMPROVEMENTS:

Maximum capacity of all tunnels per hour, 144 trains.

Storage capacity of station yard tracks, 386 cars.

Proposed initial daily service of Pennsylvania Railroad trains, 400.

Proposed initial daily service of Long Island Railroad trains, 600.

Length of river tube tunnels, single track miles, 6.8.

Length of land tunnels, single track miles, 6.8.

Length of run, Bergen Portal to Long Island Portal, 5.3 miles.

Total length of track in tunnels, exclusive of yard tracks in station, 16.5 miles.

Length of run, Harrison, N. J., to terminal station, 8.6 miles.

Length of run, Jamaica, L. I., to terminal station, 11.85 miles.

ARRESTS MADEBoxing Club Officers Taken By Police

NEW YORK, May 17.—Mike (Twin) Sullivan of Boston and Jimmy Clabby of Milwaukee, refused to go on last night for the 10 round bout that was to have been the main attraction of the Marathon Athletic club at Brooklyn. They had good reason. Early in the evening, the police entered the club house armed with seven warrants from the supreme court of Kings county for the owners and officers of the club, and for Jack Sullivan, Mike's brother, Al Benedict, with whom Jack fought 10 rounds last week; Tommy West, who acted as second for Jack, and Billy Madden, the man who brought out John L. Sullivan, and was in Benedict's corner last week. Only the owners and officers of the club were arrested.

The warrants charged the officers of the club with selling tickets to a prize fight in violation of the law and charged the principals and seconds respectively of prize fighting and of aiding and abetting a prize fight.

There was great excitement when the arrests were made but although Sullivan and Clabby declined to take chances with the law, the club held six preliminary bouts as scheduled.

GENERAL MATTOCKS DEAD

PORTLAND, Me., May 17.—General Charles P. Mattocks, colonel of the 17th regiment in the Civil war and the only Maine man who held a general's commission in the Spanish war, died last night. He has been prominent in the Grand Army and Loyal Legion, and was a former judge in the probate court. He was 69 years old.

ROLLER INJUREDIN HIS WRESTLING BOUT WITH ZYBSZKO

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 17.—Stanislaw Zybszko, the Polish wrestler and a candidate for Frank Gotch's title as champion, last night defeated Dr. Roller of Seattle, in a finish match. Roller's left shoulder was badly wrenched when the Pole slammed him to the mat for the first fall.

It was announced that Dr. Roller was returning to the ring for the second bout against the advice of his seconds and when he reappeared it was seen that his left arm hung helpless by his side. Zybszko quickly got behind his man and when he began working upon the injured arm Dr. Roller's seconds threw up the sponge.

The time for the first fall was 1:05.40 and for the second 1:40.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION

A program has been prepared for the annual convention of the Lowell union, Christian Endeavorers, which will be held at the Palace Street Free Baptist church on Saturday afternoon and evening of this week. Not only will the Lowell district be represented, but visitors are expected from many out-of-town places.

The two main addresses will be given, one in the afternoon by Rev. Smith Baker, D. D., and in the evening by Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., the Christian Endeavor founder and referred to by Christian Endeavorers as Father Endeavor Clark. Dr. Baker's subject is to be "How to Build Up Your Own Society," and Dr. Clark will speak on "The Secret of Worldwide Success in Christian Endeavor."

Besides the two addresses, papers will be read on various subjects, and a good part of the program will be devoted to music. Supper will be served, followed by a reception to Dr. Clark.

EX-GOV. ROLLINS HORSE OWNERSFaces a Charge of Given Advice as to Use of Medicines

NEW YORK, May 17.—While former Governor Frank West Rollins of New Hampshire has declared he had no idea of defrauding the customs officers of New York by not declaring all

Although much has been written concerning the methods of administering medicines to horses, to this day many horse owners and caretakers exhibit a great amount of ignorance or carelessness in giving necessary medicines to horses. They may be given by the mouth, by the lungs and air passages, by applications to the skin and by hypodermics, injections and by enemata.

These medicines to be given by the mouth consist in the main of powders, balls, drenches and electuaries. Powders should always be finely ground and free from irritating poisonous or caustic substances, lacking disagreeable taste or smell. Such can easily be mixed with the feed or water. If given with the grain, insist that they be sure the horse is eating rather than blowing about or left in the feed box or manger.

Balls should be made about 2 inches long and three-quarters of an inch in diameter, soft and flexible. Medicine is of a disagreeable nature like phlegm, is much easier given as a ball than a drench. When balls are to be given, and phlegm is as important in the proper treating of the horse in many ills as it is in humanity, it is quite easily done if one goes about it in a cool and collected manner and proceeds along these lines.

Lead the horse up to the side of some elevation, upon which you can have a ring or hook above the head, through which you can pass the end of the halter but do not make it fast. Have an assistant just hold it pulling the head up easily and quickly until the head or line of the face is just a mite above a horizontal line. Take the ball between the thumb and finger of hand, immerse it in oil or glycerine, open the horse's mouth gently, pull the tongue out and over to the left hand side allowing it to lay across the teeth and firmly but gently held by the hand, pass the ball up the mouth well back at the roots of the tongue, drop it there, remove the hands quickly and allow the tongue to be pulled back into the mouth. The horse will generally swallow a properly made ball without further effort on your part. It is well to have a pail of water handy, and if the ball be given when the animal is thirsty, he will readily drink and help to carry the ball along to the stomach.

KEPT PRISONERGirl Was Found By the Police

NEW YORK, May 17.—Bruised and under-pled, a girl who gives her name as Elizabeth Kelley, 19 years old, was taken by the police yesterday from a house in Bayonne, N. J. She says she has been kept a prisoner there by Joseph Figel, an Italian, for three months.

The girl has been in this country only six months. She says she met Figel in a moving picture show, and he induced her to enter his house by promises of employment. She was found yesterday nearly crazed with fright in a third story room. Women's clothes had to be borrowed before she could be taken out. She said her own had been burned by Figel to prevent her escape. Figel was arrested and held without bail.

WENT ON STRIKELasters in Marlboro Quit Work

MARLBORO, May 17.—Fifty men employed in the lastest department of the Rice & Hutchins Middlesex factory at this place went on strike yesterday afternoon.

The grievance of the strikers against the firm is that two brother employees in the lastest department were discharged yesterday morning for what the strikers claim insufficient cause and the strikers have declared they will not return to work until the two discharged men are reinstated.

The real cause of the discharge of the two men, the strikers claim, is that one of them has been very active in the affairs of the union. Both of those discharged went out of the factory yesterday morning for some reason of their own and when they returned they were notified their services were no longer required.

All of the men on strike are members of the United Shoe Workers of America and they held a meeting last night in their rooms in Warren block. After the meeting the strikers said there is no change in the situation. Many of the strikers are Greeks.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

Empire colony, 170, U. O. P. E., held its regular meeting in Pilgrim hall last night and much business of importance was transacted. Two candidates were initiated. The memorial committee reported that everything was ready for the services to be held Monday evening, June 6.

An invitation to visit Garfield colony was accepted.

Butler Ames Co. 16, U. R. K. P.

The regular assembly of Butler Ames company, 16, U. R. K. P., was held last night, Lieut. Col. Robert Hall of Haverhill presiding. Edwin P. Lamson was installed as second lieutenant of the company. One application for membership was received. At the close of the business session a social hour was enjoyed.

Division 2, A. O. H.

A well attended meeting of Division 2, A. O. H., was held last night in Ellerman hall, with Vice-President Lynch in the chair. Considerable business of importance was transacted. Five propositions for membership were received and three candidates were initiated. There will be a special meeting on Sunday, May 21, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to complete all arrangements for the A. O. H. outing at Lexington park on Sunday, June 5.

WM. J. BRYANSPEAKS IN FAVOR OF COUNTY OPTION

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., May 17.—Speaking at the Overland theatre here last night after being refused by the county commissioners the use of the courthouse, Wm. J. Bryan urged the need of an extra session of the legislature to enact the initiative and referendum, whereby the question of county option might be removed from partisan politics. The large crowd was respectful and attentive.

Mr. Bryan said the attitude of the saloon interests was that they were opposed to county option, that they were unwilling that the people should vote on the question. He criticized the attitude of the anti-optionists of this country, who, he said, went so far as to oppose the free discussion of the initiative and referendum. He declared: The liquor interests are responsible for the forcing of the county option question in the arena of politics, and they have only themselves to blame for the results that shall follow the growing indignation against the impudence, the insolence of the liquor interests.

JUDGE MURRAYIssues a Warning to Pickpockets

BOSTON, May 17.—Pickpockets were scored by Judge Murray in the municipal criminal court yesterday. Six men were arraigned for attempted larceny from the person, and the judge found all the prisoners guilty.

His Honor said: "The city is infested with pickpockets. It is getting so that it is unsafe to ride in an electric car or walk through the public thoroughfares. Every man brought before me for picking pockets or attempting to do so, who is found guilty, shall be made an example of."

John Long and Edward Miller were arrested while "working" an electric car on Huntington avenue last Thursday evening. Detectives Gleavy and Linton of headquarters said Long had served sentences at state prison, the house of correction and Sing Sing.

NAVAL WARFARETOOK PLACE ON THE POTOMAC RIVER

WASHINGTON, May 17.—A bit of naval warfare took place yesterday on the Potomac river at Indian Head, Va., when the old United States navy ram Katahdin, which was stricken from the navy list last year, received her baptism of fire. It was not the fire of an enemy, but it was aimed at her with every intention of sinking her if possible. Having outlived her usefulness as a fighting vessel, the curious naval vessel was clothed in modern 12-inch, high grade armor plate and a dozen ordinance experts directed the attack on her with the new soft nose naval shell, hurled through a big 12-inch gun. Anchored at a distance of about five miles the Katahdin served to assist the naval experts in ascertaining whether the new shell can be detected when it strikes at any angle or whether it would bite into the armor plate as the naval officers anticipated. Unfortunately for the public the navy department conducted the experiment with all possible secrecy.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY

ANOTHER ARREST

In Connection With Fitchburg Bank Swindling Case

FITCHBURG, May 17.—The arrest of Hector McLane at Bridgeport, Conn., late today, local police assert, closes the net about the suspects who, on May 4, banded the Worcester North Savings Institution out of $1700, using a deed and mortgage given by a man alleged to be Hector McLane.

All the suspects in the swindle are in custody, two here, and one at Bridgeport.

Corbett J. McLane of Worcester was arrested Sunday on a charge of larceny in connection with the swindle, was arraigned yesterday in the local police court and on his plea of not guilty a hearing was set for May 25, and he was held in sureties of $2500.

Corbett J. McLane, according to the police, represented himself as Armstrong, an attorney, when the deed figuring in the case was forged in the office of Atty. Jean Robichaud and the name of John Dohia was used.

It is claimed by the police McLane with his brother, Hector McLane, came here from Worcester about May 1, and formed the acquaintance of James Russell, who has been arrested under the name of James A. McNeil. The three men, according to the police, were all implicated in the deal whereby the savings institution took a mortgage on the property of John Dohia, which Hector McLane, who passed as George P. Sands, claimed he had purchased.

Hector McLane, according to the police, is the man who got the $1700 from the savings institution, and who is alleged to have passed himself as John Dohia in the law office of Attorney Robichaud.

Inspector Flaherty learned yesterday from Corbett J. McLane that it was his brother, Hector McLane, who arranged the scheme. The police have learned that Hector McLane recently attempted to secure money in the same way in Bridgeport, Conn. and he is now on bail there waiting for a hearing upon the complaint, charging him with attempt to defraud. A detective was here yesterday from Bridgeport after Hector McLane, as he is wanted in that city.

The police gave out the statement yesterday that Corbett McLane has made a complete confession, in which

TRAIN WRECKED

Engineer Was Thrown From Cab

PITTSFIELD, May 17.—Traffic on the Boston & Albany railroad was blocked for several hours at Pittsfield Junction last night by the wreck of the Harlem express, bound from New York to North Adams. Although the locomotive left the tracks and turned over on one side, meanwhile plunging diagonally across the roadbed so as to block every track, only the engineer, Peter O'Donnell of North Adams, was thrown through the cab window and somewhat injured. The 25 passengers in the train were shaken up but none injured to any extent.

Besides the locomotive, a baggage car was derailed. The train was running slowly in the yard at Pittsfield Junction and was about to take the switch from the main line to the branch line leading to North Adams shortly before 8 o'clock, when the engine suddenly left the tracks and plunging across the roadbed, turned over on one side. Engineer O'Donnell had one foot slightly hurt, while his fireman escaped save for slight bruises received as he was hurled out. The engineer was taken to North Adams on a special train.

The route of the train was recently extended from Pittsfield to North Adams. There was a report current that the accident was due to rail spreading where repairs were being made, but the company officials would assign no cause for the derailment.

WILL THESE INSURGENT SENATORS SURRENDER TO PRESIDENT TAFT?

WASHINGTON, May 17.—From now until the close of congress the country is due to witness a spirited fight between the administration forces and six insurgent senators. Senators Brister, La Follette, Doherty, Clapp and Cummings have not been in harmony with all the policies of the president. The president requested a score of senators to call at the White House and discuss various bills that he is anxious to have passed. Invitations were extended to some of the insurgents, and Cummings was among the number to respond, but he has not promised to follow the leadership of Taft, according to reports here.

LIQUOR CASE

Supreme Court Finds That Judge Morton Erred in Ruling

The full bench of the supreme court yesterday sustained the defendant's exceptions in the case of the commonwealth vs. Ferdinando Radocchia, holding that Judge Morton of the superior court erred when he instructed the jury that as matter of law the receiving of wages would be hire and reward for the transportation of liquor into the city of Malden.

The defendant was employed by one Marotta, who runs a liquor store in Boston. The latter advertises "all goods delivered free to Malden." He has his own delivery wagon and the defendant is employed by him to drive that delivery wagon and do other work about the store. Liquors are delivered in the wagon by the defendant to various parts of Boston as well as to Malden. Under the statute no one can for hire or reward transport liquors into a no-license city or town. It appeared that the defendant, who was transporting liquor to Malden, received weekly wages from his employer for all work done by him, which included the delivery of goods in Malden.

The court holds the question whether the defendant received any hire or reward was for the jury.

"It will always be for the jury," says the court, "even though the wages charged for the liquors is not made different for different distances, to say whether that price does not really include a charge for delivery, based perhaps upon what is expected to be the average cost of all the deliveries that will be made."

The court says that if the seller agrees to deliver free of charge for the carriage, it doubtless will be a question for the jury whether this is actually done or whether he really receives a hire or reward for the carriage by its being included in the price charged for the liquors themselves, but there is nothing in the statute which forbids him from delivering to his customers in another town the goods he has sold to them. If he really in good faith does this without receiving, either directly or indirectly in the price of the goods, any hire or reward for the carriage.

The court says "Whatever the seller may do himself he may do through his hired servant. In such a case the wages paid to that servant for all the services to be rendered by the latter cannot be said to be a hire or reward for the carriage of liquors, merely because those services may incidentally include the duty of carrying the liquors and delivery of them to the purchaser thereof. We need not consider how this would be if it appeared that the servant was hired and paid exclusively or even principally for the purpose of making such deliveries."

The full bench of the supreme court yesterday sustained the exceptions of the respondent in the case of Joseph Weeks against Sarah L. Brooks et al, on the ground that the superior court should have framed issues, for a jury as asked for by the respondent. The court says that a jury trial where the title to real property is put in issue is not a privilege to be granted in the sound discretion of the court as in probate appeals or issues in suits in equity, but is a right guaranteed by the constitution.

The case related to the registration of a tract of land on Beacon street and Commonwealth avenue. The defendant wanted issue framed for a jury as to the title and the superior court refused to frame issues for a jury. The case went to that court on an appeal from the land court.

GIRL SUCCEEDS

After 8 Years Reaches Brother's Grave

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 17.—After eight years of effort the pluck and devotion of a Manchester girl, Miss Annie Meehan, has been rewarded by her reaching San Francisco on the pilgrimage to her brother's grave. William Meehan was a member of Gen. William Sullivan's company, the Sheridan Guards, at Chickamauga, and later served under his old captain in the 26th U. S. volunteers in the Philippines. He died in 1892, but it was several months before his relatives were informed of his death. A request for the shipment home of his body met with the reply that owing to the nature of his disease under military regulations the body could not be shipped home for several years, and then only to San Francisco at government expense.

Miss Meehan, unable to rest until

she started for the coast, determined to work her passage as best she could. She sought employment in one town and city after another, always getting a little farther west. It took her a year to make her way to Chicago, and many months to save enough money to "proceed" on her journey. Slowly, but surely she neared the goal, making her way through Illinois, Nebraska, Colorado, Arizona and finally, eight years from the time of her departure she reached San Francisco. She readily found the grave, No. 745, west side, a new addition to San Francisco cemetery, where the remains of her brother were buried in 1905, three years after his death in Manila.

In a letter received yesterday she described the burial place as beautiful, and expresses her deep appreciation of the efforts of Gen. Sullivan to have the remains of her brother brought from the Philippines to rest in his native land. He died of cholera, Miss Meehan has found work as a waitress in San Francisco.

ECZEMA TWENTY YEARS CURED BY AN OIL

No matter if you have suffered for 20 years or 20 months, you are cured in one day, and that sooner or later—perhaps very soon—your skin will be as clean and pure as ever.

Wash your skin with a simple compound, the mild soothing oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine compound known as D. D. D. Prescription.

The first night of restful sleep will prove to you that we make no foolish exaggerated claims. Eczema sufferers must recognize that we certainly would not make such claims, if within a few minutes after trying the remedy you could prove us wrong; we KNOW the itch is allayed at once.

While we have always sold D. D. D. Prescription at $1.00 a bottle, we do feel that everybody ought to be convinced at once. So we have arranged with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special offer—for the next two months—a trial size bottle at only 25 cents (for those who have never tried the remedy).

BLOOD STANDS STILL FILES CAN'T BE CURED UNTIL CIRCULATION IS RESTORED

It is useless to try to cure piles by operating or use of salves or suppositories—as long as the blood is stagnant in the lower bowel, new tumors will continue to form. Clear the blood—free the circulation. Then piles will leave for good. A successful scientific, internal remedy is Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, sold under guarantee by Carter & Sherburne, Lowell, Mass. Hem-Roid does its work thoroughly. $1 for 24 days' treatment. Dr. Leonhardt Co., Station B, Buffalo, N. Y. Write for booklet.

The Lid Goes on in Haverhill

HAVERHILL, May 17.—The bouts that were to have been boxed here last night under the conduct of the Merrimack athletic and social association, were called off late yesterday afternoon, when the promoters received word from the police that arrests would follow if any attempt should be made to carry out the program arranged.

Steve Kennedy of Lawrence was slated to meet Johnny Moran of New York in the main bout of 12 rounds, and Moran was already in the city when the ultimatum from police headquarters went forth. Stanley Ketchel was to have acted as his second.

Complaint was made to the city officials recently that the boxing clubs, although incorporated, were not keeping within the law, in that many persons were permitted to witness the bouts who were not bona fide members of the club.

Alderman Joe W. Bean investigated the complaint, and after a conference with City Marshal Mack he decided that the best course to pursue would be to put a ban on all boxing exhibitions, with the result that the lid is now on tight, so far as boxing is concerned in Haverhill.

EDGAR ALLAN POE SURE OF PLACE IN THE HALL OF FAME

NEW YORK, May 17.—Edgar Allan Poe is leading all the candidates in a popular vote for a place in the Hall of Fame. Once every five years is held an election for the Hall of Fame. The third election is now in progress, the 204 names which have been placed in nomination having been forwarded to the thirty-six electors on April 30. The nominations were transmitted by Chancellor MacCracken of the New York university. The rules prescribe that the council of the

New York university invite nominations from the public. These further provide that "every nomination which has been seconded by a member of the university senate be submitted to an electorate of 100 eminent citizens selected by the council." There are now four vacancies in the electorate. From the 204 nominations a total of forty names are to be selected. The general list comprises 148 nominations, from which the electors will choose twenty-six for admission to the Hall of Fame. The nominations for famous American women who are eligible for this honor comprise thirty-five names, from which ten names are to be chosen. In addition to these two lists is one more—that of famous men of foreign birth. From the twenty-eight nominations four names are to be selected. It is recalled that many difficulties beset the electors at the time of the last election, that there were many contentions and disagreements, and particularly that a protest arose over the failure of the electors to include the name of Edgar Allan Poe.

ceived yesterday. The Sorenson sank in four minutes, giving the crew barely time to escape in boats. The Sorenson harpooned a large whale which, after racing with the rope, turned about and headed for the vessel. Passing under the stern, the whale delivered a blow with its tail and smashed in the hull. The crew struggled to shore and built a signal fire. The next night they were taken up by a passing vessel. The whale was afterwards found floating dead.

TOSS OF COIN

SETTLED LEGAL TROUBLE BETWEEN GATES AND MADDEN

NEW YORK, May 17.—According to a story published here John W. Gates and John E. Madden, old friends and both good sportsmen, settled a law suit by a flip of the coin yesterday. Gates won $2500 on the first throw. Another toss and he won $200, representing the costs of the action. The litigation arose over $11,000 worth of oil stock bought for Madden by Gates which the former refused to accept. After Madden had testified before a referee, Gates suggested that they decide by the coin who should pay for the reference. Madden accepted, and cried "heads." The referee fell "tails."

LEGAL NOTICES

EDWARD J. ROBBINS, Auctioneer,
90 Prescott St., Lowell, Mass.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Sells Knutson and Lovisa Knutson, both of Lowell in the County of Middlesex and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, to Abbie M. Follett of Varietta, in the State of Ohio, dated May thirty-first, A. D. 1884, and recorded with Middlesex North District Register, Deeds, Book 254, Page 180, and for breach of the condition of said mortgage, will be sold at public auction on the premises in said mortgage deed described, on Wednesday, the first day of June, A. D. 1910, at four o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, viz:

A certain lot of land with the buildings thereon situated on the northerly side of Court avenue in said Lowell, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at land of the heirs of Elias Dean and said avenue; thence on said heirs' land northerly about twenty-five feet to the fence which separates the back yard of the cottage on the premises from the back yard of the cottage northeasterly thereof; thence on said fence easterly about twenty-five feet to a point in a line with the front fence to the cottage on the premises; thence on said front fence and in a line therewith southerly about twenty-five feet to Court avenue; thence on said avenue to the point of beginning; being the same premises conveyed to said Sells Knutson and Lovisa Knutson by Ann Doyle by deed dated Oct. 2, 1888, erroneously stated in said mortgage to be dated 1883, and which said deposit book is lost or destroyed.

Abbie M. Follett, Mortgagee.
Lowell, Mass., May 10, 1910.

Other terms made known at sale.

Under authority of Section 40, chapter 860, of the Acts of 1908, J. All Jimie, of Lowell, Mass., do hereby give notice that I have made written application to the Lowell Institution for Savings, Lowell, Mass., for a duplicate deposit book of account number 102941, standing in the name of Abbie M. Follett, and which said deposit book is lost or destroyed.

SHORT MEASURE NEGROES BURNED WHALER WRECKED

Adds to High Cost of Living
Thirty-six Convicts Lost By Blow From Harpooned Whale

NEW YORK, May 17.—Some things that add to the high cost of living were shown in the quarterly report, yesterday of Acting Chief McCoy of the bureau of weights and measures. No less than 37 cases were found whereby customers were short weighed or short measured on purchases.

Weights sawed off so as to weigh not more than 12 ounces to the pound were discovered. Devices for cheating included measures containing false bottoms, while weights were found to be drilled out and the holes filled in with wax and blackened over.

Lee Mills, a dealer in weights and measures, made an affidavit in a Brooklyn court today that one of the largest dairy companies in New York, with several branches, was selling two-pound packages of butter that were short anywhere from 2 to 3 1/2 ounces.

SURPRISE PARTY

A pleasant surprise party was held Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Foley, 88 Cosgrove street, in honor of their daughter, Catherine. She was presented with a beautiful locket. The presentation speech was made by Miss Jennie Nelson. Miss Foley was surprised but responded in a fitting manner. The evening was passed very enjoyably. James Lane presided at the piano, while Anna Harris rendered many beautiful selections. There were piano solos by Lizette Flynn, Mary Kelly, William Liversay and the Gourley brothers. Refreshments were served and the party broke up at a late hour wishing the hostess many happy returns of the day.

TO BOOM STATE

BIG MEETING HELD IN BOSTON LAST NIGHT

BOSTON, May 17.—The investment of Massachusetts capital in Massachusetts enterprises and the development of real estate throughout the commonwealth was advanced and supported in a rousing and enthusiastic manner last night at a banquet of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, at which the speakers included Gov. Eben S. Draper and Mayor John F. Fitzgerald. The meeting was the largest ever held by the exchange, over 350 being present. President John J. Martin put forward ten suggestions for the betterment of the city and state, in which he advocated better transportation facilities; development of the water front and navigable rivers; more money for home ventures; more mortgage money for real estate; less consolidation tending to restrain competition; cooperation with less "knocking;" development of home industries; and encouragement of young men in business enterprises.

Governor Draper made a plea for wider support of his proposition to secure home capital for the bonds of a Massachusetts holding company, favored a tunnel under Boston connecting the two railroad terminals and declared constant pressure should be made on the corporations for better suburban electrical connections.

Former Governor J. Q. A. Brackett took issue with Governor Draper on the advisability of building a tunnel under Boston on tending to make Boston a way station.

Among the mayors of other cities present were C. S. Ashley of New Bedford and John P. Moehan of Lowell.

Dr. Temple's Treatment Free to the Sick

THIS IS THE OFFER

Anyone applying for treatment at the office, 97 Central street, Mansur block, rooms 10, 11, 12, will be treated or compensated whatever for medical office treatment or advice. No money will be asked or accepted under any circumstances. This is absolutely and positively true to all sufferers with any form of a nervous or chronic disease of the stomach, liver, kidneys, bladder, blood or rectum. The offer is limited in time only. You must come this week.

THE FREE TREATMENT PLAN

is not a philanthropic or charity offer, but simply a business proposition, made for the purpose of becoming quickly acquainted with the sick, to introduce this new and progressive method of treatment and to prove this wonderful system of healing. Therefore, all may call—the high, the low, the rich, the poor, without fear or favor. The doctor believes that the grateful indorsements of the many who will be relieved and cured will attract public attention to his office and system of treatment for the suffering multitudes and repay for the great outlay and expense entailed by this offer.

Observe the days and hours which the Free Treatment is given: Mondays and Wednesdays, 7 a. m. to 12, 2 to 5, 7 to 8; Sundays, 10 to 12. Other days by appointment only.

MASON ARRESTED

Charged With Breaking and Entering and Larceny

BANGOR, Me., May 17.—William Mason of Lowell, Mass., is locked up at police headquarters in this city, charged with having broken into the Bangor & Aroostook station at Brownville Monday night and stolen therefrom two one thousand mile mileage books and two pay checks. Mason, it is said, presented the pay checks in payment for clothing purchased at two Bangor stores and received the balance in cash. A mileage book which corresponds in number with that stolen at Brownville Monday night was disposed of at a pawnshop on Exchange street.

ONE MAN KILLED

In a Drunken Row in Fall River Following a Wedding

FALL RIVER, May 17.—A drunken row in which three wedding guests took part, occurred in this city at 1.30 this morning, resulting in the death of Henry Bonnoyer, aged 28, and the subsequent arrest of his two companions on manslaughter charges, furnishing a tragic ending to the wedding party.

Louis Gibeau, 27, and Wilfred St. Martin, 28, were placed under arrest and upon arraignment before Judge McDonough in the district court, this morning, continuances were obtained by the government, surety in the sum of $2500 each being ordered.

CLOSED DOOR IN PERSIA

ST. PETERSBURG, May 17.—Count von Pourtales, the German ambassador at St. Petersburg, has made representations to the government in reference to the Anglo-Russian note, which demands that Persia shall not grant strategic railroad concessions to, nor negotiate a loan with, a third power, thus impairing the security of earlier Anglo-Russian loans.

It is learned at the foreign office that Russia and Great Britain will refuse to admit the political interests of a third power in Persia. The situation is regarded here as a possible prelude to another Moroccan affair, and the Russian newspapers strike an alarmist note.

ROASTED TO DEATH

PORTLAND, Ore., May 17.—The famous man-monkey, "Charles the First," was roasted to death by the radiator in a baggage car on the Northern Pacific railroad coming from Seattle to Portland yesterday. He had been appearing on a western circuit, and was booked for nearly one hundred weeks ahead at $750 a week.

Charles sat up in the smoker with other vaudeville players until 6 a. m., when his owner, Charles Judge, put him to bed in his cage in the baggage car. The cage stood against a radiator, and during the night the steam was turned on. When Portland was reached it was found that the monkey was dead. There were evidences in the cage of his attempts to attract attention.

LOSS IS $25,000

Lumber Mill Burned to Ground

BANGOR, Me., May 17.—Fire early this afternoon burned Cassidy & Son's lumber mill to the ground and the flames spreading to the Ross Coal company's shed caused a total loss there. A large amount of lumber was burned. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

TROOPS RUSHED TO FRONTIER
GUAYAMAQUE, Ecuador, May 17.—More troops are being rushed to the frontier. An artillery brigade splendidly equipped left for Machala in the southwestern part of Ecuador today. Congress will meet in extraordinary session on June 1 to deal with the trouble with Peru.

COMET VISIBLE TOMORROW
CAMBRIDGE, May 17.—The great sweep of the tail of Halley's comet of 90 degrees or the distance from the horizon to the zenith as observed by Rev. Mr. Metcalf at Taunton and Prof. Whiting at Wellesley college this morning lead the astronomers at the Harvard observatory to predict that this portion of the comet will be visible tomorrow morning from 1 a. m. until dawn.
No special preparations are being made at the Harvard observatory to observe the comet during the next few days as it is believed that its proximity to the sun will prevent any satisfactory results.

WILL NOT COMPROMISE
WASHINGTON, May 17.—At a conference of republican regulars in the senate this afternoon it was decided that compromise with the insurgent republicans was impossible. All propositions looking to an agreement through mutual concessions for an amicable settlement of remaining sections of the railroad bill are likely to be withdrawn.

Cleverly Played Game at Spalding Park

The Lowell team presented a rather crippled up lineup this afternoon when it faced Lynn at Spalding park. The two Lowell catchers are on the injured list, Huston having split his finger in the game at the park Saturday afternoon while Stone put one of his fingers out of commission in the game at Lynn yesterday.

Walter Foye, the Lowell utility man, went behind the bat for Lowell and gave a good account of himself. Ordway was out of the game and Campbell took his place at third base while Cooney played short. Blakeley, the new outfielder, who was to have reported today, was not in a Lowell uniform when the game was called.

Tyler did the twirling for the Grays and Swornsted was on the slab for the visitors. The game was called at 3 o'clock by Umpire Byrne, the batting order being as follows:

Score—Lowell 0, Lynn 0.

First Inning
Neither side scored in the first inning. Cargo and Coulter, the two first men up, sent grounders to Fitzpatrick and were retired at first. Metz drew a free pass, but he failed to get any farther than first for Burg was third out on a fly to Fluharty.

In the latter half of the inning Fitzpatrick drew a base on balls and went to second on Campbell's sacrifice. Fitzpatrick and Magee filed to Streaser.

Score—Lowell 0, Lynn 0.

Second Inning
There was nothing doing in the second inning either. Logan opened with a single and Streaser hit to Tyler, who threw Logan out at second. Streaser then stole second. Stovall hit to Fitzpatrick and was out at first. Daum sent a grounder to Cooney and was out at first.

In Lowell's half Cooney got hit by a pitched ball and walked to first and he went to second on Jones' sacrifice.

Score—Lowell 0, Lynn 1.

Third Inning
Two more goose eggs were registered in the third inning. Swornsted struck out. Cargo hit a line drive to Fitz and was out at first while Coulter hit to Cooney and died at first.

In the latter half of the inning Tyler hit along the first base line and was out at first and Fitz followed with a single to short second base. Campbell filed to Coulter and Fitz was nailed while trying to steal second.

Score—Lowell 0, Lynn 0.

Fourth Inning
The visitors scored a run in the fourth inning. Metz, the first man up, smashed the ball to the center field fence for a clean three bagger, and scored on Burg's single to left field. Logan fouled to Fitzpatrick and was first out. Streaser drew a base on balls and stole second. Stovall struck out and Daum was third out on a fly to Jones.

Foye hit to Burg and was out at first and Moore hit to Cargo and was out at first.

Score—Lowell 0, Lynn 0.

Fifth Inning
The visitors scored a run in the fifth inning. Metz, the first man up, smashed the ball to the center field fence for a clean three bagger, and scored on Burg's single to left field. Logan fouled to Fitzpatrick and was first out. Streaser drew a base on balls and stole second. Stovall struck out and Daum was third out on a fly to Jones.

Lowell got the bases filled in the latter half of the inning, but failed to send a man across the plate. Fluharty opened with a fly to Logan. Magee followed with a base on balls. Cooney hit to Burg, forcing Magee at second. Jones and Foye drew bases on balls, filling the bases, but Morse popped a fly to Magee and was out at first.

Score—Lowell 0, Lynn 1.

Sixth Inning
Metz opened the sixth by hitting in front of the plate. He thought it was a foul and failed to run and was tagged out. Burg hit to Cooney and was out at first. Logan followed with a base on balls. Streaser hit one too hot for Fitz to handle for a single. Stovall hit to Campbell, forcing Logan at third.

Score—Lowell 0, Lynn 1.

Seventh Inning
Tyler was the particular shining star of the seventh inning when he caught a red hot line drive and threw it to second for a "double play." Daum was first up and he drew a base on balls and went to second on a wild pitch. Swornsted followed with a strike out. Cargo hit a red hot line drive at Tyler and the latter caught it in one hand and threw it quickly to second base for a double on Daum.

Foye got Lowell's second hit, a grounder too hot for Logan to handle. Morse fouled fly to Daum and Tyler hit to Cargo forcing Foye at second. Fitz hit to Cargo forcing Foye at second. Fitz hit to Cargo forcing Foye at second.

Score—Lowell 0, Lynn 1.

Eighth Inning
In the eighth inning Coulter fouled to Campbell and Metz followed with a Texas leaguer in center field. Burg filed to Magee and Logan filed to Morse.

Fluharty filed to Coulter and Magee followed with a single to right field. Cooney hit to Swornsted and was out at first. Magee going to second. Jones filed out to Stovall.

Score—Lowell 0, Lynn 1.

Ninth Inning
Streaser got a base on balls and went to second on a sacrifice by Stovall. Daum hit to Campbell and died at first. Streaser making third. Streaser attempted to steal home while Tyler's back was turned, but he was nailed at the plate.

Foye filed out to Cargo. Ordway went to bat for Morse and hitting to Burg was out at first. Tyler hit to Swornsted and was out at first.

Score—Lowell 0, Lynn 0.

Hits—Lowell 3, Lynn 6.

Errors—Lowell 0, Lynn 0.

GEN. SPRAGUE DEAD

WORCESTER, May 17.—The career of General A. H. Sprague as a soldier, politician, city official and business man closed today, death coming after an illness of two weeks.

General Sprague was born in Ware in 1832 and was mustered out of service in the Civil war as a brevet brigadier-general of volunteers.

He served the city in both branches of the city council and as mayor and has been sheriff of Worcester county and a collector of internal revenue. At the time of his death he was president of the Worcester Electric Light Co. and the Mechanics Savings bank.

front of the plate. He thought it was a foul and failed to run and was tagged out. Burg hit to Cooney and was out at first. Logan followed with a base on balls. Streaser hit one too hot for Fitz to handle for a single. Stovall hit to Campbell, forcing Logan at third.

Magee was the first man up for the home team in the latter half of the inning and two strikes were called on him. The next ball struck him in the hand and although the batter did not offer at it the umpire called it a foul out when Daum caught it. Cooney hit to Burg and was out at first and Jones was third out on a foul fly to Metz.

Score—Lowell 0, Lynn 1.

Seventh Inning

Tyler was the particular shining star of the seventh inning when he caught a red hot line drive and threw it to second for a "double play." Daum was first up and he drew a base on balls and went to second on a wild pitch. Swornsted followed with a strike out. Cargo hit a red hot line drive at Tyler and the latter caught it in one hand and threw it quickly to second base for a double on Daum.

Foye got Lowell's second hit, a grounder too hot for Logan to handle. Morse fouled fly to Daum and Tyler hit to Cargo forcing Foye at second. Fitz hit to Cargo forcing Foye at second.

Score—Lowell 0, Lynn 1.

Eighth Inning

In the eighth inning Coulter fouled to Campbell and Metz followed with a Texas leaguer in center field. Burg filed to Magee and Logan filed to Morse.

Fluharty filed to Coulter and Magee followed with a single to right field. Cooney hit to Swornsted and was out at first. Magee going to second. Jones filed out to Stovall.

Score—Lowell 0, Lynn 1.

Ninth Inning

SERIOUS INJURY

Patrick McCann Fell From Staging

Patrick McCann of 33 Adams street fell from a staging, a distance of about 15 feet, at the gas works this afternoon, and fractured his left leg. It is feared, too, that he sustained internal injuries. He was removed in the ambulance to the Lowell General hospital. Mr. McCann was not employed by the gas company but by a company that is installing a boiler at the gas works.

DEATHS

HIGGINS—Mrs. Elizabeth Higgins, formerly of Brooks street, died at her summer home, Salem Willows, where she went to spend the summer. She is survived by five sons and two daughters. Sister Mary Gonzaga of Nazareth, Kentucky, John and Michael of England, Mrs. James Curran, Patrick, William and Frank, all of Lowell.

Funeral will take place from the home of her daughter, 154 Perry street, Mass. from St. Peter's church at nine o'clock, Peter Davey in charge.

SUPREME COURT

Decided Against Napoleon Rivet
Convicted of Murder

Defendant's exceptions were overruled by the full bench of the supreme court yesterday. In the case of the commonwealth vs. Napoleon J. Rivet, convicted of murder in the first degree. He killed Joseph Galloux, Feb. 29, 1905, in Lowell.

The men were friends for several years. About 14 months before the murder, the deceased, at the instigation of the defendant, took out a policy of insurance for $1000 on his life, payable to his heirs or legal representatives. About a month after the policy was issued it was assigned to the defendant. The expenses of taking out the policy and the first and second premiums thereon, which were all that had become due and payable at the time of the death of the insured, had been paid by the defendant.

The government claimed that the defendant's motive for the crime was his intention to collect the amount of the policy, which had been pledged to him as collateral for a debt owed by Galloux. The court holds there was no error on the part of the trial justices in allowing the district attorney to prove that Rivet, who was a for-feigner, understood what a life insurance policy meant.

The court holds the trial justices properly excluded evidence offered by the defense to the effect that on one occasion late in the fall previous to the murder, Galloux had been found in one Dalgie's shop dead drunk, that he frequently was in fights when intoxicated and frequently was seen with his face battered as a result of some fracas he had been in, and that he had been seen within a year before his death with a swollen face, black eyes and battered face generally. Defendant's counsel disclaimed having evidence that Rivet knew of the character of the deceased or of any intention to show that the killing was done in self defense. The court holds the doing of an act cannot be proved by evidence that from the habits of a person he would be apt to do it.

The court holds the trial justices properly excluded evidence offered by the defense to the effect that on one occasion late in the fall previous to the murder, Galloux had been found in one Dalgie's shop dead drunk, that he frequently was in fights when intoxicated and frequently was seen with his face battered as a result of some fracas he had been in, and that he had been seen within a year before his death with a swollen face, black eyes and battered face generally. Defendant's counsel disclaimed having evidence that Rivet knew of the character of the deceased or of any intention to show that the killing was done in self defense. The court holds the doing of an act cannot be proved by evidence that from the habits of a person he would be apt to do it.

GREAT DEMAND

For Telescopes and Opera Glasses

NEW YORK, May 17.—Whether this "mundane orb" is going to be swathed tomorrow night by that much discussed comet, Halley's comet, which rambles around in space and enters the earth's backyard every seventy-five years for a visit, depends entirely upon the length of the wanderer's tail, and this astral visitor has a happy and elusive faculty of putting on an dropping off a 25,000,000 mile appendage all within a day or two.

Whether this Halley's visitor will be accoutered with all his lengthy trappings tomorrow night is just what millions of people will sit up to see since the learned astronomers don't seem to agree.

FORTUNE OF $500,000

Hangs on Memory of Mill Girl's Mother

MILLBURY, May 17.—Because her mother cannot remember the Christian name of her uncle Minard, Dora Renault, a 19 year old girl of this town, believes she is barred from a fortune of half a million dollars.

Ten years ago the uncle left Ludlow to seek his fortune in the west, and before he left he told Dora's mother, who was Miss Julie Minard before her marriage, that he was going to make good for the sake of the little grandniece.

On the eve of his departure he told Mrs. Renault that he would give all he had to her child. None of the family knew how the world was using Minard in the west, though there were frequent letters to Mrs. Renault. In the last letter Minard said that he was prospering, but made no mention of the amount of his fortune. He concluded his letter by saying: "And remember, Julie, I intend to keep my promise made years ago, and leave all that I have to little Dora."

Some weeks ago Mrs. Renault received news of his death, and also a communication from his lawyer that if she could prove that she is the woman in question, and that Minard was her uncle, her daughter would receive the legacy, which amounted to half a million dollars.

Mrs. Renault cannot remember the Christian name of her uncle, cannot remember where he was born, nor when, nor any of the details of his life. Her father's family was very large, and they were continually moving about through the different mill towns in Massachusetts. All the members of the family were busy about their exact ages and even the parents were not sure. Instead of calling the uncle Jean, or Leon, or Gaston, or whatever the name might be, he was always called by the French diminutive of his surname, Minard, Minnie. He signed all his letters by this name, and that is the only one by which he was known to his friends.

So Dora drives all thoughts of Parisian millinery from her and sensibly continues her work in the mill in this town, until, as she says, she is really quite sure that it is not all a dream. And working beside her is a young man, Louis Rindeau, and he is the only one in the town who hopes that Mrs. Renault will not remember. For he is engaged to Dora, and in this great fortune he sees a barrier mounting between them, and he is accordingly despondent.

He is quite willing to go on working in the mill until they can afford to marry, and he does not consider the fortune the blessing that the Nameless Minard meant it to be.

CLOSED BY STRIKE

BOSTON, May 17.—The shoe factory of the Bartels-Thelen Co. in Chelsea was closed today because of a strike of employees as a protest against the discharge of the foreman of the finishing department. About 150 are idle.

May Cost Girl a Rich Home Children Resent Attack on Chum

NEW YORK, May 17.—The predicament for moving picture shows has brought Emma Frey, thirteen years old, face to face with the decision of her life. Judge Parker, in the Brooklyn Children's court, yesterday gave her until Friday to decide whether she would return to the home of her wealthy foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Milder, of No. 103 Walworth street, or be committed to an institution.

"You are right on the turning point of going to heaven or hell," was the way Judge Parker put it in telling the girl his decision.

"I certainly do enjoy the moving picture shows," said Emma, as she was taken to the home of the Children's society. "I don't see why I haven't the right to earn my own living, my own board and do as I please." Emma Frey is one of the most interesting problems ever brought into the children's court in Brooklyn. Her story was put before Judge Parker yesterday by her foster brother, W. C. Milder, who appeared for her parents.

Eleven years ago the Milders, who are wealthy, took pity on little Emma, who was then two years old. Her father was dead and her mother had other children to support. She was welcomed into the family as if she had been born into it, and has since had every care, luxury and attention.

The girl proved unusually bright in her studies, and last year was graduated from the public schools. Mrs. Milder was ready to send her to a private school to round out her education, but Emma frowned and said she had had enough of books.

She began to show her mania for moving picture shows some months ago. She would remain at home until nearly 8 o'clock and then put on her best gown and bet and saunter to this or that five cent theatre.

Generally she did not get home until 11 o'clock, and her foster parents began to object. She resented this, and a few days ago she began to look for work, telling her friends that as soon as she found a job she would leave away from home. This forced the Milders to have her brought into court.

"We have an automobile and three horses which are at Emma's disposal if she cares to amuse herself with them," said her foster brother yesterday. "Whatever Emma's decision she will leave to her father, and the picture show."

It is she is committed to an institution she obviously can't attend and Judge Parker will make her return to her foster parents coincident with her agreement that she will permit them to arrange her amusements.

CONVICTS MISSING
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 17.—Dr. Burns, state physician of Alabama, returned last night from Lucile, where a fire destroyed a prison stockade. He said "Twenty-seven convicts are missing; there is no doubt they are dead. The three white convicts escaped. The stockade was burned by the ring-leaders who attempted some time ago to burn the place. Two of them were shot down by the guards. It is believed that most of the convicts were sleeping when the fire alarm was turned in and a stampede that followed resulted in the deaths."

STRIKERS ARE QUIET
JIANIBAL, Mo., May 17.—The arrival today of four companies of state militia and a heavy rainfall quieted the striking workmen at the plant of the Atlas Portland Cement Co. at Osbeck, four miles from here, where a riot was threatened yesterday.

NEW YORK, May 17.—Two hundred small boys and girls whose anger was aroused because Tommy Mahoney, one of their playmates, was kicked and beaten, yesterday afternoon hurled sticks and stones at Anthony Smolinsky, a sexton of the Polish church, No. 420 East One Hundred and Fifty-sixth street, through the window of the alleged felonious assault on the last.

With a number of boy friends Tommy was making and remaking a series of miniature mountain ranges in a pile of dirt on a vacant lot adjoining the Polish school, which is situated in the rear of the church.

"Get out of there!" shouted the sexton, who said the land was church property. "Go chase yourself," yelled one of the lads. "We're makin' Pike's Peak now, and don't want to be bothered."

Smolinsky charged upon them, but they scampered to safety, all but Tommy. He was kicked, beaten and left in a critical condition on the sidewalk. Scores of children had gathered when an ambulance arrived from the Lebanon hospital. When their little friend was lifted into the vehicle, the children began to cry for vengeance, and ran toward the church. Just then two policemen came out with Smolinsky. With loud cries the children circled round him, and pelted him with stones, sticks and dirt. Some of the missiles also struck the policemen, who then threw the line of children with their prisoners.

The rioting children followed. The sexton was thoroughly alarmed, and with the policemen soon outdistanced the child-mob. Smolinsky was pale and shivering with fear when taken into the Merriam police station. He is being held until he can be released.

Tommy is eleven years old, and lives with his parents at No. 689 Melrose avenue. He and other children in the neighborhood had for some time used the vacant lot as a playground. Although the sexton is said to have made frequent objections.

VETOED BY GOVERNOR
BOSTON, May 17.—In his second veto message which Gov. Draper sent to the legislature today the bill penalizing members of the state police is returned without approval. The governor believes that such a measure would establish an unwelcome precedent for other state employees.

HEAD BUMPING FATAL
DANVILLE, Ill., May 17.—Philip Saunders, aged 11, died here recently from concussion of the brain, the result of a bumping he received at school two days ago. Saunders and Bud Forbes, of the same age, were watching into the school room when Forbes accidentally bumped his head against that of Saunders.

The boy became unconscious at once and did not regain his senses. Young Forbes is also in a serious condition.

DEATHS
EZZO.—Mrs. Gertrude Ezze, aged 27 years, died yesterday afternoon at her home in East Billerica. Besides her husband, James Ezze, she leaves a mother, Mrs. Emily Riley, and one sister and one brother, Ellen and Edward of North Billerica.

FUNERAL NOTICE
EZZO.—The funeral of Mrs. Gertrude Ezze will take place tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock from her home in East Billerica. Burial will be in the Catholic cemetery, Lowell. C. H. Molloy & Sons in charge.

MORSE PETITION

Signed by Son of President Taft

NEW HAVEN, May 17.—Robert Alphonse Taft, son of the president, has signed the petition for the release of Charles W. Morse from the Federal prison at Atlanta. The petition is addressed to President Taft, and the son therefore is asking his father to free the imprisoned father of Erwin Morse, who is young Taft's classmate at Yale.

Robert Taft placed his signature to the petition along with all the other members of the senior class, and without consulting his father or even telling him about it. Young Morse is very popular with his classmates, and not one refused to sign. The petition was circulated by Edward C. Roberts, of Hartford, son of a former governor of Connecticut, and a close friend of young Morse and Taft, Jr.

Interesting in this connection is the fact that President Taft will be here soon to see his son and young Morse receive his sheppings at the Yale commencement. There is a rumor that young Taft will make a personal appeal to his father at that time in behalf of his friend Morse.

Despatches from Washington tell of a new setback in the Morse battle for freedom. The supreme court yesterday denied the writ of habeas corpus, which the Morse family had secured from the lower courts. The supreme court, however, is expected to grant the writ of habeas corpus. This seems to remove the last hope of a new trial, and unless the president pardons him, Morse must serve out his 15 year sentence.

Mrs. Morse left Washington a few days ago, after getting the signatures of 50 representatives and senators to the petition for her husband's pardon. It is understood the petition has more than 100,000 names. Mrs. Morse has come to Atlanta to consult with her husband.

IS HELD IN $2500

Woman In State of Collapse

MILLVILLE, N. J., May 17.—The police continued digging yesterday in the cellar and around the outside of the principal building on Mrs. Elizabeth Ashmead's alleged "baby farm." Late yesterday parties believed to be charred human bones were found in a hole near the back door. They were placed in the hands of the coroner for microscopic examination.

Every foot of the property used by Mrs. Ashmead will be excavated. Although the revelations so far are not as startling as anticipated, the police are as energetic in the investigation as when it was begun.

Mrs. Ashmead is still in prison, in default of $2,500 bail. She is in a state of hysteria, and declares she is innocent of wrongdoing. She denies the charges made against her by her daughter, Mrs. Grace Ashmead Standford.

A young couple who said they were "Mr. and Mrs. C. T. L. Knowles" of New York, among the six persons arrested on the "farm," were released on bail yesterday. Knowles' brother is said to be a high official of the Du Pont Powder company. The brother arrived here yesterday and furnished the security, giving two $1000 bank notes. The authorities believe the young man is of a wealthy family and will forfeit bail.

Examination of Mrs. Ashmead and witnesses began yesterday, before Mayor Smith. J. Hampton Fithian, prosecutor of Cumberland county, will conduct the inquiry.

Relatives of Mrs. Ashmead are said to have refused their assistance. How land Ashmead is said to be among those who have left her to fight alone.

PROHIBITION QUESTION
DENVER, Colo., May 17.—Important questions are being decided by voters of Denver at the municipal election today, the prohibition problem, and the granting of a twenty year franchise to the Denver Union Water Co. being the principal features.

Three solutions of the prohibition problem are offered the voters. First, the city wide prohibition; second, half license and the restriction of the number of saloons to one for every 700 inhabitants; third, continuance of present conditions—a $500 annual license fee and no restriction on the number of saloons.

CREDIT MEN MEET
NEW ORLEANS, May 17.—More than 1000 delegates from all sections of the country are in attendance on the annual convention of the National Credit Men's association beginning its sessions here today. Recommendations that a fund be raised for the association for the suppression and prosecution of fraud will be one of the most important matters under consideration. F. H. McAdow is president.

FEDERATION OF ARTS
WASHINGTON, May 17.—With an address of welcome by Franklin MacVeagh, the secretary of the treasury, the first annual convention of the American Federation of Arts opened here today for a three day session. This organization, formed here a year ago for the purpose, among others of improving municipal and national art affairs, is a delicate body, numbering in its ninety chapters such organizations as the Museum of Fine Arts and the Metropolitan Improvement League of Boston, the Carillon League of art, Washington, the American Fine Arts society, New York; the Art Institute of Chicago; the University of Pennsylvania, and many other great educational institutions.

A wide range of interesting papers will be read before the convention by persons prominent in the movement for the betterment of civic art.

NEW DIRECTORS CHOSEN
NEW YORK, May 17.—James Deshler and Eliza S. Williams were elected directors of the United States Rubber Co. at the stockholders meeting in New Brunswick today. To succeed Deshler and J. P. Watson, Jr., following the election of the directors there was a protest lodged by six stockholders against the acceptance of President Coll's report as regards the action of the directors in purchasing the stock of the Levee Rubber Co. A successor to J. J. Watson, Jr., as treasurer will be chosen at a meeting of the board on Friday.

MILK

INVESTIGATION

Can be Kept Sweet Three Weeks, The Hearing Was Begun Again Says C. H. Hood

BOSTON, May 17.—"We have not obtained our whole supply of milk from New York and Vermont in the past because we have been slow," declared C. H. Hood, member of a large contracting firm in Boston, in continuing his testimony before the milk investigating committee of the legislature today. "When we are through with this investigation," he added, "we shall put in a lot of work and study to find where we can obtain milk the cheapest."

He said that he was obtaining milk now from a greater distance than ordinarily and getting it cheaper, including the additional transportation, than the price the producers demanded.

Clean milk, according to Mr. Hood, can be kept sweet three weeks or more. His company is now delivering milk sixty hours old when it reaches the consumer. He testified that rather than raise the price of milk last winter his company lost about $40,000 and he did not care to raise the price now because his company would lose many customers. He criticized the railroad transportation facilities, saying that they were not arranged justly or fairly for the contractors and producers.

The New York system of inspecting dairies, he said, was superior to that in vogue in New England and the New York inspectors give the farmers valuable assistance which is not given by the New England men.

Clean milk, according to Mr. Hood,

Can be Kept Sweet Three Weeks, The Hearing Was Begun Again Says C. H. Hood This Morning

NEW YORK, May 17.—Completing the work of filling the jury box was expected to occupy only a short time when the trial of Charles R. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining company, was resumed today in the United States circuit court. Heike, with five others, is charged with conspiracy to cheat the government out of sugar duties by underweighing cargoes. He is the highest officer of the so-called sugar trust to be prosecuted in connection with the sugar underweighing scandals and is specifically charged with endorsing checks drawn by the government for the refund thought to be due the sugar company when the alleged false weights were turned in by the weighers. Heike pleaded immunity but his plea was disallowed by the United States supreme court.

each of the talesmen today by Henry L. Stimson, the special government prosecutor in charge of the sugar cases. Mr. Stimson's query was: "Have you been approached by any one since you were called as a talesman?"

It was supposed that Mr. Stimson's inquiry was because of representations that a prospective juror had stated privately to the court that someone had approached him relative to the proceedings of his duty as a juror since he was summoned as a talesman. None of the jurors, however, has been approached. It was learned that it was James Toole, president of a typographical union who had reported yesterday that he had been approached soon after he was called as a talesman. Toole was excused from service on the Heike trial and instructed to return to court Monday next.

Shortly before noon the jury was completed.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Man Killed Wife and Ended His Own Life

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Frank Fenton, sporting man, yesterday shot and mortally wounded his wife, Virginia, at the threshold of her mother's home in New York avenue, and then turning the revolver on himself, blew out his brains. Mrs. Fenton died in the Emergency hospital. Jealousy prompted the deed.

Fenton was known at race tracks throughout the country, and Mrs. Fenton, who was 23 years old, is best remembered as a member of the presidential colony at Oyster Bay during 1902 and 1903, when as the wife of Secret Service Operator Richard H. Taylor, she was known as "The Belle of Oyster Bay."

Taylor, who divorced her, was one of the secret service men who, in the early years of Roosevelt's administration, was detailed to guard the president. After the divorce, about five years ago, the former Mrs. Taylor married Fenton, who recently had been hard up, financially, as a result of a cleaning out he suffered at Jacksonville.

He returned to Washington within two or three days, and got a room at No. 802 Twelfth street, this city. Mrs.

Fenton was then staying with her mother, Mrs. Philip Riley. It is known that Fenton and his wife had not been getting on well together recently. In fact, there are good reasons for the statement that Mrs. Fenton had broken off finally with her husband and that she was looking forward to a divorce from him in order that she might marry her former husband, who is said never to have lost his love for her. He never forgot her as "the Belle of Oyster Bay."

Fenton, who had borrowed money from a newspaper correspondent last Saturday, appeared again yesterday after a visit to New York and left his friend a few minutes before two o'clock, saying he was going to keep an appointment with his wife. It is rumored that the two met and that Mrs. Fenton told her husband she was through with him. Acquaintances saw them walking in New York avenue about half past two yesterday afternoon and they seemed to be talking excitedly. At two-thirty they reached the house at No. 1120 New York avenue. Mrs. Fenton preceded her husband up the steps. He followed her into the house, and almost immediately the shots were fired.

MEN SERIOUSLY INJURED

WOONSOCKET, R. I., May 17.—A staging in the interior of the new church of the Holy Family, South Main street, fell under the weight of three stucco workers at 11.30 this morning. All were seriously injured in the fall of 20 feet and were taken to the Woonsocket hospital. Donato Dinico, aged 28, of Cambridge, fractured a right rib and was injured internally. Antonio Nutch, aged 31, of Cambridge, Mass., had his left foot fractured. Marshall Davison, aged 24, of New Britain, Conn., foreman and member of a company of contractors, the Bianconi Co. stucco workers of East Cambridge, received a fracture of the right ankle.

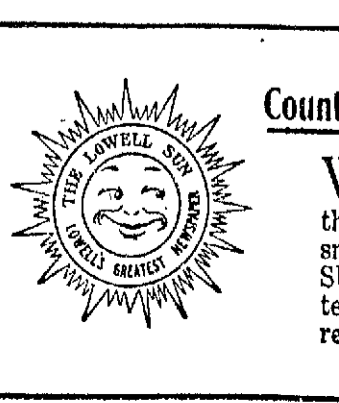

DAMAGES OF ONE CENT

LOUISVILLE, May 17.—After a hard-fought legal battle Ferdinand Rapp, a collector for a clothing house, was awarded a verdict of one cent and costs against J. H. Dunlap, whose bulldog had attacked him. The complaint was that the Dunlaps kept the bulldog for the specific purpose of standing between them and over-insistent creditors.

Rapp made a record dash around the house, with the dog hanging to him, yelling for help in both German and English, and finally sought safety in Mrs. Dunlap's bedroom and was rescued.

The evidence consisted chiefly of a pair of trousers, which resembled a storm flag after a cyclone, and a coat with the left wing gone.

The court held that if Rapp had remained in the yard he would have been well within his rights and entitled to recover more than nominal damages, but when he entered Mrs. Dunlap's bedroom he was technically a trespasser and lost his legal standing.

NEW YORK, May 17.—Leaving no explanation, Mrs. Grace Hartenstein, pretty and young wife of Frederick Hartenstein, superintendent of the Long Island Railroad company, committed suicide last night by swallowing carbolic acid in apartments she was occupying at No. 87 West Thirty-eighth street.

Mrs. Hartenstein, who had been separated from her husband for two weeks, went to the Thirty-eighth street house three weeks ago. She was very reticent, remaining in her room on the second floor of the house most of the time, and passing only the necessary amenities with the landlady, Mrs. Anna O. Hagstedt. Yesterday afternoon when she heard a loud knock, she rushed to the door and found Mrs. Hartenstein on the floor, her lips bluish black and a broken bottle lying under a dresser.

In spite of the first aid applied by Dr. Walstein M. Tompkins, of No. 4 West Thirty-eighth street, Mrs. Hartenstein died soon after. A search of the dead woman's apartments revealed only the broken bottle which had evidently contained two ounces of carbolic acid. On the bottle was labelled "Carbolic Acid. Dr. Henry E. Hale, 2,7-10." No note or other explanation of any kind was visible.

Dr. Henry E. Hale lives at 75 West End avenue. He said over the telephone Sunday night that he had known Mrs. Hartenstein in a professional capacity since November, 1909, but that he could not remember giving her the carbolic acid prescription.

Mrs. Hartenstein lived at 32 West 96th street until two months ago, when she left, saying she was going west," said Dr. Hale. "She lived at the 96th street address with a man who posed as her brother. I treated him once for a broken leg, and I know his name, but I must refuse to give it at this time." Hartenstein resided at the 38th street house some time after his wife had committed suicide, having been summoned by telephone.

"I don't know why she did this," said Hartenstein, a big, smooth shaven man of 40. "Although she was suing me for divorce, I loved her dearly, and would have given up my life for her. We had not been living together for two years, but I have been making her an allowance of $100 a month since we separated."

The Hartensteins were married thirteen years ago in Delmonico's, and Mrs. Hartenstein was 23 years old. Her parents are prominent in Ontario, Canada. With the permission of Coroner

Feinberg, the body will be shipped to Bay City, Mich.

At 325 West 96th street, it was said Sunday night that Mrs. Hartenstein had been living there alone up to two months ago, when she had left, saying she intended leaving the city.

Persons at her home said that Mrs. Hartenstein had recently devoted considerable time to the study of aeroplanes and had made one or two inventions. They mentioned one or two mechanical publications in which her work was to have been featured. The inventions related to aeroplanes they said. The dead woman had no children. Just what led to the separation between Hartenstein and his wife Coroner Feinberg did not seem to know.

A STOLEN BABY

Made Two Trips Across the Ocean

NEW YORK, May 17.—Rudolph Jasper, less than two years old, was restored to his mother's arms in Hoboken yesterday on the arrival of the North German Lloyd steamship Prinz Frederick Wilhelm after he had made a trip all by himself across the ocean and back.

Mrs. August Jasper lived in Grace street, Jersey City Heights. On April 22, she declared yesterday, after a quarrel with her husband, she fled with a younger baby to the home of a neighbor. When she returned a little later she found her husband and her boy Rudolph gone.

For two days she and the police searched for the child and at last learned that he had been put on the steamship Prinz Frederick Wilhelm, in the care of a stewardess. The stewardess was told that the child's grandmother would be awaiting him in Bremen.

The German consul in Hoboken was at once notified and he called to Bremen to have the child returned. Beaming and happy and none the worse for his sea voyage, the little fellow came down the gangplank yesterday in the arms of the stewardess and was smothered in tears and kisses by his mother. A host of her friends were on the pier with her.

ENGAGEMENT OFF

As Result of Appearance in Police Court

Taken From Buckingham Palace to Westminster Hall

Hears From City Solicitor on Minor Licenses

A mixture of whiskey, beer, maudlin Nova making and back-yard sentiment, was what Judge Hadley considered the cause of the flare-up between George Pelletier and Alice St. Onge, which was aired before him in police court this morning.

According to the story told the court George and Alice had one experience on matrimony's sea, but the former is now a widower and the latter a widow and about a year ago they began to keep company and decided that as soon as they secured enough money they would get married.

Matters went along very well for several months when the couple got into the habit of drinking and then the little money which they had saved up for the forthcoming marriage began to diminish. A few months ago the woman's money dwindled away to nothing and George advanced her some, according to his testimony.

A few days ago the couple were in the woman's room and after considerable quarrel had been disposed of the woman said that Pelletier threatened to get rid of her. Pelletier said that he said nothing of the kind. He said that the woman owed him money and when he asked her for it she intimated that she would have to go to work and he said he would fix her if she did not come forward with the money before Saturday night.

Pelletier said that he had no intention of doing the woman any harm and that he thinks her condition was such that she imagined a good deal more than the reality. "I'll tell you one

The court found the defendant guilty and ordered him to furnish $100 bonds to keep the peace for six months.

There were a number of cases which were scheduled to be heard this morning, but owing to the fact that several of the lawyers were engaged in the superior court, some were out of town and other cases were not ready, there was quite a number continued.

William Livesey, charged with being drunk, entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to four months in jail. Arthur Hawke pleaded guilty to a complaint of drunkenness and was sentenced to three months at the same institution.

Jeremiah Linnehan, who was on parole from the state farm, will be returned to Bridgewater. William E. Brady, another parole man, will be returned.

Eight first offenders were fined $2 each and eight simple drunks were released.

William L. Hamblett was fined $6.

Larceny of $10

Hector Penel was arraigned before Judge Hadley this morning on a complaint charging him with drunkenness and the larceny of 50 cents from Della Duppron. He entered pleas of guilty to both complaints and was fined $10 for the larceny and the cage of drunkenness was placed on file.

LONDON, May 17.—The body of King Edward was taken with stately pomp from Buckingham palace this morning on the first stage of the journey to the grave and now lies in state in Westminster hall, where hundreds of thousands will pay a last tribute to the dead monarch before the final progress through the streets of the capital on Friday.

The procession from Buckingham palace to Westminster hall passed through double lines of red coated soldiers flanked by rows of stalwart policemen and a mass of silent, black garbed humbly.

The buildings along the route were heavily draped with mourning. The embassies in Carlton house terrace and purple, relieved occasionally by green wreaths and bouquets of white lilies.

Minute Guns Fired
The first intimation that the crowd, which had been waiting for hours, had of the approach of the funeral cortege was the booming of the first of sixty-eight minute guns which were fired at St. James park, followed by the tolling of Big Ben, the great clock in the tower of the house of commons, which were heard only as it struck the hour, and the roll of muffled drums.

Then a guardman with sword reversed came down the Mall at measured tread, two other guardmen following close behind. Then came the officers of the headquarters staff, the army council and the board of admiralty. As these appeared the troops came to a half salute with reversed guns and remained thus until Field Marshals Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener of Khartoum, the admirals of the fleet, the Indian order officers in black uniforms and the aides-de-camp of the late king passed.

As the gun carriages on which the casket was borne approached, the order "To rest on your arms!" was given sharply. With heads bowed the soldiers kept their eyes on the ground. While the body of their late king passed by, they bowed their heads again for the royal standard which was borne immediately behind the casket and in front of King George, who, like the officers and other members of the royalty, was at foot.

The King's Sons

The Duke of Cornwall and Prince Albert, two little figures in the navy uniforms of naval cadets, followed their father, King Frederick of Denmark and King Haakon with the Duke of Gloucester. Behind them came next and then followed the other members of the British and foreign royal families in gorgeous uniforms, the only touch of mourning being the black bands on the sleeves of their coats. An array of officers of the late king's household, nearly all of them in bright uniforms, but a few of them in mourning dress, followed.

The greatest interest of the crowd was aroused at the approach of the first carriage, for in this rode the queen mother, Alexandra, to whom the hearts of all Britishers have gone out during the past week. Her Majesty, wearing the deepest mourning, had lifted her veil and the people reverently raised their hats to the pathetic figure who, even in the hour of her great grief, acknowledged the silent testimony of sympathy by bowing respectfully. The queen mother was accompanied by her sister, the Dowager Empress Marie of Russia, and her daughters, Princess Royal and Princess Victoria. Queen Mary occupied the second state carriage, having for the occasion surrendered the first place to her mother-in-law, who was entitled, by her Majesty's request, by the sovereign's escort, the only non-royal troops participating with the exception of a few stationed at points along the route. Queen Mary was accompanied by her daughter, Princess Mary and Prince Henry.

Seven other state carriages, drawn by caparisoned horses, carried the ladies of the royal families and the suites of the queen mother and the queen.

Arrived at the palace yard of Westminster where a dense throng had gathered the gun carriage stopped, the palaces were removed and the bearer company moved on. The gun carriage lifted the casket and carried it into the hall. The dominating characteristic of the procession was the impressive simplicity. There were 3000 troops afoot and mounted and 12,000 sailors along the route but in the procession itself the largest body of uniformed men was the massed bands of the guards regiment numbering 250 under Lieut. Morgan, the senior bandmaster of the British army which played funeral marches. Upon leaving Buckingham palace a corps of sixty drums played a special introduction. The conclusion of which the massed bands took up "Beethoven's funeral march." The most striking feature of the music was provided by a body of forty pipers who struck up "Flowers of the forest" as the procession passed Marlborough, the music bringing tears to the eyes of many in the great crowd. During the horseguards' parade the band played "Chopin's march funeral" and as the procession approached Westminster hall the strains of Haendel's "Dead March from Saul" were heard.

It was a gloomy morning, clouds hiding the sun in striking contrast with the brightness of the past few days. The spectacle at Westminster hall during the brief services when the casket was deposited there was a solemn and moving picture of deep contrast.

Upon the royal ensign at the head of the casket were placed the jewel crown, the orb and sceptre. King George stood at the foot of the casket with the queen mother, Queen Mary and the young princes. Behind them were the members of royalty who had followed the body and a group of twenty royal ladies in deep black with long veils, without a touch of color, relieving their sombre garb.

Around this body were stationed the officers of the court, the early marshal, black rod, silver stick and others in their brilliant uniforms. In long rows on either side and extending nearly the length of the hall were massed the peers of the realm, members of the house of commons, more than 400 from each chamber. All of these who included many of England's foremost statesmen, were in informal black dress. The others who made up the great assemblage that filled the hall formed a shining fence of color in which gold and scarlet predominated.

Surprised Choir

The choir, surprised in white and crimson, occupied an elevation at the south end of the hall and the vestal staid women, step lower were stationed the red-coated bandmen. The heralds and their pursuivants occupied a still lower position but well above the floor and grouped at the foot of the elevation were a hundred of the greatest nobles and admirals of the empire. In the center Lord Kitchener, tall and dark, towered over Lord Roberts, who is short and gray. Nearby was seen the grim face of Lord Fisher, one time senior naval lord of the admiralty.

At the opposite end of the hall was a great congregation of courtiers and officers, picked men, the finest appearing in England and wearing a dazzling variety of uniforms and decorations.

The Archbishop's Prayer

The service occupied only half an hour. The archbishop of Canterbury, standing at the head of the casket recited the Lord's prayer, which was repeated by the whole congregation. The archbishop then read the twenty-third psalm and the dean of Westminster read the scriptural lesson from St. John, the fifth chapter, 24th and 25th verses. At the conclusion of the reading the choir chanted a brief anthem and the archbishop offered prayer.

He said: "Lord, our heavenly Father, by Whom kings, rulers and princes receive justice, we remember before Thee our late sovereign lord King Edward in thankfulness for the blessings Thou hast bestowed upon us through his reign, for the wisdom of his rule and the faithfulness with which he served the people committed to his charge; for his continual effort to further and maintain peace among the nations and for his watchful care of the sick and the poor."

Addressing the congregation the archbishop said that there was reason for thanksgiving for the peace and prosperity of the empire since a ruler who was devoted to his people. He charged his hearers to consider well the lesson that death teaches.

As the archbishop concluded the trumpets and drums sounded and the choir sang, "Oh God Our Help in Ages Past," an antiphonal chanting ceased after the third stanza. The organ played the last. As the music died away the archbishop pronounced the benediction.

After the benediction the queen mother, Alexandra, who had been seated in a purple covered chair while the other ladies stood, stepped forward and knelt beside the casket. With hands clasped, she remained for a moment in silent prayer. Rising, she beckoned her son to escort her and moved slowly down the aisle, bowing slightly as she passed the guards of honor. Queen Mary followed, also bowing and the two preceded the others of the group of royalties from the hall.

Westminster hall, the most spacious cathedral-like structure in the kingdom, with its vastness and simplicity of design, seemed to lend to the occasion a solemnity and grandeur. The hall was filled with a mass of embossed tapestries. Four tall bronze pedestals, each bearing four candles, stood at the corners of the catafalque, on either side of which was a wreath of laurel the tribute from the house of lords and the house of commons respectively.

The south end of the hall to the northern doorway a broad aisle was kept open and through this the clergy with the cross borne before advanced and met the funeral cortege upon its arrival from Buckingham palace. The heralds and pursuivants preceded the casket, which was carried on the shoulders of non-commissioned officers to its resting place on the catafalque. King George followed with his mother on his right and the Dowager Empress Marie, his aunt, on his left. The entrance was made amid a profound hush broken only by the roll of the drums outside and the tolling of the bell in the tower above.

ROOSEVELT DID NOT PARTICIPATE IN CEREMONY

LONDON, May 17.—Mr. Roosevelt, special American ambassador to the funeral of King Edward, did not participate today in the ceremony attending the removal of the body from Buckingham palace to Westminster hall. Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Roosevelt, Kermit, American Ambassador, and Mrs. Reid witnessed the procession from a house in Carlton house terrace, but Mr. Roosevelt spent the morning answering his accumulated correspondence.

WOMAN'S SOBS Moved Several Jurymen to Tears

BOSTON, May 17.—Weeping as she sat at the witness stand in the superior civil court at East Cambridge yesterday afternoon before Judge Pierce, Mrs. Emma Frances Heath of Malden told how her husband's affections were lost to her, in her $50,000 suit for alienation of affection against Mrs. Sarah Merriam, owner of the Hotel Evelyn, Malden.

She was telling of how her husband, Nathaniel H. Heath, manager of the hotel for Mrs. Merriam, came to her in 1908 and told her that he did not love her when she broke down entirely and throwing herself forward, buried her head in her arms on the witness stand, allowing the sobs to completely control her. Nor was she alone, for several of the jury softly wept. Judge Pierce turned his head away, while men and women spectators let the tears trickle down their cheeks unnoticed.

At last she resumed her story, and in a trembling voice told of the conversation with the husband, who in the little parlor, said that he did not love her, that she and her son, Willie must look out for themselves.

She told of her husband selling the Hotel Evelyn to Mrs. Merriam, of his going to live there as manager and leaving her alone in their home on Washington street, Malden. She told of her asking him to return home nights, and of his saying that he would soon return home, and of his growing intimacy with Mrs. Merriam. How on one night in November, 1905, while he was sick at home with the grip, Mrs. Merriam had called on him and he had kissed him, of her call by Mrs. Merriam on Christmas day, when Mrs. Merriam brought the family gifts and in leaving again kissed the husband.

During the years that followed she said that Mrs. Merriam had kept up the intimacy, and that the husband never came home except sometimes during afternoons. She related of finding Mrs. Merriam in the hotel with her husband, and of asking her if she loved Mr. Heath, and of the Merriam woman saying that she did.

The afternoon session closed with Attorney Walter J. Rogers for Mrs. Merriam, cross questioning Mrs. Heath, while Mrs. Merriam sat near, unable to hear anything that was going on for she is deaf.

AFTER 3 YEARS Alleged Smuggler Has Been Caught

HOULTON, Me., May 17.—After patiently waiting three years and watching all night several times for Louis Brissette, who was wanted for the alleged smuggling of liquor and sale of forged substantial size, holding stock in the Lowell Trust company and the federal officials were successful yesterday in capturing their man without a struggle.

On July 3, 1907, a "lino store," kept by Brissette on the boundary line between Maine and New Brunswick near Limestone was raided by the United States officials and torn down as a nuisance.

Brissette escaped to the Canadian side and since has been running a small hotel just across the border and a sawmill on the American side.

Learning that he was near the sawmill Sunday, Deputy United States Marshal Ferdinand E. Stevens of Portland and Deputy Customs Collector George Thayer of Limestone laid in wait for him all night and early yesterday caught him unawares.

PERSONALS

Dr. Samuel Patenaude and Miller Bellefontaine have returned from a very delightful African and European tour. They visited the Azores, the Madeira islands, Gibraltar and cruised up the Mediterranean to Algeria, Africa. They next toured Italy, visiting Rome, Florence, Venice, Milan, Naples and Pompeii. From Italy they went to Switzerland and visited Zurich, Bern and Geneva, finally winding up with a week in Paris.

Mrs. D. L. Page gave a birthday party yesterday afternoon at her home in Rogers street for Millicent, Beat and the 12th birthday of the young lady was made a day to be remembered. The occasion was a very pretty and a very pleasing one.

CAPTAIN MIDDLE AGED MAN wanted to take a good morning and evening and mind them in the "nature" Inquire 529 Manuotti road, Draught.

Office of City Solicitor, Lowell, Mass., May 16, 1910.
Board of Police, Lowell, Mass.
Gentlemen: I have your request for an opinion as to whether a common victualler's license and a billiard and pool license may be granted on the same premises, where these premises consist of only one room. After some consideration, I find one obstacle in the way of your issuing such licenses under the conditions indicated. The acts of 1908, chapter 368, provide that minors shall not be admitted to billiard and pool rooms without the written consent of their parents or guardians. Revised laws, chapter 102, section 5, provide that common victuallers shall at all times be prepared to furnish suitable food for strangers and travelers.

Now in complying with the law in the one case, a licensee might be guilty of a breach of the law in the other. This being so, I am of the opinion that under such conditions the board would not be justified in granting the two licenses.
Respectfully submitted,
Wm. W. Duncan,
City Solicitor.

SECRETARY KNOX TO ACT

WASHINGTON, May 17.—There is reason to believe that Secretary Knox contemplates taking some immediate action, having for its object the re-establishment of peaceful relations between Peru and Ecuador. The state department officials, however, decline to discuss the matter at this time.

NEW HAVEN BILL REPORTED

BOSTON, May 17.—A bill permitting the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R. Co. to purchase a controlling interest in the Berkshire Street Railway Co. now controlled by the New England Investment and Securities Co. which is also dominated by the New Haven Co. was favorably reported today by the legislative committee on railroads and street railroads. The Berkshire Co. which owns practically all the street railroad lines west of the Connecticut river in Massachusetts was acquired by the New Haven Co. several years ago but the latter company was forced to relinquish the former because of an adverse decision of the supreme court. The present legislation has been pending before the general court for three years, and if the bill becomes a law it will enable the New Haven road to operate the trolley line directly instead of indirectly as is now the case.

Rep. R. M. Washburn of Worcester, house chairman of the committee on railroads, objects to the bill and will lead the fight against it. Five other members of the committee reserve the right to dissent from the report.

RAILWAY CO. SEEKS INJUNCTION

COLUMBUS, O., May 17.—The Hooking Valley Railway Co. today filed suit in the United States circuit court here asking for an injunction against the receivers of the railroad who were appointed yesterday by Common Pleas Judge Kincaid restraining the receivers from any action until the question of jurisdiction be settled. The bill makes H. J. Booth and James Sheets the receivers, and Howard Mannington, R. E. Westfall, R. H. Schoedinger, stockholders, the respondents. A temporary order is asked, pending the decision of Judge Sater in the matter.

AFTER 40 YEARS REPUBLICAN WHIP IN DANGER

BINGHAMTON, May 17.—Announcement was made yesterday that District Attorney James H. Hill will be supported by republicans of Chenango county for the congressional nomination in the 30th district, in opposition to John W. Dwight, republican whip of the house, this fall. Mr. Hill has for several years been a National bank director, and it is urged that he would be valuable in congress on account of currency reforms legislation. There is some dissatisfaction in the district on account of Cannonism and also with Dwight's selection of Ben Conger as state senator from the 41st district.

AFTER 40 YEARS Mrs. Cummings Asks for Separate Support

There was a decidedly pathetic feature to the case of Mary Ellen Cummings against Patrick Cummings for separate maintenance. The defendant has been an employee of the city for many years and by thrift and industry amassed a competence of substantial size, holding stock in the Lowell Trust company and the Harvard brewery. The couple have been married 40 years and lived happily together up to within about two years ago. At that time Mr. Cummings suffered a shock that left him partially paralyzed and effected his speech so that he finds words to express himself only with greatest difficulty. He remained at St. John's hospital for some time and then his wife had him removed to Dr. Finn's sanatorium in Draught. Mr. Cummings refused to remain there and left, taking up lodgings in the boarding house of a friend. Since then he has been looked after and his business affairs conducted by Undertaker M. H. McDonough, in whom all parties in the case have implicit confidence. Since leaving the sanatorium Mr. Cummings has not contributed to his wife's support and hence the case before Judge McIntire. Mr. Cummings was the only witness presented and his appearance and infirmity excited the sympathy of the court.

Lawyer J. Joseph O'Connor, who appeared for him, suggested that the case was one that called for the appointment of a conservator and the court agreed to the proposition. "You don't want your wife to go hungry," you will contribute to her support, won't you, Mr. Cummings?" asked Lawyer O'Connor.

With much difficulty Mr. Cummings replied, "God knows, I wouldn't let a dog go hungry."

The court then suspended the case, and Lawyer O'Connor will petition the court for the appointment of Mr. McDonough as conservator.

AS TO DANGEROUS SIDEWALKS.

The proposition of Alderman Adams to have police officers report all sidewalks that are in bad condition is a good one. It will remove one great cause of accidents and also a cause of damage suits against the city with or without accidents. It is right that the parties responsible for dangerous sidewalks, whether the shunters or the city should be notified to put the same in safe condition for public travel. The same rule might apply to some streets such for example as East Merrimack street where the subterranean excavations left unfilled are liable to cave in at any time.

HANDWRITING IN SCHOOLS DEMORALIZED.

The schools of Lowell need a special writing master more at the present time than ever before. When the late Mr. Graves was the special instructor the handwriting was good in all the schools. After his time, new-fangled ideas were introduced and finally that travesty upon practical handwriting the "vertical" was installed. The officials who imposed that system upon a helpless public have a great deal to answer for. The "vertical" ran its course—or until the business people got a practical demonstration of its absurdity. Then it was thrown out and the Spencerian system or something like it restored. But the pupils found it difficult to change from the clumsy, slow and awkward style in which they had been drilled. The result is the handwriting of the schools has been demoralized and will remain so for a considerable time unless a special instructor be employed.

The school board should look around for an expert who has had a year's experience in Frogtown or anywhere else outside Lowell.

THE REPORT DISCREDITED.

Gradually the report of the legislative commission upon the high cost of living is being discredited. The verdict acquitting the tariff and the trusts for all responsibility for the high prices was too palpably absurd to be believed by intelligent people. The committee laid the blame upon the increase of the gold production in this country, but this is a cause that should operate universally in all countries and to a greater extent in some other countries where the increase in the production of gold has been even greater than in this. The report is largely made up of the statements and theories put forward by republican leaders and in all probability for campaign purposes. The fact that Senator Lodge utilized a portion of the report for a public document evidently for its political effect goes to prove that the report may have been framed up for this purpose, although there are some honest men on the commission whom it is difficult to believe guilty of any such business.

A BREACH OF CONFIDENCE.

Whether the confessions of Stenographer Kerby as to the evolution of the president's letter in the Ballinger case be true or false, one thing is certain, that Kerby has betrayed office secrets in a way that proves him unworthy of trust in any confidential capacity.

When a stenographer is admitted to a private office as confidential clerk or amanuensis, he is bound by all the laws of honor and common decency not to divulge the secret business of his office even if he happens to lose his position. Kerby is guilty of a piece of treachery, and this talk about a "troubled conscience" is all tommyrot. If he has a conscience it should have conjured him to silence even if he thought a wrong had been done. He forgets that in virtue of his position he was bound to secrecy.

Between his statement and that of the president, where they contradict each other, the public will not believe Kerby. The statement of the president in regard to the preparation of the letter exonerating Ballinger is quite reasonable and shows that Kerby's statement amounts to nothing.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL MOVEMENT REVERSED.

There is one thing at variance with the movement for the city beautiful that seems to have escaped the notice of those who have been advocating improvements in this line. We refer to the building of mills of from four to ten or twelve stories in height, fronting on some of the principal streets of our city. Part of Middlesex street has been seriously injured by having the end of a big mill store house come out to the sidewalk. A new mill is being built on East Merrimack street close to the edge of the street, and another is to be erected with one side fronting on Bridge street. Already the two mills stand opposite each other on Bridge street along the sidewalks. That is bad enough, but we are going to have more of it, and there is no telling how far this abuse is to be carried unless the city government steps in and insists that in all such cases either sufficient land shall be left fronting on the streets for the erection of stores or else that the mill building shall have an ornamental front that will offer some compensation for the extent of dead wall thus exhibited on some of our principal thoroughfares.

The city can seize land for park purposes, it can prevent the erection of buildings that are injurious, and unless we are greatly mistaken it could also prevent the erection of mill buildings out to the street front thus shutting off a large portion of the street for ordinary business purposes. These buildings injure any street in which they are located, and it is a very serious mistake that they are to be brought out fronting on East Merrimack street near the square and also on Bridge street.

There should be some committee of the city council to give its attention to such matters in order to protect our best streets from being forever despoiled in appearance. There has been a movement for the removal of the large billboards, but not all the billboards in the city would injure a street so much as one of these big mill gables fronting on the sidewalk. We simply call this matter to the attention of the city authorities in hopes that it shall not go on indefinitely. It is the city beautiful idea reversed.

SEEN AND HEARD

It was inadvertently stated in The Sun of May 12, that C. T. Pilotte of Kenwood would be the valedictorian at the high school graduation exercises. It is C. T. Pilotte of Pawtucketville who is slated for valedictorian honors. The name was right, but place of residence was wrong.

"I have always heard," remarked a visiting Englishwoman, "that tipping was not as common in America as with us; but when I find Americans tipping their own maids to button up their backs I have my doubts."

There isn't one chance in a thousand that the owner of this monkey and this hand organ wrote the sign that is attached to the monkey's back, but it is effective just the same.

"No feed da monk. Giva him da ft."

And nobody does feed him, for certainly nobody wants to see a monkey throw a ft.

The old adage that one-half of the world knows not how the other half lives applies in a measure to the fact that there were sold by auction in New York city last week between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 worth of carpets and rugs, the product of a big carpet mill at Yonkers, N. Y. The sale was conducted on the upper floor of one of the big buildings along Fifth avenue in the wholesale district, and continued from Monday morning, when it opened, until Saturday evening at 7.30. It was attended by buyers from all over the country, who spent the entire day in the auction room, taking only a brief respite at noon time for luncheon. The luncheon was provided at the saleroom, so that the buyers did not have to leave the building, and consisted of a supply daily of 5000 sandwiches, thirty gallons of coffee, twenty gallons of consommé, and 500 bottles of beer. On Friday fish was served to those who do not eat meat.

In something of a predicament this gray haired man found himself in a street car when a polite young man got up and offered him his seat. In the first place the old man would have preferred that the young man should not have done it, for the act indicated that to the young man the old man looked old, whereas the old man feels young, and sprightly and likes to fancy that he looks so.

But he thanked the young man for the seat thus kindly offered to him, adding to his thanks an apologetic smile for what he was about to do, and then the old man turned and offered that seat which had just been vacated for him to a woman who stood beside him, and she took it.

So the polite young man's plans had miscarried slightly, and really the situation was a little confusing. Presumably the young man retired to the end of the car and the old man remained standing as before.

The following very curious set of rules, which governed mill life in Manchester, N. H. in 1847, is clipped from the Manchester Union:

The Overseers are to be punctually in their rooms at the starting of the mill, and not be absent unnecessarily, during working hours. They are to see that all those employed in their rooms are in their places in due season, and keep a correct account of their time away from the mill, may grant leave of absence to those employed under them, when there are spare hands in the room, to supply their places; otherwise they are not to grant leave of absence except in cases of absolute necessity. All persons employed in the Manchester Mills and the Merrimack Mills are required to observe the regulations of the room where they are employed. They are not to be absent from their work without consent, except in case of sickness, and then they are to send cause of their absence.

They are to board in one of the boarding houses belonging to one of said corporations, unless permitted by the Agent, to do otherwise, and conform to the regulations of the house where they board.

Neither of said corporations will employ any person who is habitually absent from public worship on the Sabbath, or who uses profane or indecent language in the Mills or elsewhere, or who uses ardent spirits as a beverage.

All persons entering into the employment of either of said corporations agree to work twelve months; and to consider the usual Mill hours, as hereinafter, a day's work.

All persons intending to leave the employment of either of said corporations are to give two weeks' notice of their intention to their overseer; and their engagement with such corporation is not considered fulfilled unless they comply with this regulation, in which case the person will receive an honorable discharge signed by the Agent, if requested.

Payments will be made monthly, including board and wages, which will be made up to and including the last Friday of each month, and paid in the course of the following week.

Anyone who shall take from the Mills or the Yard any yarn, cloth, or other property belonging to either corporation will be prosecuted for every such offence.

These regulations are considered a part of the contract with all persons employed in the Manchester Mills and the Merrimack Mills.

HENPECKED HUSBAND

I
You are afraid to say that white is white,
If she contends that it is black or blue;
You eat none but the things she tells you to,
Professing that they give you keen delight;
You're always in the wrong, she is the right;
The clothes you wear are old, her clothes are new;
She makes a list of things that you may do,
You never dare to stay downtown at night.

Why is it that you hurry to obey
When she gives orders to do thus or so?
Are you afraid that she may turn away
And leave you languishing in lonely woe?
Is love the thing that prompts you day by day
To hasten when she bids you come or go?

II
You dare not join a club; you fear to buy
A necktie, save the one she recommends;
She forms your habits and selects your friends,
Without her leave you never bat an eye;
You try those things alone she bids you try,
Your every moment on her leave depends,
And when her anger on your head descends
You tremble like a man about to die.

Oh, is it love? For if it is, how sweet
Must be the fate of him that thus is bound!
How glorious to grovel at her feet
To deem her harsh command a lovely sound—
But probably her sway is so complete
Because of some fool letter she has found.

NEGROES READY

Are Well Stocked With
Comet Pills

NEW YORK, May 17.—Whatever Italy's comet may do or not do to this earth, the negroes of Port Au Prince, Haiti, are prepared because they are well packed with comet pills. Comet pills are new to the pharmacopeia. Word of their appearance arrived here from Port Au Prince yesterday. Her officers said yesterday that all the negro stevedores there, all the farmers round about, the servants, laborers, merchants, beggars and thieves are rushing pell mell to the hut of a shrewd Vodoo doctor just outside the city, who is selling comet pills faster than he can make them.

The prescription is one pill for every hour up to the time the comet begins to recede from the earth, but many of the patients make doubly sure by taking one pill every half hour. The comet doctor guards his formula closely and is growing rich fast.

55 YEARS A PRIEST

REV. CHARLES O'REILLY PASSED AWAY AT RUTLAND

RUTLAND, Vt., May 17.—Rev. Chas. O'Reilly, a retired clergyman, died suddenly at his home in West Rutland at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, at the age of 55 years. He had a career of almost half a century in the Catholic church and was well known among the priests of Vermont. Bishop Joseph J. Rice of Burlington will celebrate solemn pontifical mass of requiem for him at St. Bridget's church Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Fr. O'Reilly was born in County Cavan, Ire. He was ordained at All Hallows college, Dublin, June 29, 1855, and came to this country shortly after. Fr. O'Reilly first served the church as a missionary, being assigned for 14 years to the territory between Hallow's Falls and Brattleboro, Vt. He built St. Michael's church at Brattleboro and also built a mission at Proctorsville.

In 1869 he was transferred to West Rutland as pastor of St. Bridget's church, where he was stationed until 12 years ago, when he retired on account of ill health.

He was about the house Sunday but when his niece, Miss Mary Lyons, went to call him yesterday morning she found him unconscious and he died shortly afterward. He is survived by no relatives nearer than cousins. These are Very Rev. James McEnroe, Rev. John McEnroe, and Rev. Bernard O'Reilly of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a grandniece, Sister Oswald of Marlboro, Mass.

Bargains

We bought the entire Bankrupt Stock of The J. Brest Co., (Incorporated for $40,000) of Brockton, Mass., Furniture Dealers, for $8000 less than the goods cost.

Of course we can sell them for a good deal less than any dealer who paid full price for the same goods. And still make our profit.

If you are going to buy any FURNITURE, CARPETINGS, ART SQUARES, RANGES, GO-CARTS, ETC., this spring, you are extremely careless of your own interest if you don't buy here and now.

For you will certainly pay a Great Deal More elsewhere—They must charge you more or lose money—There is no doubt about it.

If a dealer pays $10 for an article he can't sell it for $10. He must add a percentage of profit on that article to pay store rent, help hire, feed of horses, cost of light, taxes, insurance, etc., etc.

We can sell the same article for less than $10 and make a profit. For the $8000 we saved on the first cost will cover all these expenses and leave us a good profit. In other words we made our profit out of what the creditors lost. We haven't got to make a profit out of you. And for a slight advance of five cents on each dollar's worth we will sell you the same goods by paying part cash and give you liberal terms on balance. You may buy Furniture elsewhere if you wish but we can't see why you should, when you can certainly save money by buying here.

THE TAFT LETTER

Printed as Part of the Ballinger-Pinchot Record

WASHINGTON, May 17.—President Taft's explanation of the circumstances under which his letter exonerating Sec. Ballinger from the Glavis charges and dismissing L. R. Glavis was prepared and presented to Chairman Nelson of the investigating committee, was resumed here today. It was printed as a part of the record of the committee. Attorney Brandeis, counsel for Glavis, has laid great emphasis upon the president's letter of exoneration and dismissal, contending that the memorandum upon which it was based was prepared in Sec. Ballinger's department by Asst. Atty. Gen. Lawler. The president in a letter which he addressed to Senator Nelson last Sunday says he had the Lawler memorandum before him when he prepared his communication, but he also had notes and memoranda given him by the attorney general who had agreed with the president in the conclusion he had reached in the matter.

While Commissioner Dennett of the general land office was under cross examination last Saturday Mr. Brandeis indicated that he intended to raise the question why the Lawler memorandum had not been furnished together with the other papers bearing on the case which the president had sent to the committee. A carbon copy of the Lawler memorandum was furnished the committee by Atty. Gen. Wickersham coincident with the publication of the statement of Frederick Kerby, then a stenographer in Mr. Ballinger's office, that he had assisted Mr. Lawler in preparing the document and that it was similar in many respects to the president's letter. Mr. Wickersham sent an explanatory letter to the effect that the document had been overlooked in previous searches of the department files. It is expected that Mr. Brandeis will endeavor to locate the original memorandum.

Mr. Dennett was put under cross examination when the public hearing of the committee was resumed.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

There's one motion picture at the Opera House, for the first three days of this week, which will please exceedingly any lover of color and whirlwind like motion. It isn't a colored film in any sense, but the local touches, the "atmosphere" which goes with a country and its people is there every second of it. The name of the picture is "The Two Brothers" and the scene is southern California. There's a story to it, but that's commonplace and the least of the whole.

Altogether some 75 or 100 persons assist in making it, and two-thirds of these are expert riders, not mere actor riders, but real grasser horsemen. And one scene is especially thrilling. The chase of a wedding party in a coach over miles of territory, and the final rounding up of the bridal party, soldiers and all, by the bandits is shown. It's as thrilling as reel as has been turned out in months. One little incident in it is exceedingly thrilling, and that is the shooting from his horse in full motion of one of the bandits. There isn't the man in a thousand who would have the nerve to toss himself out of a saddle and onto a hard road as that particular man did it.

There's vaudeville to this bill, also, but the foregoing picture was so remarkable that for once the human beings are playing secondary to the fascinations. "Easto Brothers," a couple of head balancers, astonish with really remarkable work. Their closing consists of playing a very poet mandolin and guitar duet, while one balances the other on his head, their heads being together. Mario Camilla, a winsome young lady, is pleasing to the limit, in her two songs and violin numbers, and the Durands prove exceedingly entertaining with their comedy singing and dancing. Their act winds up with a duce on roller skates. Eva Medora gives the illustrated songs in good style.

Of the remaining pictures, one entitled "Cleopatra" rank with the best art works ever turned out by Pathe Freres. The life of the beautiful, cruel Egyptian queen and enchantress is shown, especially in her love affair with Marc Antony. The death of the two is graphically pictured. The rich coloring of the entire picture will bring much admiration for it. The comedy reels are "A Quiet Boarding House" and "He Stopped His Toe." They guarantee laughter.

Tonight the amateurs will disport again, and there will undoubtedly be a record breaking audience.

STAR THEATRE

Large crowds witnessed the Nelson-Wolfgang fight pictures at the Star theatre throughout Monday and this afternoon. This reproduction of the fiercest fight in ring history excels in photography and every movement made by the fighters is plainly visible. It will be remembered that the fight lasted until 6.30 in the evening and in view of this fact, the pictures are remarkably clear. A lecture explains everything, starting with the fighters in their training quarters and leading up to the crowds going into the arena, and then the fight starts. The pictures will be shown at the theatre tonight and Wednesday afternoon and evening.

THEATRE VOYONS

One of the features of today's show at the Theatre Voyons is Pathe's great production of Cleopatra, which is a genuine success in every way. The staging and acting is far above the ordinary and the story is well told. "Roosevelt in Cairo" shows the ex-president in many different aspects as his stay in Cairo was one constant succession of receptions, visits and sight-seeing trips. The most interesting of the pictures shows Roosevelt and his wife on camels on their way to visit the pyramids. A touching dramatic subject and a real comedy adds variety to the bill. The musical features are exceptionally good.

EMPIRE THEATRE

The program now running at the Empire is calculated to amuse and entertain all lovers of the clean and bright in vaudeville. The Arizona Trio are of the best, and the acrobatic feats are beyond criticism while the contortions and the balancing work of Mrs. Arizona were greeted with rounds of hearty applause at every appearance. Tom Eastman as the "Dancing Sailor" sings very pleasingly in his Skip Rope Dancing he is the envy of all the young ladies who have seen him. The picture program is of the best and Charles A. Rogers is a decided hit in his song "Curly Head."

"JIM" JEFFRIES Is In Trouble With Boils Once More

BEN LOMOND, Cal., May 17.—Jim Jeffries' recurrent skin trouble is worrying both himself and his trainers and it is regarded as likely that the new breaking out may interfere to some extent with his training grind.

The present boils of the retired champion are located on his upper left arm and between his shoulder blades. They are an irritating affliction and become painful if hard exercise is indulged in. But the experience the trainers had in treating the old boil on the fighter's back leads them to believe that they will be able to cope successfully with the fresh trouble without causing much delay in his general work. When told last night of the selection of Rickard to referee the fight he expressed satisfaction over the choice made. He does not seem to be perturbed over the rumored trouble regarding the place for holding the coming battle.

MATCH CALLED OFF

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 17.—The proposed match between Fred Goetz, bantam champion, and Owen Moran was last night declared off. "Condy" insisted upon Moran making 125 pounds ring-side instead of 126 at six o'clock. The fighters could not agree.

MAY CHANGE FIGHT SCENE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—Among the disquieting rumors current today in quarters concerned with the Jeffries-Johnson championship boxing match is one that Thomas Williams, president of the California Jockey club who controls the Emeryville racetrack where it has been planned to build a mammoth arena for the coming battle, has withdrawn his support from the enterprise and has informed Promoter Rickard that he must find some other place in which to bring the fighters together. Williams refused today either to confirm or deny, saying that he did not care to discuss the matter at all.

Another report has it that Rickard and Gleason are negotiating with the people at Richmond, who provided a meeting place for the recent fight between Ad Wolgast and Battling Nelson when the lightweights were barred from other trans-Pacific bay towns. The probability of an enforced change of location for the holding of the contest has turned speculation to San Francisco itself and many profess belief the promoters have turned their attention to this city. It is pointed out that two excellent locations for staging the big mail are to be had within the limits of San Francisco where no hostility from the city officials would be encountered.

TESTING THE COURSES

ROCKLAND, Me., May 17.—The tests to determine the relative value as courses for the official acceptance trials of vessels for the United States navy off the Rockland, Provincetown and Delaware breakwater mile courses were begun today in the presence of the government trial boards. Three ships will be standardized on each course for the purpose of determining what effect different depths of water have on speed, the ships selected for the tests being the best in the navy. They are the big battleship Michigan, which was built at Camden, N. J., and the torpedo boat destroyers, Reid and Plummer, constructed at Bath. The destroyer Reid began the tests today.

TAIL OF COMET Now Extends Beyond Orbit of the Earth

TAUNTON, May 17.—The tail of Halley's comet now extends considerably beyond the earth's orbit and the earth will certainly pass through the luminous train of the sky wanderer tomorrow night. This is the conclusion of Rev. Joel Hastings Metcalf, a well-known astronomer of this city. He has discovered several comets in the past and the results of his observation have been accepted by the officials of the Harvard observatory. Mr. Metcalf observed Halley's comet this morning under ideal conditions. The sky was clear and the air was free from haze. The astronomer sighted the comet at 2.45 a. m., a short time before the head of the visitor peered above the horizon line. The observation showed that the tail of the comet is now 30 degrees in length, or equal to the distance from the horizon to the zenith. The tail lay nearly parallel to the horizon. It was from eight to ten degrees broad, which means an actual width of about one million miles. Mr. Metcalf also reported that the tail was apparently straight and in process of broadening and has not yet reached its maximum width. The northern and western heads of the tail touched Gamma Pegasus and extended to 71 Aquila, possibly to Theta Aquila.

Mr. Metcalf telephoned the results of his observations to the Harvard observatory today. The Harvard observers told him that they had not begun their observations sufficiently early to get the details which he obtained and they accepted his findings.

SETTLERS' RIGHTS ARE CONSIDERED TO BE IN JEOPARDY

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 17.—A boat trip in which the voyagers rode and not rowed is said to be at the bottom of a controversy over Palo Verde valley lands valued at $2,400,000. The rights of settlers are considered in jeopardy because of a whimsical trick practiced 35 years ago by a San Francisco millionaire, now dead. It is charged that he had the boat loaded on a wagon and after it had been hauled over a prescribed area claimed 14,000 acres of rich land under the swamp and overflow act attesting to the fact that he had made the trip in a boat. The land is desert land.

The dispute, which, upon its face, appears to be a controversy between the government and state will come up for a hearing before United States Surveyor General Archer in Los Angeles June 2. Settlers, however, assert that the controversy is really between them and a landgrabbing syndicate.

RISKED HIS LIFE

DRIVER OF CHEMICAL WAGON SAVED A BOY

BOSTON, May 17.—Risking his life and those of his horses, Driver Edward J. Crowley of Chemical Engine 7 of East Boston, while responding to an alarm of fire last evening, swung the animals suddenly around, as they were tending along Chelsea st., in order to save a little boy from being crushed to death. So abruptly was the turn made that the apparatus went up on the sidewalk and the horses crashed into the plate glass window of the Davison Drug company at the corner of Chelsea and Marion streets. The window was demolished, the engine pole broken and the horses were slightly cut, but the driver and the little lad whose life he saved escaped injury. It was impossible to learn the name of the lad, but it is believed he is Cunningham. The apparatus was responding to a call from box 413, which proved to be a false alarm.

To Referee the Fight Between Jeffries and Johnson

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—"Tex" Rickard, associated with Jack Gleason in the promotion of the Jeffries-Johnson contest, who came into prominence four years ago when he engineered the Hans-Nelson fight at Goldfield, Nev., was selected yesterday to referee the fight between the two heavyweights on July 4, at Emeryville.

In accepting the place, however, the Nevada promoter made it clear that he will step aside if Jeffries and Johnson agree on another man.

This settlement came when it looked as if the meeting to select a referee would end in another deadlock, and after bitter words had passed between Johnson and Sam Berger, Jeffries' manager.

Johnson suggested Rickard, but Berger refused to consider the Nevada man, saying that he would not accept him on account of his inexperience. The colored champion declared he would stand for the three men he had mentioned, Jack Welch, Eddie Grancy and Rickard.

Berger indignantly replied that he would leave the meeting. Then there came a further clash between Berger and Johnson, and ugly words were used by Berger and threats were made by Johnson. Berger stood up, as if to leave.

"So you want Rickard, do you?" he queried of Johnson.

"Yes," was the answer.

"Well, all right," replied Berger, and the crowd broke into a cheer as it realized that one of the difficult points had been settled.

Rickard made the following statement:

"To straighten out this affair I am willing to act, provided my name is agreeable to all concerned. I don't want to act and I hope that before the fight takes place Jeffries and Johnson will agree on another man. If they can come to terms I am perfectly willing to step down and out. But if they can reach no other agreement I will not back down."

In spite of the agreement there is a feeling of mistrust among those who attended the session that the last word has not been said and that the referee question again must be taken up.

It was rumored last night that, to give the impression that everything is settled.

in working order Rickard was named until the contestants could look the field over.

During the negotiations it looked for a time as if there would be a free-for-all fight. Just before the compromise was reached Berger is said to have exclaimed, in an undertone, "I'll go over and hit that black man," applying, it is said, another epithet with "black."

This remark was carried to Johnson, who warned Berger never to call him that name again.

Berger denied that he had said anything of the kind, but Johnson's followers declare he did and muttered among themselves that if Berger repeated what he had said, he would never leave the room.

"You're just an educated dog," said Johnson to Berger. "Now come out and fight if you want to. I'll give $1000 if you will come right out with me and box just three rounds."

They were finally quieted and the session resumed.

At the start of the meeting Berger again named the five men he wanted—Eddie Smith, Billy Roach, Charley Epton, Phil Wand and Johnny Hergei.

Johnson renamed Welch and Grancy and said he would stick to them. He intimated further that he would allow no one, not even the promoters, to do the selecting for him.

All sorts of compromises were suggested. Berger said he would be willing to have the sporting editors of the five San Francisco newspapers name the referee, or to act in conjunction with the two promoters.

MANY WOUNDED

Collision Between Republicans and Police

MADRID, May 17.—A collision between republicans and gendarmes is reported from Valencia in connection with a manifestation in honor of the arrival there of the republican deputy Senor Seriano. The gendarmes charged and the republicans used knives and stones.

An officer was stabbed and killed and many persons were wounded. Fifty arrests were made and order was finally restored after the manifestants had sought refuge at the republican club.

LOWELL AUTO CLUB

TO HEAR LECTURE ON THE MANUFACTURE OF RUBBER TIRES

The Lowell Automobile club will hold a smoke talk on Friday night, May 20th, at their quarters at the Richardson hotel at 8 o'clock when one of the most interesting lectures will be given by a representative of the B. F. Goodrich company of Akron, Ohio, on the subject of rubber. The lecturer will be Mr. Tillisch, who will answer all questions that may be asked relative to the subject.

This lecturer has the photographic films which will show the sap as it leaves the tree, tracing it through the various manufacturing processes until it is used on the automobile wheel.

The use of the photographic films has been accepted by the largest advertisers in the country to set forth in a way that will not only advertise, but also educate. There is scarcely any commodity among the necessities which is so popularly known as rubber and perhaps there is no article of commercial convenience, the construction and maintenance of which is so little understood as the automobile tire. Therefore, the nature of rubber, the difficulties of gathering it, the form of shipment, its transformation from the crude into the rubber of manufacture, and the actual making of an automobile tire, for example, are matters of educational concern.

RESTAURANT

CONCOURSE AND TRACK LEVEL

AFTER nearly a decade of stupendous construction operations the Pennsylvania railroad is on the eve of opening for passenger traffic its new terminal facilities in and around the city of New York. Finishing touches are being applied to the splendid new passenger station in the heart of Manhattan Island. The two tunnels leading into the metropolis from the New Jersey shore under the Hudson river are completed. The four tunnels leading in from Long Island under the East river are ready and waiting. The Manhattan cross town tunnels ending at the river shaft in the block between Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth streets, east of First avenue, are finished. With steady progress these spring days the huge weaves of tracks below the ground surface leading to the great passenger station is being brought to completion, and at Sunnyside, on Long Island, the immense railroad yards are ready to receive the first rush of business.

No date for the opening of the station has been formally announced. It is expected, however, that it will be in full operation by the close of the summer.

With the opening of this vastly improved traffic system that centers in the nation's metropolis the means of transportation between the east and the west will have been revolutionized. This revolution was conceived during the administration of the late A. J. Cassatt, president of the Pennsylvania, and has been carried forward by his successors without a hitch.

Achieved at the expenditure of many millions of dollars, these improvements will enable passengers from eastern, western and Long Island points to go directly into New York city without change of cars or transfer to ferryboat, arriving at a railroad station which is conceded to be the handsomest and most convenient in the world.

When these vast improvements were conceived ten years ago the Pennsylvania railroad was employing the same method of reaching New York city that was employed when it first leased the United Railroads of New Jersey in 1871—ferrying across the Hudson river from Jersey City. Ten years ago the road was hauling freights to eastern cities over practically the same grades that were to be encountered in 1875. Then came the plans to overcome the ferry transfers and the grades. In a few months from now freight trains, which reach the east over a new line, with no grades greater than twelve feet to the mile, will be floated from Greenville, N. J., to Bay Ridge, N. Y., and when the New York connecting railroad, crossing the East river on a four track bridge, is completed these trains will be run directly from Bay Ridge to Port Morris, N. Y., where connections for New England will be made with the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Electric Engines Used.

This New York tunnel extension and its necessary adjuncts comprise the costliest improvements ever made by a railroad company. The tunnel extension begins at Harrison, N. J., a few hundred yards east of Newark, where there is a car yard for the big electric locomotives used to haul all trains through the tubes. Passenger trains from southern and western points change here from steam to electric power. Passengers destined for the downtown section of New York, the great financial and wholesale district, may alight at Harrison and take an electric train into the huge new station of the Hudson and Manhattan railroad at Church and Cortlandt streets by way of the McAdoo tunnels under the Hudson.

After changing engines the through trains for New York will leave Harrison on rails crossing over the old Pennsylvania tracks on a steel and concrete bridge, following a double track line on a high embankment across the marshy Hackensack meadows to Bergen Hill, where they will enter the tunnel tubes and pass under the waters of the Hudson into the station in New York, thence below the surface of Manhattan Island under the East river to Long Island City.

The central feature of the entire improvement is the passenger station in New York, the main entrance being on Seventh avenue between Thirty-first and Thirty-third streets. The station is divided into three levels, the tracks being forty feet below street level. The main entrance is for foot passengers only. Through an imposing arcade 225 feet long by 45 feet wide the passengers go to the main waiting room, the largest in the world, 277 feet long, 103 feet wide and 150 feet high. The arcade is flanked by shops on both sides, and at its farther end are a restaurant, a lunch room and a cafe. Beyond is the concourse level, or station proper, being on the first level below the street surface and containing the grand waiting room, wherein are located the ticket offices, baggage checking windows, telephones and telegraph offices and other adjuncts, arranged so conveniently that no retracing of steps is necessary. On the west, adjoining the general waiting room, are two subsidiary waiting rooms, each 58 by 100 feet, one for men and one for women. Each of these opens into retiring rooms.

The main baggage room, with 450 feet frontage, is on the same level. This large frontage is for the transfer wagons. It is directly beneath the arcade and the restaurant spaces on the level above. Baggage is taken in and brought out through a special subway. Motor trucks and elevators deliver trunks to the tracks below. On this level motor cars will be stationed.

The concourse, connecting by a wide thoroughfare with the main waiting room, is a covered assembling place 200 feet wide and extending the entire width of the station and out under the adjoining streets. The concourse is the vestibule to the tracks on the third and lowest level. Stairs descend to each of the train platforms. There are also direct approaches to the concourse from the two side streets. Between the main concourse and the tracks is the exit concourse, to be used for express purposes only. This is eighteen feet above the track level, with stairways and elevator conveniences. Staircases and gradual inclines lead directly to the side streets.

Into the north side of the station, extending along Thirty-third street, will run trains from all points on Long Island by way of the East river tunnels. This traffic can be handled independently of the general through traffic and the local traffic from the western approach. The train platforms are about thirty-six feet below street level.

Terminal Area Twenty-eight Acres.

To give some idea as to the magnitude of the station and its adjoining area of track approaches it may be stated that twenty-eight acres of land are included in the scheme, the station walls themselves inclosing eight acres. The first stone of the masonry work on the building was laid June 16, 1908, the task being completed July 21, 1909. The exterior walls, nearly half a mile altogether, required 490,000 cubic feet of pink granite. Inside the concourse 50,000 cubic feet of stone were used. This total of 540,000 cubic feet of granite required 1,140 freight cars to transport it from Milford, Mass., where it was quarried. In the construction of the building were used 27,000 tons of steel. Fifteen million bricks were set in place. The Roman Doric style of architecture was employed. The station covers the entire area bounded by Seventh and Eighth avenues and Thirty-first and Thirty-third streets. The building is of the dimensions of a great exposition palace, being 784 by 430 feet. The structure is described as "really a monumental bridge over the tracks, with entrances on four sides."

Colonnades on Each Side.

The Seventh avenue facade, composed principally of a Roman Doric colonnade, was conceived especially to express in the largest possible fashion a monumental gateway. It has been compared to the Brandenburg gate in Berlin, through which passes so much of the traffic of the German capital, though the New York gateway is much larger. The main body of the building reaches seventy-six feet above street level. There are colonnades along the Eighth avenue and the Thirty-first and Thirty-third street facades similar to the main colonnade, with sculptured groups above them supporting large ornamental clocks.

One of the impressive features of the great waiting room is the window treatment. On each side above the main body of the building are three semicircular windows of a radius of 33 feet 4 inches and 66 feet 8 inches wide at the base. There is also at each end of the waiting room a window of like size. The high ceiling of the waiting room is carried above the general roof level of the station by a domelike elevation which relieves the building of any suggestion of squatness. The interior of the waiting room was suggested by the great halls and basilicas of Rome, such as the baths of Caracalla, Titus and Diocletian and the basilica of Constantine.

The length of the tracks inside the station area of twenty-eight acres is sixteen miles. There are twenty-one standing tracks in the station, with eleven passenger platforms.

To clear the ground for excavating about 600 buildings were removed from the terminal area, for the site is in the midst of a fully built up city district. Three billion cubic yards of excavating were necessary. Streets crossing the terminal area are carried over by bridging. In fact, the whole area, exclusive of the station itself, is simply a bridged over excavation, so that the casual observer is unaware of the wonderful weaves of trackwork underneath.

For the first time when the Pennsylvania trains use the tunnels and the New York connecting railroad bridge between points west and south to New England by way of New York without change of train.

The Pennsylvania railroad in constructing this great improvement has built not alone for the present, but for the future. Included within a radius of nineteen miles from the city hall of New York, near the lower end of Manhattan Island, there was in 1830 a population of 3,325,998. By 1900 it had grown to 4,612,153. Five years later it was 5,404,633. In ten years it had increased 38 per cent. It is estimated that by 1913 the population of this territory will be about 6,000,000 people and by 1920 approximately 8,000,000.

Reasons For Improvement.
The enormous increase of railroad

traffic in and out of New York city within the past twenty years prompted the Pennsylvania railroad to undertake and carry to its successful culmination this great work. The reasons for the undertaking are thus expressed officially:

First.—To provide for the future by enlarging the present facilities for freight and passenger traffic because of the continuous growth in this traffic and to accomplish it before the cost became almost prohibitive or the task impossible because of the construction of other underground transportation lines.

Second.—To run its passenger trains into a central location in the city of New York instead of a station on the west bank of the Hudson river.

Third.—To open to the people in the thickly populated borough of Manhattan the residential sections of Long Island and to offer to Newark and other populous towns in New Jersey direct and quick access to the resorts on Long Island beaches.

Fourth.—To provide an all rail connection between the south and west on the one hand and New England and the east on the other.

Fifth.—To give the boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens, with their population of over 1,600,000, direct railroad connections to and from the New England, southern and western states and to supply freight facilities with similar connections in these boroughs, thereby properly serving the entire area of Greater New York through freight stations suitably located to develop its commercial interests.

Sixth.—To provide additional freight facilities and shorten the water transportation trip for the New England traffic across New York harbor from about twelve miles to three and four-tenths miles.

Seventh.—To make its Long Island railroad investment remunerative within a comparatively short period.

Eighth.—To obtain a proper share of the golden future by judicious expenditures in a territory having abundant promise, whether viewed from the growth of traffic in the past or the outlook for the future.

How the Tunnels Were Built.

The construction of the Pennsylvania railroad tunnels under the North and East rivers into New York and

New Jersey, attaining a maximum depth of ninety-seven feet below mean high water and built for a heavy and high speed traffic of great volume, was an undertaking with little or no precedent. To accomplish this work was a most puzzling engineering problem on account of the soft mud through which the tunnels were driven under the Hudson river.

The tunnels or tubes themselves consist of a series of iron rings, and the installation of every ring meant an advance of two and a half feet. Eleven plates and a key piece at the top complete the circumference, and an entire ring weighs about fifteen tons. The cast iron plates, or sections of the ring, have flanges at right angles to the surface, and it is through these that the successive rings are held together with bolts. The record progress in one day of eight hours was five of these rings, or twelve and one-half feet. Hydraulic rams, placed against the flanges every few inches around the tube, were used to push forward the huge shields with which the tunnels were bored. Each shield weighed 194 tons. It had nine doors in it, and through these came the rock or sand or silt or whatever the material the tube penetrated.

If the tunnel project was to be a success the courses of the east and west bound shields had to be kept so true that they would meet exactly. To insure this the engineers calculated the difficulties closely, and a really remarkable system of reports was in effect from the first day work was started. Every morning they knew the progress made in the tunnels the day before to the very inch and the amount of rock and soil excavated to the cubic foot. The Pennsylvania railroad officers and the engineers held this perfect system and the thoroughness of each day's work chiefly responsible for the promptness of the meeting of the tubes. Engineers say, too, that no project was ever carried out where the emphasis was so entirely upon the results rather than upon the money it cost to attain them.

The shields in the north tube under the Hudson river met on Sept. 17, 1908. Each had traveled some 3,000 feet through a treacherous river bed, yet the meeting was perfect. About a month later the shields in the south

tube met in the same way. To fill in the gap where the shields met in the south tube a tunnel section that had been on exhibition at the St. Louis world's fair was used. It consisted of eight rings. The shields in the four East river tunnels met as perfectly as those in the Hudson tubes, and all were completed at about the same time.

When the tubes were through from end to end the work of putting in the re-enforced concrete lining was started immediately. This lining is twenty-two inches thick. On each side of the tunnel there is a so called bench three feet wide, which serves as a walk, while within will be carried conduits for telegraph, telephone, signal and power wires.

In the construction of the tunnels nothing was left undone by the railroad company to protect the lives and health of the workmen. No engineering problem connected with the entire New York tunnel extension received more attention than the many precautions to protect the hundreds of men who, day and night, week days and Sundays and holidays, bored the underground tunnels. Down under many fathoms of mud and rock the steel tubes which are to land passengers from the east and west into the heart of New York city were pushed steadily forward with no more waste of time than it took to change "shifts."

Underwater work has a fearsome sound—to those who have never seen it going on. Talk to men who have been engaged in it for years, and one gets another idea. There are plenty who can speak with authority for the world was searched for men of experience to build the Pennsylvania tunnels. On the cross town shafts sixty Austrians who got their training in the Simpson tunnel were employed. There were engineers and foremen here who had tunneled in Egypt,

South Africa, England and America and who now are doubtless looking for other subterranean regions to conquer.

All the excitement was taken out of one novice's visit back of a tunnel shield by finding Tom Brown, the oldest foreman on the contractor's staff, seated on a pile of river bed silt gravely squeezing mud balls for the purpose of finding how much water the sand carried at that spot. That nothing but the air pressure kept the whole of the river from descending on his head worried him not the least.

But the dangers of the work? Dangers there were, or a certain risk of injury, but not enough to worry a man in good health who observed the rules that stared him in the face from every wall.

To make it as safe under the bod of the river as it is on the land's surface was the aim of the Pennsylvania tunnel builders. The old Hudson river tunnel which crosses the Hudson at Morton street was abandoned at one time because so many lives were lost. The main difficulty was to keep the river from coming into the tube and drowning the workmen. The air under the heavy pressure required to keep the water from sweeping in sometimes blew out through the river bottom, and then the water poured in in such volume that there was little or no time for escape.

In the Pennsylvania railroad tunnels the life of the "sand hog" was almost as safe as that of the surface worker. Emergency locks, air curtains and emergency platforms or walks near the roof of the tunnel were provided so that in case of a blowout and consequent flooding of the tunnel the men would have a chance to escape through the air held in the top of the tunnel.

The most important of the rules enforced while the Pennsylvania tunnels were being built was one requiring the men to go slowly through the air locks. The rule was to take a minute for about two pounds of pressure—in other words, in coming out of a pressure of thirty-four pounds a man should spend not less than fifteen minutes in the lock. Finding that this rule was ignored, Henry Japp, managing engineer of the contractors who built the East river tubes, devised a valve which enabled the lock tender to regulate the change of pressure with mechanical exactness.

Before a man was permitted to work in the underwater tunnels he was put through a severe examination for heart and lung troubles and general condition. If he passed the medical inspection he was sent "down in the air" for an hour or two and then re-examined. If the second examination was satisfactorily passed he was put on a short shift for a week and then if he showed no ill effects was given a steady job.

Men of all nationalities built the Pennsylvania tunnels, negroes doing a large part of the job. Laziness was something the contractors never had to contend with. They say there must be something about the compressed air which generates energy and enthusiasm, for the "muckers"—commonly known as "sand hogs"—vied with one another to make the greatest progress.

SOME FIGURES SHOWING MILEAGE AND CAPACITY OF IMPROVEMENTS:

Maximum capacity of all tunnels per hour, 144 trains.

Storage capacity of station yard tracks, 386 cars.

Proposed initial daily service of Pennsylvania Railroad trains, 400.

Proposed initial daily service of Long Island Railroad trains, 600.

Length of river tube tunnels, single track miles, 6.8.

Length of land tunnels, single track miles, 6.8.

Length of run, Bergen Portal to Long Island Portal, 5.3 miles.

Total length of track in tunnels, exclusive of yard tracks in station, 16.5 miles.

Length of run, Harrison, N. J., to terminal station, 8.6 miles.

Length of run, Jamaica, L. I., to terminal station, 11.85 miles.

ARRESTS MADE

Boxing Club Officers
Taken By Police

NEW YORK, May 17.—Mike (Twins) Sullivan of Boston and Jimmy Clabby of Milwaukee, refused to go on last night for the 10 round bout that was to have been the main attraction of the Marathon Athletic club at Brooklyn. They had good reason. Early in the evening the police entered the club house armed with seven warrants from the supreme court of Kings county for the owners and officers of the club, and for Jack (Twins) Sullivan, Mike's brother, Al Benedict, with whom Jack fought 10 rounds last week; Tommy West, who acted as second for Jack, and Billy Madden, the man who brought out John L. Sullivan, and was in Benedict's corner last week. Only the owners and officers of the club were arrested.

The warrants charged the officers of the club with selling tickets to a prize fight in violation of the law and charged the principals and seconds respectively of prize fighting and of aiding and abetting a prize fight.

There was great excitement when the arrests were made, but although Sullivan and Clabby declined to take chances with the law, the club held six preliminary bouts as scheduled.

GENERAL MATTOCKS DEAD

PORTLAND, Me., May 17.—General Charles P. Mattocks, colonel of the 17th regiment in the Civil war and the only Maine man who held a general's commission in the Spanish war, died last night. He has been prominent in the Grand Army and Loyal Legion, and was a former judge in the probate court. He was 69 years old.

ROLLER INJURED

IN HIS WRESTLING BOUT WITH ZYBSZKO

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 17.—Stanislaw Zybszko, the Polish wrestler and a candidate for Frank Gotch's title as champion, last night defeated Dr. Roller of Seattle, in a finish match. Roller's left shoulder was badly wrenched when the Pole slammed him to the mat for the first fall.

It was announced that Dr. Roller was returning to the ring for the second bout against the advice of his seconds and when he reappeared it was seen that his left arm hung helplessly by his side. Zybszko quickly got behind his man and when he began working upon the injured arm Dr. Roller's seconds threw up the sponge.

The time for the first fall was 1.05.40 and for the second 1.40.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION

A program has been prepared for the annual convention of the Lowell union, Christian Endeavorers, which will be held at the Paige Street Free Baptist church on Saturday afternoon and evening of this week. Not only will the Lowell district be represented, but visitors are expected from many out-of-town places.

The two main addresses will be given, one in the afternoon by Rev. Smith Baker, D. D., and in the evening by Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., the Christian Endeavor founder and referred to by Christian Endeavorers as Father Endeavor Clark. Dr. Baker's subject is to be "How to Build Up Your Own Society," and Dr. Clark will speak on "The Secret of Worldwide Success in Christian Endeavor."

his dutiable goods, his hearing, which will be held next Friday, promises to bring out a spirited fight. Mr. Rollins and his son, who were arrested on the charge of smuggling at the dock, and Mrs. Rollins later appeared before the customs officials and gave bond for $2000 on the same charge.

KEPT PRISONER

Girl Was Found By the Police

NEW YORK, May 17.—Bruised and under-clothed, a girl who gives her name as Elizabeth Kelley, 18 years old, was taken by the police yesterday from a house in Bayonne, N. J. She says she has been kept a prisoner there by Joseph Figel, an Italian, for three months.

The girl has been in this country only six months. She says she met Figel in a moving picture show, and he induced her to enter his house by promises of employment. She was found yesterday nearly crazed with fright in a third story room. Women's clothes had to be borrowed before she could be taken out. She said her own had been burned by Figel to prevent her escape. Figel was arrested and held without bail.

HORSE OWNERS

Given Advice as to Use of Medicines

Although much has been written concerning the methods of administering medicines to horses, to this day many horse owners and caretakers exhibit a great amount of ignorance or carelessness in giving necessary medicines to horses. They may be given by the mouth, by the lungs and air passages, by applications to the skin and by hypodermics, injections and by enemas.

Those medicines to be given by the mouth consist in the main of powders, balls, drenches and electrolytes. Powders should always be finely ground and free from irritating poisonous or caustic substances, lacking disagreeable taste or smell. Such can easily be mixed with the feed or water. If given with the grain moistening them will ensure their being eaten rather than blown about or left in the feed box or manger.

Balls should be made about 2 inches long and three-quarters of an inch in diameter, soft and flexible. Medicine is of a disagreeable nature like physic, is much easier given as a ball than a drench. When balls are to be given, and physic is as important in the proper treating of the horse in many cases as it is in humanity, it is quite easily done if one goes about it in a cool and collected manner and proceeds along these lines.

Lead the horse up to the side of some elevation, upon which you can have a ring or hook above the head, through which you can pass the end of the halter but do not make it fast. Have an assistant just hold it pulling the head up easily and quietly until the head or line of the face is just a mite above a horizontal line. Take the ball between the thumb and finger of hand, immerse it in oil or glycerine, open the horse's mouth gently, pull the tongue out and over to the left hand side allowing it to lay across the teeth and firmly but gently held by the hand, pass the ball up the mouth well back at the roots of the tongue, drop it there, remove the hands quickly and allow the tongue to be pulled back into the mouth. The horse will generally swallow a properly made ball without further effort on your part. It is well to have a pail of water handy, and if the ball be given when the animal is thirsty, he will readily drink and help to carry the ball along to the stomach.

WENT ON STRIKE

Lasters in Marlboro
Quit Work

MARLBORO, May 17.—Fifty men employed in the last department of the Rice & Hutchins Millinery factory at this place went on strike yesterday afternoon.

The grievance of the strikers against the firm is that two brother employees in the last department were discharged yesterday morning for what the strikers claim insufficient cause and the strikers have declared they will not return to work until the two discharged men are reinstated.

The real cause of the discharge of the two men, the strikers claim, is that one of them has been very active in the affairs of the union. Both of those discharged went out of the factory yesterday morning for some reason of their own and when they returned they were notified their services were no longer required.

All of the men on strike are members of the United Shoe Workers of America and they held a meeting last night in their rooms in Warren block. After the meeting the strikers said there is no change in the situation. Many of the strikers are Greeks.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

Empire colony, 170, U. O. P. F., held its regular meeting in Pilgrim hall last night and much business of importance was transacted. Two candidates were initiated. The memorial committee reported that everything was ready for the services to be held Monday evening, June 6.

An invitation to visit Garfield colony was accepted.

Butler Ames Co. 16, U. R. K. P.
The regular assembly of Butler Ames company, 16, U. R. K. P., was held last night, Lieut. Col. Robert Hall of Haverhill presiding. Edwin F. Lamson was installed as second lieutenant of the company. One application for membership was received. At the close of the business session a social hour was enjoyed.

Division 2, A. O. H.
A well attended meeting of Division 2, A. O. H., was held last night in Hibernian hall, with Vice-President Lynch in the chair. Considerable business of importance was transacted. Five propositions for membership were received and three candidates were initiated. There will be a special meeting on Sunday, May 21, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to complete all arrangements for the A. O. H. outing at Lexington park on Sunday, June 5.

WM. J. BRYAN

SPEAKS IN FAVOR OF COUNTY OPTION

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., May 17.—Speaking at the Cleveland theatre here last night after being refused by the county commissioners the use of the courthouse, Wm. J. Bryan urged the need of an extra session of the legislature to enact the initiative and referendum, whereby the question of county option might be removed from partisan politics. The large crowd was respectful and attentive.

Mr. Bryan said the attitude of the saloon interests was that they were opposed to county option, that they were unwilling that the people should vote on the question. He criticized the attitude of the anti-optionists of this country, who, he said, went so far as to oppose the free discussion of the initiative and referendum. He declared: "The liquor interests are responsible for the forcing of the county option question in the arena of politics, and they have only themselves to blame for the results that shall follow the growing indignation against the impudence, the insolence of the liquor interests."

JUDGE MURRAY

Issues a Warning to Pickpockets

BOSTON, May 17.—Pickpockets were scored by Judge Murray in the municipal criminal court yesterday. Six men were arraigned for attempted larceny from the person, and the judge found all the prisoners guilty.

His Honor said: "The city is infested with pickpockets. It is getting so that it is unsafe to ride in an electric car or walk through the public thoroughfares. Every man brought before me for picking pockets or attempting to do so, who is found guilty, shall be made an example of."

John Long and Edward Miller were arrested while "working" an electric car on Huntington avenue last Thursday evening. Detectives Glevy and Linton of headquarters said Long had served sentences at state prison, the house of correction and Sing Sing.

NAVAL WARFARE

TOOK PLACE ON THE POTOMAC RIVER

WASHINGTON, May 17.—A bit of naval warfare took place yesterday on the Potomac river at Indian Head, Va., when the old United States navy ram Katabdin, which was stricken from the navy list last year, received her baptism of fire. It was not the fire of an enemy, but it was aimed at her with every intention of sinking her if possible.

Having outlived her usefulness as a fighting vessel, the curious naval vessel was clothed in modern 12-inch high grade armor plate and a dozen ordnance experts directed the attack on her with the new soft nose naval shell, hurled through a big 12-inch gun. Anchored at a distance of about five miles the Katabdin served to assist the naval experts in ascertaining whether the new shell can be detected when it strikes at any angle or whether it would bite into the armor plate as the naval officers anticipated. Unfortunately for the public the navy department conducted the experiment with all possible secrecy.

ANOTHER ARREST

In Connection With Fitchburg Bank Swindling Case

FITCHBURG, May 17.—The arrest of Hector McLane at Bridgeport, Conn., late today, local police assert, closes the net about the suspects who, on May 4, buncoed the Worcester North Savings institution out of $1700, using a deed and mortgage given by a man passing as George P. Sands and now alleged to be Hector McLane.

All the suspects in the swindle are in custody, two here, and one at Bridgeport.

Corbett J. McLane of Worcester who was arrested Sunday on a charge of larceny in connection with the swindle, was arraigned yesterday in the local police court and on his plea of not guilty a hearing was set for May 25, and he was held in sureties of $2500.

Corbett J. McLane, according to the police, represented himself as Armstrong, an attorney, when the deed figuring in the case was forged in the office of Atty. Jean Robichaud and the name of John Dohla was used.

It is claimed by the police McLane with his brother, Hector McLane, came here from Worcester about May 1, and formed the acquaintance of James Russell, who has been arrested under the name of James A. McNeil. The three men, according to the police, were all implicated in the deal whereby the savings institution took a mortgage on the property of John Dohla, which Hector McLane, who passed as George P. Sands, claimed he had purchased.

Hector McLane, according to the police, is the man who got the $1700 from the savings institution, and who is alleged to have passed himself as John Dohla in the law office of Attorney Robichaud.

Inspector Fitcher learned yesterday from Corbett J. McLane that it was his brother, Hector McLane, who arranged the scheme. The police have learned that Hector McLane recently attempted to secure money in the same way in Bridgeport, Conn. and he is now on bail there waiting for a hearing upon the complaint, charging him with an attempt to defraud. A detective was here yesterday from Bridgeport after Hector McLane, as he is wanted in that city.

The police gave out the statement yesterday that Corbett McLane has made a complete confession, in which he claims his brother got about all of the $1700 by the swindle. He has, however, denied he passed himself off as Armstrong. Corbett J. McLane, so far as the police have been able to learn, has no previous record. He was visited here yesterday by his wife. She was also in conference with the police for some time, and it is claimed that she told them where Hector McLane was.

James A. McNeil, who was employed here as a barber until McLane brothers came into this city and who was arrested at Boston, was not arraigned today. An indictment has been returned against him by the grand jury for forgery, and he will be brought into court later in the week at Worcester to answer to the indictment.

McNeil has been known here for six years as Russell. It was learned today his right name is McNeil.

TRAIN WRECKED

Engineer Was Thrown From Cab

PITTSFIELD, May 17.—Traffic on the Boston and Albany railroad was blocked for several hours at Pittsfield Junction last night by the wreck of the Harlem express, bound from New York to North Adams. Although the locomotive left the tracks and turned over on one side, meanwhile plunging diagonally across the roadbed so as to block every track, only the engineer, Peter O'Donnell of North Adams, was thrown through the cab window and somewhat injured. The 25 passengers in the train were shaken up but none injured to any extent.

Besides the locomotive, a baggage car was derailed. The train was running slowly in the yard at Pittsfield Junction and was about to take the switch from the main line to the branch line leading to North Adams shortly before 8 o'clock, when the engine suddenly left the tracks and plunging across the roadbed, turned over on one side. Engineer O'Donnell had one foot slightly hurt, while his fireman escaped save for slight bruises received as he was hurled out. The engineer was taken to North Adams on a special train.

The route of the train was recently extended from Pittsfield to North Adams. There was a report current that the accident was due to rail spreading where repairs were being made, but the company officials would assign no cause for the derailment.

WILL THESE INSURGENT SENATORS SURRENDER TO PRESIDENT TAFT?

WASHINGTON, May 17.—From now until the close of congress the country is due to witness a spirited fight between the administration forces and six insurgent senators. Senators Brister, La Follette, Doolittle, Beveridge, Clapp and Cummins have not been in harmony with all the policies of the president. The president requested a score of senators to call at the White House and discuss various bills that he is anxious to have passed. Invitations were extended to some of the insurgents, and Cummins was among the number to respond, but he has not promised to follow the leadership of Taft, according to reports here.

she started for the coast, determined to work her passage as best she could. She sought employment in one town and city after another, always getting a little farther west. It took her a year to make her way to Chicago, and many months to save enough more money to proceed on her journey. Slowly but surely she neared the goal, making her way through Illinois, Nebraska, Colorado, Arizona and finally, eight years from the time of her departure she reached San Francisco. She readily found the grave, No. 745, west side, a new addition to San Francisco cemetery, where the remains of her brother were buried in 1905, three years after his death in Manila.

In a letter received yesterday she describes the burial place as beautiful, and expresses her deep appreciation of the efforts of Gen. Sullivan to have the remains of her brother brought from the Philippines to rest in his native land. He died of cholera, Miss Meehan has found work as a waitress in San Francisco.

The Lid Goes on in Haverhill

HAVERHILL, May 17.—The bouts that were to have been boxed here last night under the conduct of the Merrimack athletic and social association, were called off late yesterday afternoon, when the promoters received word from the police that arrests would follow if any attempt should be made to carry out the program arranged.

Steve Kennedy of Lawrence was slated to meet Johnny Moran of New York in the main bout of 12 rounds, and Moran was already in the city when the ultimatum from police headquarters went forth. Stanley Ketchel was to have acted as his second.

Complaint was made to the city officials recently that the boxing clubs, although incorporated, were not keeping within the law, in that many persons were permitted to witness the bouts who were not bona fide members of the club.

Alderman Joe W. Bean investigated the complaint, and after a conference with City Marshal Mack he decided that the best course to pursue would be to put a ban on all boxing exhibitions, with the result that the lid is now on tight, so far as boxing is concerned in Haverhill.

ECZEMA TWENTY YEARS CURED BY AN OIL

No matter if you have suffered for 20 years or 20 years, we as druggists, know that your itch can be cured in one day, and that sooner or later—perhaps very soon—your skin will be as clean and pure as ever.

Wash your skin with a simple compound, the mild soothing oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine compound known as D. D. D. Prescription.

The first day, the first night of restful sleep will prove to you that we make no foolish exaggerated claims. Eczema sufferers must recognize that we certainly would not make such claims, if within a few minutes after trying the remedy you could prove us wrong; we KNOW the itch is allayed at once.

While we have always sold D. D. D. Prescription at $1.00 a bottle, we do feel that everybody ought to be convinced of its value. So we have arranged with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special offer—for the present—a trial size bottle at only 25 cents (for those who have never tried the remedy).

LIQUOR CASE

Supreme Court Finds That Judge Morton Erred in Ruling

The full bench of the supreme court yesterday sustained the defendant's exceptions in the case of the commonwealth vs. Ferdinando Radochia, holding that Judge Morton of the superior court erred when he instructed the jury that as matter of law the receiving of wages would be hire and reward for the transportation of liquors into the city of Malden.

The defendant was employed by one Marcotia, who runs a liquor store in Boston. The latter advertised "all goods delivered free in Malden." He has his own delivery wagon and the defendant is employed by him to drive that delivery wagon and do other work about the store. Liquors are delivered in the wagon by the defendant to various parts of Boston as well as to Malden. Under the statute no one can hire or reward transport liquors into a city or town. It appeared that the defendant, who was transporting liquor to Malden, received weekly wages from his employer for all work done by him, which included the delivery of goods in Malden.

The court holds the question whether the defendant needed any hire or reward was for the jury.

"It will always be for the jury," says the court, "even though the price charged for the liquors is not made in different for different distances, to say whether that price does not really include a charge for delivery, based perhaps upon what is expected to be the average cost of all the deliveries that will be made."

The court says that if the seller agrees to deliver free of charge for the carriage, it doubtless will be a question for the jury whether this is actually done or whether he really receives a hire or reward for the carriage by its being included in the price charged for the liquors themselves, but there is nothing in the statute which forbids him from delivering to his customers in another town the goods he has sold to them, if he really in good faith does this without receiving, either directly or indirectly in the price of the goods, any hire or reward for the carriage.

The court says "Whatever the seller may do himself he may do through his hired servant. In such a case the wages paid to that servant for all the services to be rendered by the latter cannot be said to be a hire or reward for the carriage of liquors, merely because those services may incidentally include the duty of carrying the liquors and delivery of them to the purchasers thereof. We need not consider how this would be if it appeared that the servant was hired and paid exclusively or even principally for the purpose of making such deliveries."

The full bench of the supreme court yesterday sustained the exceptions of the respondent in the case of Joseph Weeks against Sarah L. Brooks et al., on the ground that the superior court should have framed issues for a jury as asked for by the respondent. The court says that a jury trial where the title to real property is put in issue is not a privilege to be granted in the sound discretion of the court as in probate appeals or issues in suits in equity, but is a right guaranteed by the constitution.

The case related to the registration of a tract of land on Beacon street and Commonwealth avenue. The defendant wanted issues framed for a jury as to the title and the superior court refused to frame issues for a jury. The case went to that court on an appeal from the land court.

NO EXCUSE FOR UGLY FACES

Blotches, Red Noses and Pimples May Be Quickly Banished

It is very easy, after all, to be rid of unsightly pimples, inflamed skin, blotches, red noses, hives, fever blisters and other blemishes, as a few applications of possum, the new skin remedy, will quickly banish these troubles. Being naturally flesh-colored and containing no grease, possum cannot be detected on the face in the daytime. The actual healing and curing process is accomplished readily and without inconvenience, the skin being restored to its natural color.

Possum can be had of any pharmacist who handles pure drugs, particularly Falls & Burleigh, Carter & Sherburne, and the Riker-James Drug Co. Fifty cents' worth will answer either for the minor troubles mentioned, or in curing ordinary cases of eczema, and which disease it is the accepted specific. Holding stores at once.

GIRL SUCCEEDS

After 8 Years Reaches Brother's Grave

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 17.—After eight years of effort the pluck and devotion of a Manchester girl, Miss Annie Meehan, has been rewarded by her reaching San Francisco on the pilgrimage to her brother's grave.

William Meehan was a member of Gen. William Sullivan's company, the Sheridan Guards, at Chickamauga, and later served under his old captain in the 26th U. S. volunteers in the Philippines. He died in 1892, but it was several months before his relatives were informed of his death. A request for the shipment home of his body met with the reply that owing to the nature of his disease under military regulations the body could not be shipped home for several years, and then only to San Francisco at government expense.

Miss Meehan, unable to rest until

Takes Up Charges of Alleged "Graft" in Middlesex Co.

BOSTON, May 17.—Attorney General Malone told certain citizens of Middlesex county today that if they would file a formal petition he would grant a public hearing on the question of allowing the use of his name for an investigation of the finances of the county by the supreme court.

A number of the taxpayers of the county have filed charges against the county commissioners, the sheriff and several other county officials alleging mismanagement in the business of the county. They appeared before the attorney general today to request him to permit the use of his name, according to the provisions in such cases but the attorney general desires to hear more evidence not only on the side of the petitioners but of the respondents before taking further action.

Did Copying and Stenographic Work for Late Judge Cowley and Received Promissory Note—Verdict of $372.60 Against Rev. Panos Ginieres

The jury in the case of Ada Newell vs. Fitchburg street railway returned a verdict of $3000 for the plaintiff. Verdict in Ayto Case

The jury in the case of Kate Holland vs. Rev. Panos Ginieres this morning returned a verdict of $372.60 for the plaintiff. The defendant ran into Mrs. Holland on Broadway while learning to run his auto. The machine was not registered at the time and Mr. Ginieres had not received a license as a chauffeur.

Case Against Cowley
The case of Stella Smith vs. the estate of the late Judge Charles Cowley went to trial this forenoon. John W. Wilson, who appeared for the estate and Burke and Leggett for the plaintiff.

The plaintiff sues to receive $1500 on a promissory note dated Jan. 4, 1909, payable six months after date with interest at 5 per cent. Miss Smith testified that the note was given her in payment for services as stenographer during a period of over four years and that no part of the note had been paid. She stated that she was to receive $400 a year for her services. The acquaintance between them began when she had some litigation with the daughters of a veteran which extended over a number of years.

On cross-examination Mr. Wilson produced some 30 letters all identified by Miss Wilson, which she wrote to Judge Cowley while she was residing in the Acton. A letter dated Feb. 9, 1909, read in part as follows:

"My dear, dear Judge: I am so happy this afternoon knowing what a dear good friend you are. I never do enough for you and I hope you will let me do everything in my power to help you. I am never so happy as when I can do something for you. I am so glad to have you as a friend, and I hope I am worthy of your friendship. I really do not know what to write about, and I write to let you know how I appreciate what you have done for me. I hope you and I can live long enough so I can show you how much I think of you." This letter was signed, "Your little girl, Stella."

Miss Smith stated that she wrote this letter under the impulse of the moment during her trouble with the daughters of a veteran. She was happy because he had helped her.

HYDE TO STUDY

Convicted Doctor to Keep up Work

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 17.—While Dr. B. C. Hyde who was convicted yesterday of the murder of Col. Thomas Swope is in jail he is not going to permit his medical mind to become rusty. Today the physician had one of his attorneys bring him a score of texts from his office. He will study them regularly each day, he says. Dr. Hyde was known among the physicians as a serious student and was well abreast of the times in medicine and surgery. It was largely in recognition of his ability, it is said, that he was elected president of the Jackson County Medical society last fall.

Hyde has become popular with the prisoners at the jail. He is an honorary member of the "muck club" by virtue of having paid a dollar initiation fee when the regular cost is but fifty cents. The doctor also plays cards with the inmates.

Dr. Temple's Treatment Free to the Sick

THIS IS THE OFFER
Anyone applying for treatment at the office, 97 Central street, Mansur block, rooms 10, 11, 12, will be treated one free of charge. This is without charge or compensation whatever for medicines, office treatment or advice. No money will be asked or accepted under any circumstances. This is absolutely and positively free to all sufferers with any form of a nervous or chronic disease of the stomach, liver, kidneys, bladder, blood or rectum. The offer is limited in time only. You must come this week.

THE FREE TREATMENT PLAN
Is not a philanthropic or charity offer, but a business proposition, made for the purpose of becoming quickly acquainted with the sick, to introduce this new and progressive method of system of healing; therefore, all may call—the high, the low, the rich, the poor, without fear or favor. The doctor believes that the grateful endorsement of the many who will be relieved and cured will attract public attention to his offices and system of treatment and bring sufficient patronage to repay for the great outlay and expense entailed by this offer.

Observe the days and hours which this free treatment is given: Mondays and Wednesdays, 10 a. m. to 2 p. m.; 7 to 8 p. m.; Sundays, 10 to 12. Other days by appointment only.

LEGAL NOTICES

MORTGAGEE'S SALE
By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Neils Knutson and Lovisa Knutson, both of Lowell, to the County of Middlesex and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, to Abbie M. Follett, of Marietta, in the State of Ohio, dated May thirty-first, A. D. 1909, and recorded with Middlesex North District Registry Deeds, Book 264, Page 130, and for breach of the condition of said mortgage, will be sold at public auction on the premises in said mortgage deed described, on Wednesday, the first day of June, A. D. 1910, at four o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, viz:

A certain lot of land with the buildings thereon situated on the northerly side of Court avenue in said Lowell, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at the corner of the front of Dean and said avenue; thence on said Dean and northerly about twenty-five feet to the fence which separates the lot from the land of the heirs of Silas Dean and said avenue; thence on said fence easterly about twenty-five feet to a point in the line of the front fence to the cottage on the premises; thence on said front fence and in a line therewith northerly about twenty-five feet to the corner of said Dean and said avenue to the point of beginning; being the same premises conveyed to said Neils Knutson and Lovisa Knutson by Ann Davis by deed dated Oct. 2, 1888, (erroneously stated in said mortgage to be Oct. 1, 1888), and recorded with said Registry Deeds, Book 260, Page 257.

Said premises will be sold subject to taxes for the current year 1910 and all other unpaid taxes and municipal assessments, if any there be.

Terms, $200 cash at time and place of sale, the balance within ten days thereafter on delivery or tender of a deed.

Other terms made known at sale.

In witness whereof, I, Edward J. Robbins, Auctioneer, have hereunto set my hand and the seal of said Registry Deeds, Book 260, Page 257.

Lowell, Mass., May 10, 1910.

Under authority of Section 40, chapter 580, of the Acts of 1908, I, Abbie M. Follett, of Lowell, Mass., do hereby give notice that I have made written application to the Court, in and for said County of Middlesex, Mass., for a duplicate deposit book of account number 102841, standing in the name of Abbie M. Follett, which said deposit book is lost or destroyed.

ALL JIMIE.

Money to Loan
The approaching warm weather means a great many purchases, and unless you are financially able to meet the situation, it means installment and charge accounts. There is no satisfaction in contracting a number of small bills. By getting a temporary loan from us, you can save money by purchasing for cash, and at the same time be independent about it.
